Girl Brings Help To Crashed Family

Walks Half Of Night After Plane Gets Lost

By M. STREET BROOKS

"I wasn't scared. I was just thinking about my parents," 11-year-old Kelly Bryner said today, describing how she walked half the night Saturday to get help for her family after their plane crashed into a fog hidden hill near Orinda.

Recovering today at John Muir Hospital in Walnut Creek were: James Bryner, 34, of Ojai who suffered a broken jaw and broken right ankle; his wife, Bretta, 32, with two broken legs; Jennifer, 10, facial cuts; and Mark, 9, facial cuts and body bruises. All were listed in good condition.

Kelly helped younger brother Eric with a jigsaw puzzle in the living room of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert A. Williams of Larskpur as she told about the rescue between calls from young friends in Ojai.

Bryner explained the crash from his bed at the hospital to which the family was airlifted by Coast Guard helicopter. They were flying from their Southern California home late Friday to visit with the Williamses.

"I ran into a heavy fog bank north of the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge," Bryner said. "The last thing I could see on the Marin side was San Quentin. I decided to turn around and try to come south."

Scheduled to land at Gnoss Field in Novato, Bryner called Oakland Airport and was told there was seven miles visibility there. Flying at 8,000 feet he spotted a hole in the fog through which he could see the city lights below. At 4,000 feet, he said, the hole closed.

"I wasn't concerned though, because I thought we were near the Oakland Airport. I guess I underestimated."

Bryner said he didn't see the 1,100-foot-high hill until an instant before the four-seat Piper Tri-Pace plane crashed at 140-miles-per-hour.

Bryner, his wife, and Jennifer were knocked unconscious by the impact and when Bryner came to, he saw Eric, but not his brother, Mark, in the plane. Kelly and Jennifer, who had regained consciousness, left the fog shrouded plane and found him about 200 feet down the hill, miraculously not seriously injured.

The family could see lights far off in the distance and Bryner sent the girls out to get help. They wandered in circles for about an hour and came back to the plane shortly before midnight Friday.

"They were worried that they would get lost," their father explained. "I had to convince them that that didn't matter."

The girls did go out again. "We walked down the hill and followed a stream," Kelly said. It was cold and they wore only sweaters over their clothing.

"I walked a pretty long time," the sixth grader said. It was about 3 a.m. when they knocked on the door of the ranch house of Henry Boeger of Orinda and told what had happened.

"There stood those little girls, wet and cold," Boeger said. "They were a mess . . . one had a bad gash on her head." That was Jennifer.

"They were so serious about helping their family, they didn't let anything else bother them. They were brave kids."

Boeger rode a horse to the wreckage after calling sheriff's deputies. It didn't take long to locate the plane about three miles southeast of the Caldecott Tunnel.

Mercy Mission Ambushed

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops shot down a U.S. helicopter and then ambushed American ground forces that came to rescue the crewmen, the U.S. Command said today. One airman and 10 of the rescuers were killed.

The Army UH1 Huey helicopter was downed at noon Sunday just south of Quang Ngai, 305 miles northeast of Saigon on South Vietnam's upper coast. The Communists lay in wait until the ground forces approached the helicopter three hours later.

Helicopter gunships, artillery and jet fighter-bombers were called to the aid of the ambushed Americans, spokesmen said, but there were no known Communist casualties. In addition to the 11 dead, two of the helicopter crew were injured and six GIs were wounded.

The Easter Sunday ambush caused the heaviest U.S. casualties since an early-morning attack March 28 against Fire Base Mary Ann in nearby Quang Tin province killed 33 Americans and left 76 wounded.

U.S. military sources said today the U.S. Air Force was dropping 7.5-ton bombs on Communist troop concentrations around besieged Fire Base 6 in the first such tactical use of the weapons in the war. B52s also hit Communist positions there today with 500 tons of bombs.

UPI correspondent Robert E. Sullivan reported from the area that the North Vietnamese commander in charge of the attack on Fire Base 6 had moved his headquarters from Laos into South Vietnam to direct the fight. The base is near the intersection of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam in the Central Highlands.

Sullivan, quoting highly placed South Vietnamese military sources, said the headquarters of Hoang Minh Thoa, commander of the 13-day-old offensive against the base, was believed located about 14 miles southwest of the base, but that he moved his headquarters frequently to avoid bombing attacks. The headquarters is known as B3.

The 7.5-ton bombs have been used previously to blast out landing pads in the jungles for U.S. helicopters but military sources said they were effective against massed Communist troops. In some operations the big bombs are floated down by parachute and detonated a few yards off the ground to blast out an area the size of a football field.

Front dispatches said the bombs were used today six to eight miles southwest of the border ranger post of Ben Het, itself six miles northwest of Fire Base 6.

Sullivan, reporting from the central Highlands, said a North Vietnamese defector told interrogators he had seen 2,000 fresh North Vietnamese troops in a rear area awaiting orders to move into the battle area. He said the defector, Lt. Bui Ngoc Chieu, told questioners his battalion had been ordered to cut Highway 512 east of Ben Het, the base's only land link to the outside.

Ben Het withstood a 56-day Communist siege in the spring of 1969 when it was a Green Beret camp.

While the C130s unloaded their blockbusters, B52s returned to the area in strength. Military sources said the big eight-engine bombers have dropped nearly 2,500 tons of bombs on the Communists around Fire Base 6 since the post was overrun 13 days ago. It was recaptured later and is still in government hands.

"The enemy has decided to fight," a South Vietnamese official told Sullivan. "They are still here." He said in the first 12 days of the Communist offensive a total of 2,624 Communists had been killed, mostly by U.S. air power. Government losses were announced as 172 dead and 292 wounded.

U.S. helicopters managed to resupply the base today despite heavy ground fire. All were fired upon today but none was shot down. Sunday, only 5 of 10 helicopters managed to land at the base and one of these was shot down.

A sharp cutback in Army strength dropped the number of American soldiers in Vietnam to 296,500 last week, the lowest level since Aug. 13, 1966, the U.S. Command reported today.

Command figures showed a reduction of 5,400 GIs, 4,500 from the Army. President Nixon's Phase VI withdrawal program calls for a reduction to 284,000 by May 1.

Last week's reductions left 223,100 for the Army (down 4,500) 14,800 Navy (down 400), 18,000 Marines (down 500) with no change in the figure of 40,500 Air Force and 100 Coast Guard.

The Command figures do not include about 23,800 7th Fleet Navy men and 200 Coast Guard sailors aboard ships off the Vietnam coast.

89,000 Children Return To Classes After Teacher Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — School days returned to normal for 89,000 children today as public school teachers returned to the classrooms following a 19-day strike for better teaching conditions.

"Everything is open and on full schedule," a school spokesman said.

Two rival teachers unions ratified an agreement hammered out under the guidance of Mayor Joseph Alioto during the Easter week vacation.

About 625 members of the 2,700-member Classroom Teachers uusociation ratified the agreement Sunday, but with reluctance.

"We go on record now to say that it is not a completely satisfactory solution or direction for future programs for the school children of San Francisco," the CTA members added in an amendment.

"Settlement on class size was not entirely the way we wanted it," said a spokesman for the CTA.

The 1,800-member American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, which initiated the walkout March 24, approved the agreement by an overwhelming voice vote at a separate mass meeting Sunday night.

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto was instrumental in bringing about a settlement of the strike. He mediated the dispute in lengthy negotiating sessions and announced on Friday that a tentative settlement had been reached.

Ratification by the school board of the "memorandum of understanding" is expected to be routine, according to spokesmen for both unions and the mayor.

Principal sections of the agreement provided for a five per cent pay raise, a reduction in the size of elementary classes by hiring new teachers, retention in the size of elementary classes by hiring new teachers, retention of teacher preparation periods, binding arbitration as the final step in a revised grievance procedure and amnesty to all teachers and school district employes who supported the strike.

It was agreed that the size of secondary classes would be maintained at their present levels. However, the district will hire 80 new elementary teachers, including some from ethnic and racial minorities, in an effort to reduce the size of classes in grades one through six.

A total of 340 district positions will be allowed to expire by way of attrition as desired by School Superintendent Thomas A. Shaheen. However, any attrition exceeding 340 positions for the 1971-72 school year will be replaced on a one-to-one basis.

Teachers will receive a three per cent pay boost and a two per cent hike in fringe benefits.

Paraprofessional training will be maintained at the present level in addition to a dental plan, sabbatical leave rights, sick leave and reimbursement of teachers for losses due to vandalism.

Also retained was the in-service program which provides a minimum of eight days per school year for specialized ethnic studies, bilingual education, drug abuse seminars and remedial reading.

Big Promise Of Faster Mail Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton M. Blount said today the new postal system will provide next-day delivery of zip-coded airmail to principal cities within a 600 mile radius and second-day delivery of 95 per cent of airmail between most major U. S. cities.

"This is the first time the Postal Service has ever stuck its neck out like this," Blount told reporters. "It's a very important first step on the road to improving service to the American people."

He also said the new Postal Service has decided to keep the separate airmail concept. The Johnson administration in 1968 proposed eliminating airmail and charging 10 cents for first class mail which normally would be delivered by air in most instances.

Airmail deposited by 4 p. m. weekdays in some 3,500 airmail-only boxes in 500 selected cities will be delivered the next day within a 600-mile radius and within two days after deposit "in virtually all principal cities in the continental United States," Blount promised.

He pledged similar delivery standards soon would be announced for first class mail.

Airmail stamps will increase from 10 cents to 11 cents and the first class stamp will be raised from six to eight cents, beginning May 16.

Blount said there is "about a 25 per cent advantage today in airmail over first class. I think this will widen that difference."

Blount said the new program would take effect April 22. He predicted a 95 per cent successful performance rate by July for the 2.25 billion pieces of airmail moved annually within the nation.

Yanks Told Fate Of China's Liu

PEKING (UPI) —American table tennis players talked and played basketball today with Chinese Communist university students who told them that ousted President Liu Shao-chi was alive but "his thought is dead."

The 15-member U.S. contingent stopped off at Chinghua University on the way to see the Great Wall of China. They were delayed for about five hours as they talked with the students and toured the university grounds in Peking.

After eating a late lunch at the university, the Americans piled into cars and two buses and traveled to the Great Wall.

The American ping pong team has yet to play a formal match, but officials said the U.S. players, who arrived Saturday on an unprecedented visit, would play here Tuesday afternoon and then leave for Shanghai on Wednesday.

The highlight of the day for the Americans was the trip to the university.

They left their hotel about 9 a.m. and reached the university at 10 a.m. where they were greeted by the school's Revolutionary Committee members, teachers, students and school workers.

The Americans sat in a reception room around a table with a white table cloth, smoking cigarettes and sipping black Chinese tea. Included in the welcoming group was Prof. Chen Wei-chang, who worked in the jet propulsion laboratory at the California Institute of Technology from 1941 to 1946 before returning to mainland China.

Later, the Americans were taken on a tour of the school grounds and they chatted with a number of other teachers in their late 50's and 60's who had studied in the States.

When they stopped off at a "727 truck" factory, Graham Steenhoven of Detroit, president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, climbed up into the cab of one of the trucks and drove it around.

The "727" stands for July 7, 1968, when the first propaganda team came in to help run the school and unite two disputing factions during the Cultural Revolution.

On their way back from the factory, the Americans ambled into an open basketball class and paused to try a few shots.

After visiting a computer transistor circuit workshop, the Americans came across the school's indoor gym, where they spent 15 minutes trading ping pong shots with Chinese students.

Dick Miles, who was the American table tennis champion nine times, joined a Chinese student in a spontaneous doubles match against Errol Resek of New York City and another Chinese student.

The informal, rambling tour of the university continued, but the Americans came across another gym where the school basketball team was practicing. The Americans again joined the play and tossed a few balls into the net.

During a long lunch, which consisted of sweet and sour carp, meat dumplings, north China steamed bread, rice, fried prawns, cold meats, pork and vegetables, as well as soda pop, the Americans broke up into groups of four and five and sat among Chinese students and professors.

Asked about the fate of Liu Shao-chi, one member of the school Revolutionary Committee, Chih Chwun, 37, replied:

"His thought is dead, but he is alive. What we criticize are his revisionist ideas."

Asked if Liu was being "re-educated," Chih said:

"Yes, he must get some re-education. All this is common knowledge in China."

Another Chinese student was asked when the Chinese National Assembly will open—it has not been called even though the deadline for convening it has passed.

The student replied: "When the time is ripe."

Included in the welcoming group was Prof. Chen Wei-chang, who worked in the jet propulsion laboratory at the California Institute of Technology from 1941 to 1946 before returning to mainland China.

Later, the Americans were taken on a tour of the school grounds and they chatted with a number of other teachers in their late 50's and 60's who had studied in the States.

When they stopped off at a "727 truck" factory, Graham Steenhoven of Detroit, president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, climbed up into the cab of one of the trucks and drove it around.

The "727" stands for July 7, 1968, when the first propaganda team came in to help run the school and unite two disputing factions during the Cultural Revolution.

On their way back from the factory, the Americans ambled into an open basketball class and paused to try a few shots.

After visiting a computer transistor circuit workshop, the Americans came across the school's indoor gym, where they spent 15 minutes trading ping pong shots with Chinese students.

Dick Miles, who was the American table tennis champion nine times, joined a Chinese student in a spontaneous doubles match against Errol Resek of New York City and another Chinese student.

The informal, rambling tour of the university continued, but the Americans came across another gym where the school basketball team was practicing. The Americans again joined the play and tossed a few balls into the net.

During a long lunch, which consisted of sweet and sour carp, meat dumplings, north China steamed bread, rice, fried prawns, cold meats, pork and vegetables, as well as soda pop, the Americans broke up into groups of four and five and sat among Chinese students and professors.

Asked about the fate of Liu Shao-chi, one member of the school Revolutionary Committee, Chih Chwun, 37, replied:

"His thought is dead, but he is alive. What we criticize are his revisionist ideas."

Asked if Liu was being "re-educated," Chih said:

"Yes, he must get some re-education. All this is common knowledge in China."

Another Chinese student was asked when the Chinese National Assembly will open—it has not been called even though the deadline for convening it has passed.

The student replied: "When the time is ripe."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Ceylon Rebellion

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)—Combined military and police security forces using planes and helicopters supplied by India hace killed about 500 insurgents trying to seize control of the country, a government spokesman reported today.

The insurgents, mostly unemployed leftist youths, call themselves Che Guevarists after the late Cuban revolutionary. They struck against the government of Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike last week with a series of attacks on police stations and government offices.

A government spokesman reported earlier the situation was perilous and India agreed to send planes and helicopters to try to put down the rebellion. The government has imposed a curfew from 4 p.m. to 6 a.m. and troops were ordered to shoot curfew violators on sight.

Wiretap Success

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government has been able to seize about $14 million in illegal drugs since the Nixon administration began a more general use of telephone wiretaps, according to the director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

John Ingersoll said there have been 40 wiretaps during the last two years authorized under provisions of the 1968 Safe Streets Act.

In each case the wiretap requires authorization from Attorney General John N. Mitchell and then a court order. Ramsey Clark, Mitchell's predecessor in the Johnson administration, eschewed the wiretap authority and Ingersoll, who has served both administrations, began to use it only after Nixon took office.

Ingersoll, 41, said in an interview the wiretaps have "accounted for the arrest of about 190 persons up to the end of March, 1971. They've also accounted for the seizure of 50 pounds of heroin, 30 pounds of cocaine and 902 grams of LSD —that's $14 million worth."

Election Setback

TOKYO (UPI)—Tokyo voters handed conservative Prime Minister Eisaku Sato a sharp setback today when they overwhelmingly re-elected leftist Ryokichi Minobe as governor of the world's largest city.

Minobe, a Marxist, swamped Sato's handpicked candidate, Akira Hatano, by a two to one margin. Minobe received more than 3.5 million votes, the highest number ever given to a public figure in Japan. Hatano received 1.9 million.

Sato, who mounted an unprecedented campaign to oust Minobe, is not elected directly by the people, but became prime minister when members of the Liberal Democratic party (LDP) voted him party chief.

The prime minister also suffered a setback in Osaka, the country's second largest city, where another leftist, Ryoichi Kuroda, ousted the LDP incumbent, Gisen Sato, who had served as Osaka mayor for 12 years.

Nol Returns

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Prime Minister Lon Nol, still feeling the effects of a stroke suffered Feb. 8, returned to Cambodia today from Honolulu where he underwent two months of medical treatment.

Lon Nol arrived aboard a U.S. Navy DC6 at Pochentong Airport where he was greeted by acting Prime Minister Gen. Sirik Matak, U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank and about 1,000 other well-wishers.

The prime minister looked healthy but needed help in getting around and sat down in a wheelchair after taking a few halting steps.

Bomb In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A small bomb was thrown at troops on the outskirts of Londonderry's Catholic Bogside area early today. Security chiefs expressed the hope, however, that things would calm down now that Easter was over.

"We hope the worst moments are behind us and we are now over the hump," an army spokesman said.

There were no injuries in today's incident but stone-throwing Roman Catholics in Londonderry injured 14 British soldiers Sunday. Five had bones broken, including two men with broken legs and another with a factured jaw. Seven were back on duty today. Six policemen were injured at Lurgan.

Hoffa To Prison

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—James Hoffa, Teamsters Union official furloughed from a federal prison, spent Easter Sunday with his ailing wife whose condition appeared to be improving.

Doctors at the University of California Medical Center, where Mrs. Hoffa was taken last month after a heart attack, declared she was doing "quite well."

Attorney Morris Shenker said his client would return today to the penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., where he is serving a 13-year sentence for jury tampering. He was released Wednesday to come here.

Clash Feared

New Delhi (UPI) —Indian and West Pakistan troops stood within nine miles of each other along the East Pakistan border today, increasing fears of a confrontation between the two nations.

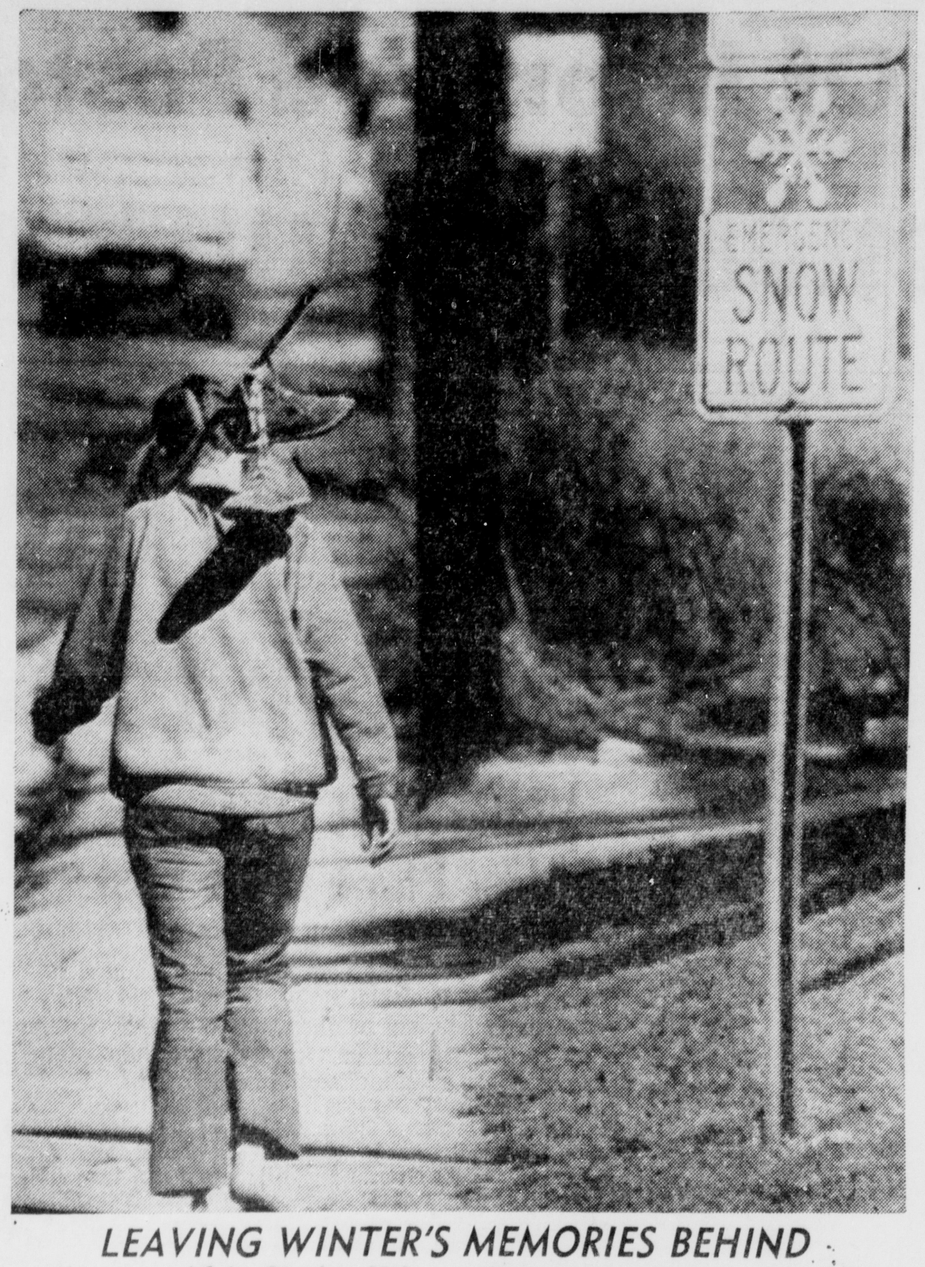
Official Pakistan Radio said Sunday Pakistani troops had "wiped out" two companies of Indian border security forces in the Benapole area two miles inside East Pakistan Saturday.

India denied the claim and accused Pakistan of kidnaping three of its border security guards who had been on a routine patrol in the Petrapole region on the Indian side of the border. The Indian government demanded the release of the men.

747 Jet Evacuated After Bomb Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A telephoned bomb threat forced an Eastern Air Lines 747 jet to make an emergency landing at Dulles International Airport Sunday.

The plane's 283 passengers were evacuated and a search of the craft turned up nothing. The plane was en route from New York to Miami when the threat was telephoned to Eastern's office in Newark, N.J.



LEAVING WINTER'S MEMORIES BEHIND

A young girl in Omaha, Neb., hung her shoes from a stick over her shoulder and headed down the street barefoot as temperatures climbed toward the eighties, erasing memories of recent blizzards that paralyzed the state. The emergency snow route signs were left to testify to one of the bitterest winters in the last few years in the Midwest.

Gunmen Invade Commune, Kill Youth In Cold Blood

DETROIT (UPI) —Police are seeking four gunmen who invaded an inner city commune, ordered 19 young people to strip naked while they were robbed and fatally shot one of the youths when he moved to quiet a dog.

The bullet which fatally wounded Franklin Abramson, 23, of Mesick, also inflicted minor wounds on Lynn Hachey, 19, St. Clair Shores and Thomas Beaman, 20, Detroit.

The youths said four intruders, armed with a rifle, shotgun, revolver and what appeared to be a submachine-gun, invaded the near North Side home about 1 a.m. Sunday demanding money and drugs. The residents were ordered into a downstrais living room where a baby slept in a crib, ordered to disrobe and forced to sit in a circle under the guard of two of the gunmen while the other two ransacked the house.

Alan King, 20, one of the residents, said the shooting occured when Abramson reached over to quiet his German shepherd.

"The guy with the rifle kicked Frank in the shin and said, 'We don't want any heroes,'" Beaman said. "Frank rolled back and then leaned forward to get his balance and the guy fired.

"Everyone just sat there and watched him get it right in the head," King said. "We didn't dare say anything. They wouldn't even cover the body."

After collecting about $175 in cash and checks, the bandits herded the youths back to upstairs bedrooms and ordered them to lie on the floor and beds face down.

"We thought they were going to kill us all," King said. He said that after they heard the gunmen leave "a few people got up and started crawling around to check if it was safe" before calling police.

A friend said Abramson had lived in the commune for a year until the two of them moved to a farm near Mesick in Wexford County about three months ago. "Frank really disliked the city and that's why we moved up north," the friend, who was not identified said. "He was going to do truck farming and already had starting planting. He had a Jeep with a snowplow and did work with that. I got a horse."

The friend said he and Abramson drove to Detroit Friday. "It's ironic," he said. "When we were driving down here Friday, he said, 'I can't wait to get back and breathe some dirty city air for a change.'"

Seven Die In Chain Crash On Freeway

DETROIT (UPI)—A car reportedly traveling at 100 miles an hour jumped a freeway median and landed atop another automobile Sunday, setting off a chain-reaction collision in which seven persons died and 19 were injured.

A 5-year-old boy was the only survivor in a car in which his parents and two grandparents perished.

The victims were identified as John Giddens, about 20, Ecorse; Helen Hawkins, 25, no address; William Westphal, 28, Dearborn Heights; Dr. Jack Derderian, 40, Wayne; his wife, Margaret, 40; his father, Hagop Albert Derderian, 78; and the elder Derderian's wife, Dorothy, 75, Dearborn Heights.

Miss Hawkins and three other persons were passengers in Giddens' car, which police said was traveling eastbound at a high rate of speed, when it jumped the guard rail and landed on the Derderian auto in the westbound lanes. Westphal was killed when his auto slammed into the wreckage of the two cars.

The Derderian's son, Lance, 5, was hospitalized in critical condition.

New Soviet Aircraft Reported In Egypt

By United Press International

An Israeli source said today in Tel Aviv Egypt had received "new types of aircraft" from the Soviet Union and that they were manned by Soviet crews. He declined to specify the make of the new combat jets involved, but previous reports said they were MIG23s which can outperform American F4 Phantoms.

The disclosure came as political sources said Prime Minister Golda Meir may call a special meeting of her cabinet this weekend to discuss the final draft of Israel's counterplan for reopening the Suez Canal under and interim settlement of the Middle East conflict.

The Israeli source, commenting on newspaper reports Egypt has acquired MIG23s and possibly an advanced version of the Sukhoi-7 fighter-bomber, said "it constituted a qualitative contribution" to Egypt's military might.

The source said the Egyptians were preparing for the resumption of war although they were still pursuing diplomatic efforts to end the Middle East conflict. He said the latest Soviet arms shipments to Egypt also were meant to offset recent acquisition of modern weaponry by Israel.

Newsmen were not permitted to identify the Israeli source in any way. He declined to comment on a report in the Jerusalem Post that the latest acquisitions by Egypt of advanced weaponry "is likely to harden the military's stand against any pullback from occupied Arab territory."

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told a televised news conference Sunday night he "could not deny" reports MIG23s have reached Egypt.

FBI Checks Daughter Of Rep. Reuss

BOSTON (UPI)—The FBI checked into the activities of the daughter of Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., the Citizens Commission to Investigate the FBI said in the Boston Sunday Globe.

The commission, which claims responsibility for looting FBI files from the Media, Pa. office, mailed a third packet Saturday to Michael Kenney of the Globe. It contained eight documents, one a report on Jacqueline Reuss, 21, a student at Swarthmore College, Swarthmore. Pa.

(In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, where Reuss is attending an economic conference, the congressman issued a statement in which he said the FBI had informed him in mid-March about the theft from their Media office.

"The pieces of paper, according to the FBI representative," Reuss' statement said, "indicated that Swarthmore College, the local police, and the local credit bureau were being checked concerning certain information about Jackie given the FBI by an informer. The FBI representative informed me the investigation had been completed, and had developed that no information of a derogatory nature concerning Jackie had been uncovered.

"The FBI has an important responsibility to investigate crime. Its mission is not to compile dossiers on millions of Americans, Congressmen's daughters or not, who are accused of no wrong doing.

Airman Raises $30,000 To Help Stricken Pair

OAKLAND (UPI)—An Air Force sergeant says he raised $30,000 to aid a brother and sister stricken by a rare kidney disease in Texas in only 12 hours from servicemen in Vietnam.

Sgt. Robert L. Jones, 22, of Turlock, Calif., said he raised the money at Phanrang Air Force Base. He said one sergeant donated $1,000 from his reenlistment bonus and another soldier cancelled an order for a new car to give $450 to the cause.

Jones arrived from Vietnam Sunday and was met by his parents, his wife, Norma, and their 13-month-old son, Robert Jr., at Oakland International Airport.

"I was very surprised and proud when I heard what he had done," said Jones' pretty wife. He will have a 14-day leave with his family before returning to Vietnam.

Tired, but obviously happy, Jones flashed a $30,000 check made out to Paula Holt, 17, and her brother, Gary, 20, of Austin, Tex.

The two youths are victims of acute nephritis, an hereditary kidney disease which requires them to spend 15 hours a week channeling their blood through a machine to keep them alive.

The machine costs the H.V. Holt family at least $360 a month for each of the two youths. The family has been unable to meet the costs.

"I read about their situation in the newspaper," Jones said before leaving Saigon. "I kept thinking about them. I didn't exactly feel sorry for them, but I thought they needed help."

"I never expected the turnout we finally got," he told reporters in Oakland. "Everybody came through."

"I expected about $4,000. It just fireballed out and went overboard." He expects the fund to eventually reach $50,000.

Jones said he telephoned the Holt youths from Saigon before boarding a World Airways plane for a free flight to Oakland. He said he found them "grateful, choked up and stunned."

Jones said he plans to arrive in Austin tonight to present the check personally to the Holt family.

Help meet the demands of stress

New STRESS-B-VITE with Over 800 High-Potency Pellets in Each Capsule for Prolonged Release.

You may not know it, but right now at this very moment your body may be coping with a stressful situation. Stress can come in many forms. Your body is under stress when bacteria or viruses can overcome the normal body defenses to cause infection. Your body may be under stress when it is necessary to expend a great deal of physical energy such as running, bicycling, or otherwise working physically hard. At these times the cells and the tissues may require the need for additional vitamins—either for repair or because of increased metabolism. If you are an active and alive person on the go, Stress-B-Vite should be just what you are looking for to supply these additional vitamins when they are needed. Stress-B-Vite is a specially formulated capsule whose vitamins are released over a more prolonged period of time rather than all at once. Although medical opinion is divided, many nutritionists feel it may be better to get your vitamins over a longer period of the day. Since Stress-B-Vite is composed of hundreds and hundreds of tiny vitamin pellets that are released gradually over a longer period of time, it is, therefore, available to the body in a time-released fashion. If the body should require more vitamins for any reason, Stress-B-Vite Capsules are like a temporary warehouse that slowly releases these B Complex vitamins so that they can be absorbed. Remember, the vitamins of the B Complex are not stored in the body since they are water soluble, anything that is not used is pretty quickly eliminated. Universal Nutritions has developed Stress-B-Vite Capsules on the other hand which slows this process up so that if the body requires these vitamins, they may be ready, willing and able to be utilized. These prolonged release capsules are especially prepared vitamin packed pellets which contain Vitamins B1, B2, B6, B12, C, and other nutritional factors. Take Stress-B-Vite Capsules to help meet your nutritional requirements every day. Available at only $2.98 for 25 day supply.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Ceylon Rebellion

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)—Combined military and police security forces using planes and helicopters supplied by India hace killed about 500 insurgents trying to seize control of the country, a government spokesman reported today.

The insurgents, mostly unemployed leftist youths, call themselves Che Guevarists after the late Cuban revolutionary. They struck against the government of Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike last week with a series of attacks on police stations and government offices.

A government spokesman reported earlier the situation was perilous and India agreed to send planes and helicopters to try to put down the rebellion. The government has imposed a curfew from 4 p.m. to 6 a.m. and troops were ordered to shoot curfew violators on sight.

Wiretap Success

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government has been able to seize about $14 million in illegal drugs since the Nixon administration began a more general use of telephone wiretaps, according to the director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

John Ingersoll said there have been 40 wiretaps during the last two years authorized under provisions of the 1968 Safe Streets Act.

In each case the wiretap requires authorization from Attorney General John N. Mitchell and then a court order. Ramsey Clark, Mitchell's predecessor in the Johnson administration, eschewed the wiretap authority and Ingersoll, who has served both administrations, began to use it only after Nixon took office.

Ingersoll, 41, said in an interview the wiretaps have "accounted for the arrest of about 190 persons up to the end of March, 1971. They've also accounted for the seizure of 50 pounds of heroin, 30 pounds of cocaine and 902 grams of LSD —that's $14 million worth."

Election Setback

TOKYO (UPI)—Tokyo voters handed conservative Prime Minister Eisaku Sato a sharp setback today when they overwhelmingly re-elected leftist Ryokichi Minobe as governor of the world's largest city.

Minobe, a Marxist, swamped Sato's handpicked candidate, Akira Hatano, by a two to one margin. Minobe received more than 3.5 million votes, the highest number ever given to a public figure in Japan. Hatano received 1.9 million.

Sato, who mounted an unprecedented campaign to oust Minobe, is not elected directly by the people, but became prime minister when members of the Liberal Democratic party (LDP) voted him party chief.

The prime minister also suffered a setback in Osaka, the country's second largest city, where another leftist, Ryoichi Kuroda, ousted the LDP incumbent, Gisen Sato, who had served as Osaka mayor for 12 years.

Bomb In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A small bomb was thrown at troops on the outskirts of Londonderry's Catholic Bogside area early today. Security chiefs expressed the hope, however, that things would calm down now that Easter was over.

There were no injuries in today's incident but stone-throwing Roman Catholics in Londonderry injured 14 British soldiers Sunday. Five had bones broken, including two men with broken legs and another with a factured jaw. Seven were back on duty today. Six policemen were injured at Lurgan.

Clash Feared

New Delhi (UPI) —Indian and West Pakistan troops stood within nine miles of each other along the East Pakistan border today, increasing fears of a confrontation between the two nations.

Official Pakistan Radio said Sunday Pakistani troops had "wiped out" two companies of Indian border security forces in the Benapole area two miles inside East Pakistan Saturday.

India denied the claim and accused Pakistan of kidnaping three of its border security guards who had been on a routine patrol in the Petrapole region on the Indian side of the border. The Indian government demanded the release of the men.

FBI Checks Daughter Of Rep. Reuss

BOSTON (UPI)—The FBI checked into the activities of the daughter of Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., the Citizens Commission to Investigate the FBI said in the Boston Sunday Globe.

The commission, which claims responsibility for looting FBI files from the Media, Pa. office, mailed a third packet Saturday to Michael Kenney of the Globe. It contained eight documents, one a report on Jacqueline Reuss, 21, a student at Swarthmore College, Swarthmore. Pa.

(In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, where Reuss is attending an economic conference, the congressman issued a statement in which he said the FBI had informed him in mid-March about the theft from their Media office.

"The pieces of paper, according to the FBI representative," Reuss' statement said, "indicated that Swarthmore College, the local police, and the local credit bureau were being checked concerning certain information about Jackie given the FBI by an informer. The FBI representative informed me the investigation had been completed, and had developed that no information of a derogatory nature concerning Jackie had been uncovered.

"The FBI has an important responsibility to investigate crime. Its mission is not to compile dossiers on millions of Americans, Congressmen's daughters or not, who are accused of no wrong doing.

Airman Raises $30,000 To Help Stricken Pair

OAKLAND (UPI)—An Air Force sergeant says he raised $30,000 to aid a brother and sister stricken by a rare kidney disease in Texas in only 12 hours from servicemen in Vietnam.

Sgt. Robert L. Jones, 22, of Turlock, Calif., said he raised the money at Phanrang Air Force Base. He said one sergeant donated $1,000 from his reenlistment bonus and another soldier cancelled an order for a new car to give $450 to the cause.

Jones arrived from Vietnam Sunday and was met by his parents, his wife, Norma, and their 13-month-old son, Robert Jr., at Oakland International Airport.

"I was very surprised and proud when I heard what he had done," said Jones' pretty wife. He will have a 14-day leave with his family before returning to Vietnam.

Tired, but obviously happy, Jones flashed a $30,000 check made out to Paula Holt, 17, and her brother, Gary, 20, of Austin, Tex.

The two youths are victims of acute nephritis, an hereditary kidney disease which requires them to spend 15 hours a week channeling their blood through a machine to keep them alive.

The machine costs the H.V. Holt family at least $360 a month for each of the two youths. The family has been unable to meet the costs.

"I read about their situation in the newspaper," Jones said before leaving Saigon. "I kept thinking about them. I didn't exactly feel sorry for them, but I thought they needed help."

"I never expected the turnout we finally got," he told reporters in Oakland. "Everybody came through."

"I expected about $4,000. It just fireballed out and went overboard." He expects the fund to eventually reach $50,000.

Jones said he telephoned the Holt youths from Saigon before boarding a World Airways plane for a free flight to Oakland. He said he found them "grateful, choked up and stunned."

Jones said he plans to arrive in Austin tonight to present the check personally to the Holt family.

Help meet the demands of stress

New STRESS-B-VITE with Over 800 High-Potency Pellets in Each Capsule for Prolonged Release.

You may not know it, but right now at this very moment your body may be coping with a stressful situation. Stress can come in many forms. Your body is under stress when bacteria or viruses can overcome the normal body defenses to cause infection. Your body may be under stress when it is necessary to expend a great deal of physical energy such as running, bicycling, or otherwise working physically hard. At these times the cells and the tissues may require the need for additional vitamins—either for repair or because of increased metabolism. If you are an active and alive person on the go, Stress-B-Vite should be just what you are looking for to supply these additional vitamins when they are needed. Stress-B-Vite is a specially formulated capsule whose vitamins are released over a more prolonged period of time rather than all at once. Although medical opinion is divided, many nutritionists feel it may be better to get your vitamins over a longer period of the day. Since Stress-B-Vite is composed of hundreds and hundreds of tiny vitamin pellets that are released gradually over a longer period of time, it is, therefore, available to the body in a time-released fashion. If the body should require more vitamins for any reason, Stress-B-Vite Capsules are like a temporary warehouse that slowly releases these B Complex vitamins so that they can be absorbed. Remember, the vitamins of the B Complex are not stored in the body since they are water soluble, anything that is not used is pretty quickly eliminated. Universal Nutritions has developed Stress-B-Vite Capsules on the other hand which slows this process up so that if the body requires these vitamins, they may be ready, willing and able to be utilized. These prolonged release capsules are especially prepared vitamin packed pellets which contain Vitamins B1, B2, B6, B12, C, and other nutritional factors. Take Stress-B-Vite Capsules to help meet your nutritional requirements every day. Available at only $2.98 for 25 day supply.

OUT OF SORTS — The elephant Surus, property of Spanish surrealist painter Salvador Dali, frets in his cage at the Barcelona Zoo where keepers are having trouble with the pachyderm. It seems unhappy and ill-tempered, apparently dreaming of happier days in Africa. Dali once planned to ride Surus over the Pyrenees mountains in a Hannibal-style trek but aborted the journey and turned the animal over to the zoo, which is now awaiting Dali's return from an extended trip to the United States to settle the matter.

Showdown In Health Fuss Due Tomorrow

The big confrontation between Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer, and County Administrator Alan Bruce, who wants her fired, is expected tomorrow before the board of supervisors.

Dr. Albrecht, who has been health officer for 17 years, was accused on March 19 of being an inept administrator. Bruce recommended the dismissal of Dr. Albrecht and two of her aides, Natalie K. Posner, public health educator, and Philippa Denning-Kemp, investigator in the venereal disease clinic.

Mrs. Posner, however, was exonerated late last week of charges that she had been collecting pay from two counties by doctoring time sheets.

Dr. Albrecht, who conducted an investigation of her own department, categorically denied Bruce's charges of possible fraud, nepotism and of issuing misleading information.

The supervisors also will seek to save more than $100,000 per year by considering use of electronic devices, instead of stenographic reporters, to record court proceedings.

Bruce will recommend support of legislation that would permit use of the electronic devices.

These two items, plus a long agenda, are expected to keep the supervisors busy from 9 a.m. until evening at the Civic Center Administration Building.

Other items on the agenda include:

MOTORCYCLES — Appointment of an ad hoc committee to study areas that could be used for motorcycle riding and to suggest rules and standards to be observed by cyclists.

PROJECTS — The county Administrator will submit his annual recommendation on what road improvements and building construction are needed for the next five years.

INSURANCE — Marin Aviation Commission will ask for a delay before the county terminates its lease of airport space to Marin Aviation Inc., one of two fixed base operators at Gnoss Field. The county administrator contends that Marin Aviation has failed to comply with the agreement to carry certain insurance.

PARKS — Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission will discuss with the supervisors the future of park acquisition and development in Marin County. The informal discussion is set for 11 a.m.

HOUSING — A public hearing will be held at 2:30 p.m. on a proposed housing policy statement, drawn up by the county planning commission's housing subcommittee.

Painter Dali's Elephant Posing Big Problem At Barcelona's Zoo

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI)— Surrealist painter Salvador Dali has created a very real problem for the Barcelona Zoo by parking his pet elephant there and then more or less forgetting about it.

The elephant —once Dali's vehicle for a quickly aborted, Hannibal-style trek across the Pyrenees mountains —is unhappy, bad-humored and wants out. But he is Dali's property, and zoo director Antonio Fonch can do nothing about the problem until the master returns from an extended trip to the United States.

Fonch said that Surus, as the five-year-old animal is called, "has been a pain in the neck to us all".

Small wonder. Surus is the only bachelor elephant in the Barcelona zoo and in desperate need of a mate. The two-ton pachyderm has also outgrown his pen during the three years since Dali parked him in the zoo.

"If he were ours", Fonch sighed, "we would ship him to another zoo."

But Fonch cannot do anything without Dali's permission. The last time he appealed to the painter to, please, fetch your elephant, Dali suggested that Surus be given a permanent home at the Dali Museum at the nearby town of Figueras.

"Of course no elephant could live in a museum", said Figueras Mayor Ramon Guardiola "I call the idea totally impracticable."

But where else with Surus?

Dali, at one time, had tried to get rid of the elephant by donating it to the citizens of Figueras and suggesting that it be lodged in the town hall.

When the citizens balked, Dali lodged Surus in the town's bullring. Although Dali never said so it is possible that the 72-year-old gagman-artist was thinking of killing two flies with one stroke —reviving the dying Spanish bullfighting scene and getting rid of Surus.

But before the next big fiesta de toros was staged, the elephant was evicted from the bullring and shipped to the Barcelona zoo.

There he grudgingly munches his daily hay ration, and possibly reminiscences about the days in 1967 when—under the eyes of television cameras and countless excited onlookers —Dali tried to coax him across the mountains.

The painter had named the elephant after the only animal that survived Hannibal's Roman campaign, and in the pyrenees he tried to repeat the feat of the carthaginian general who crossed the mountains with an elephant-mounted army 2,185 years ago.

But in contrast to Dali, Surus proved to be camera-shy and extremely sensitive to crowds and publicity. He disliked the unfamiliar mountain scenery and threw a fit when Dali's entourage began to litter his path with rose petals.

The pachyderm added insult to injury by refusing to let Dali mount on his back. After a torturous four-day, 19-mile trek Dali abandoned his plan, and both he and the elephant limped home.

Or more or less home, as far as Surus is concerned.

CORTE MADERA STREET PLAN

An artist's rendering of proposed reconstruction of Tamalpais Drive in Corte Madera shows what the town's main street may look like in a year or two. Under discussion for more than a year by the town council, the project will be discussed by the planning commission today at 7:30 p.m. at town hall. If planning proceeds on schedule, the project could go to bid by late May.

Feud Looms On Flood Work Costs

Cost estimates for two flood control projects in Ross will be presented to the Ross Valley Flood Control Advisory board Friday amid indications the presentations may ignite a bitter feud.

Charles Murphy, county flood control engineer, said it will take about $350,000 to correct flooding on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and at the Ross Common, according to an outside consultant who recently completed his assessment of the two projects.

At least two of the advisory board members — Councilman Neil R. Brixon of Larkspur and Mayor Edward W. Colthurst of Corte Madera — have indicated they oppose authorizing the money for the two projects.

The opposition is certain to bring immediate reaction from Mayor Frederick S. Allen of Ross, another board member.

Five years ago, when the advisory board was created, Ross joined on condition that the two projects be included in the overall flood control program.

Colthurst, however, said Saturday he would "certainly raise some questions" about authorizing the money.

"I believe in local jurisdictions taking care of their own particular problems," Colthurst said. "I think the $350,000 they want is just about $350,000 more than I'm going to vote for."

Colthurst said Brixon has also voiced some reservations about the $350,000 figure.

The flood control zone's tax rate is now 5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, so authorization of the $350,000 would necessitate a major increase in that rate. The nickel rate raises about $50,000 a year, Murphy said.

Colthurst said the original estimate of completing the two projects, supplied five years ago, was $65,000.

The flood control board will meet at 8 a.m. in Ross Town Hall to receive the two reports.

Bill Would Ease Real Estate Aim

SACRAMENTO (UPI) – Assemblyman Leon Ralph wants to make it easier for unemployed aerospace workers and others to find jobs in real estate, despite industry efforts to close top spots in the profession to anyone without a college degree.

The industry and the state Real Estate Department are working toward eventually limiting top broker licenses only to those individuals with a four-year college degree in real estate.

The aim is to increase "professionalism" but Ralph contends that qualified candidates for real estate broker license can be separated from the unqualified through use of a well-written examination.

The Democratic legislator, chairman of the Governmental Organization Committee, represents the Watts area of Los Angeles which has high unemployment.

He has proposed legislation, to be introduced this week, to relax the requirements on formal education. He said they will block persons such as a college-educated but unemployed aerospace engineer from top jobs in real estate.

Current law provides that starting next January, most applicants for a broker's license must have two years of experience as a salesman and pass four courses from an accredited college. This is in addition to a six-hour test administered by the state.

Joseph Hofmann, senior deputy in charge of examination for the state Real Estate Department, explained, "Our plan is that eight or nine years from now a college degree with an emphasis in real estate will be required for our top broker."

"Eventually, there will be no other alternative except the four-year degree with a major in real estate," he said, adding that a related degree in law or business with an emphasis on real estate "will be about the only kinds of exceptions."

But Ralph's bill would eliminate the requirement for two of the four courses. A license candidate still would be required to pass the state examination.

"This bill is not going to turn loose on the public any unqualified salesmen or brokers," Ralph insisted. "It will make it a little easier for people to enter the field."

Ralph's bill would leave unchanged the current requirements for college courses in real estate practices and real estate law. But it would revoke the requirement that applicants also complete college courses in real estate finance and real estate appraisal.

He argues that qualified individuals who have served as salesmen can learn the business and become competent brokers without stringent formal educational requirements.

If a broker's examination is written correctly, he contends only the qualified could pass it regardless of where they obtained their education.

Hoffman said the four-year college course requirement is a "move toward a professionalization plan" that was devised in 1960.

"Realtors of the future will be much more sophisticated and concerned about the quality of life," he said.

Presently, there are two real estate employment classifications, salesman and broker. A broker can own an office and hire salesmen but a salesman cannot hire other salesmen.

Hofmann said the industry plan would create three classifications, salesman, broker and "super" or master broker. The four-year degree would be required for master broker.

Additional minor educational requirements would be imposed on the lesser jobs.

Family Dinner On Decline?

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The family dinner hour fast is becoming a "thing of the past," a Michigan State University nutrition expert says.

"It's part of the pressure under which we're living," said Dr. Dena C. Cederquist of MSU's Department of Food Science.

About the only time parents and children sit down together at the table anymore is on Sundays, holidays and other special occasions, she said.

"I personally think that much is lost when families don't sit down together to eat," Dr. Cederquist said. "More than food is consumed."

20 YEARS AGO

The Great Truman, MacArthur Feud

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The general said, "There is no substitute for victory." The President said, "We do not want to widen the conflict."

Thus was the stage set, 20 years ago this week, for President Harry S. Truman to fire Gen. Douglas MacArthur, precipitating a controversy that raged through the nation until long after the Korean War, which brought it on, had subsided.

MacArthur, supreme allied commander in the Pacific during World War II and subsequently chief executive of the occupation forces in Japan, was put in charge of United Nations troops when, on June 25, 1950, a total of 10 North Korean divisions invaded South Korea.

In the narrowest sense, the invasion was a civil war in a divided nation. But it also was a major crisis involving the two power blocs that emerged from World War II. In Some measure the conflict paralleled the present Vietnamese War.

Despite heavy odds, MacArthur's forces stopped the Communist advance, made a surprise landing at Inchon far to the enemy rear and broke out of the Pusan perimeter. Within the next two months the North Korean army was routed and almost destroyed.

Then, in November, the Chinese Communists intervened, touching off what MacArthur called a "new war," forcing U.N. troops to withdraw south of the 38th parallel. Shortly thereafter MacArthur, by implication, threatened to bomb and blockade Red China. He also called for Chinese commanders to discuss armistice terms.

Truman took strong exception to what he considered a soldier's intervention into diplomatic affairs. On Jan. 31 he informed MacArthur that Asia was not the only problem facing the nation as Russia was threatening Europe and the Middle East.

MacArthur held out for what his critics termed "all-out war," which MacArthur supporters said would bring victory in Korea and lasting peace throughout Asia.

With U.N. troops, mostly American, facing upwards of 400,000 Red Chinese, in addition to Soviet-equipped North Korean divisions, Truman put MacArthur under orders to quit issuing public statements.

But on April 5 Rep. Joseph Martin, R-Mass., made public a letter he received from MacArthur that expressed the general's disapproval of the administration's goals. The President considered this the last straw. He replaced MacArthur with Lt. Gen. Matthew Ridgway and in a broadcast to the nation said, "So far we have prevented World War III. We do not want to widen the conflict." Then the President braced for reaction.

MacArthur's removal produced an instant emotional and political uproar. The general had many supporters, some in high political position. There was talk of running him for president.

The general's return to America brought mass frenzy. There were wild receptions for him in Honolulu, San Francisco, Chicago, New York and, finally, Washington. Television, new then, carried the tumultuous scenes and the general's words to millions across the land.

On April 19 the general's homecoming culminated in an address before a joint session of Congress. "Once war is forced upon us," MacArthur said, "there is no other alternative than to apply every available means to bring it to a swift end. War's very object is victory — not prolonged indecision. In war, indeed, there can be no substitute for victory."

Then, remarking that he was closing 52 years of Army service, the general quoted from a barracks ballad: "Old soldiers never die; they just fade away."

MacArthur's ouster was investigated by a Senate committee but this evolved into an inconclusive debate over far eastern policy. The general, meanwhile, delivered a series of speeches criticizing "internal subversion, corruption and detailed regimentation" among the federal agencies.

MacArthur lived on for 12 years. He died at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, April 5, 1964, and was buried at Norfolk, Va.

Bill Would Ease Real Estate Aim

SACRAMENTO (UPI) – Assemblyman Leon Ralph wants to make it easier for unemployed aerospace workers and others to find jobs in real estate, despite industry efforts to close top spots in the profession to anyone without a college degree.

The industry and the state Real Estate Department are working toward eventually limiting top broker licenses only to those individuals with a four-year college degree in real estate.

The aim is to increase "professionalism" but Ralph contends that qualified candidates for real estate broker license can be separated from the unqualified through use of a well-written examination.

The Democratic legislator, chairman of the Governmental Organization Committee, represents the Watts area of Los Angeles which has high unemployment.

He has proposed legislation, to be introduced this week, to relax the requirements on formal education. He said they will block persons such as a college-educated but unemployed aerospace engineer from top jobs in real estate.

Current law provides that starting next January, most applicants for a broker's license must have two years of experience as a salesman and pass four courses from an accredited college. This is in addition to a six-hour test administered by the state.

Joseph Hofmann, senior deputy in charge of examination for the state Real Estate Department, explained, "Our plan is that eight or nine years from now a college degree with an emphasis in real estate will be required for our top broker."

"Eventually, there will be no other alternative except the four-year degree with a major in real estate," he said, adding that a related degree in law or business with an emphasis on real estate "will be about the only kinds of exceptions."

But Ralph's bill would eliminate the requirement for two of the four courses. A license candidate still would be required to pass the state examination.

"This bill is not going to turn loose on the public any unqualified salesmen or brokers," Ralph insisted. "It will make it a little easier for people to enter the field."

Ralph's bill would leave unchanged the current requirements for college courses in real estate practices and real estate law. But it would revoke the requirement that applicants also complete college courses in real estate finance and real estate appraisal.

He argues that qualified individuals who have served as salesmen can learn the business and become competent brokers without stringent formal educational requirements.

If a broker's examination is written correctly, he contends only the qualified could pass it regardless of where they obtained their education.

Hoffman said the four-year college course requirement is a "move toward a professionalization plan" that was devised in 1966.

"Realtors of the future will be much more sophisticated and concerned about the quality of life," he said.

Presently, there are two real estate employment classifications, salesman and broker. A broker can own an office and hire salesmen but a salesman cannot hire other salesmen.

Hofmann said the industry plan would create three classifications, salesman, broker and "super" or master broker. The four-year degree would be required for master broker.

Additional minor educational requirements would be imposed on the lesser jobs.

Phone Call Is A Costly One

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— When a man answered the telephone at the home of Marque S. Lynche's girfriend, Lynche should have hung up.

Instead he talked with the man, an FBI agent, and wound up surrendering on a bank robbery charge.

Authorities said Lynche was wanted for the $1,300 robbery of a United California Bank branch last week. He was identified from a photograph taken by a hidden automatic camera.

The Law's Arm Is Long, Indeed

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)— Some days it just doesn't pay to get up. Ask Nathaniel L. Bailey and John Alex.

Bailey was arrested for possession of marijuana and carrying a concealed weapon after authorities stopped a car in which he was a passenger.

Alex, the driver, was booked for having an expired drivers license. When Bailey was asked for his identification, it was discovered he was wanted for contempt after failing tomakea court appearance in another case.

Family Dinner On Decline?

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The family dinner hour fast is becoming a "thing of the past," a Michigan State University nutrition expert says.

"It's part of the pressure under which we're living," said Dr. Dena C. Cederquist of MSU's Department of Food Science.

About the only time parents and children sit down together at the table anymore is on Sundays, holidays and other special occasions, she said.

"I personally think that much is lost when families don't sit down together to eat," Dr. Cederquist said. "More than food is consumed."

EASTER SAMARITANS

Indians Welcome Teen Task Force

By JEFF GREER

Two dozen Marin County teen-agers and four adults spent four days of their Easter vacation happily doing humble chores at the Round Valley Indian reservation in Mendocino County.

When it was over, "we hated to come back," declared Nancy Crawford, a Terra Linda High School co-ed.

Nancy and the other teen-agers from throughout Marin County made a sort of exploratory "service caravan" to the valley — which holds California's largest Indian reservation — to see what tasks they could perform to help the 600 Indian residents.

The trip was sponsored by the Marin YMCA. During the previous five years the YMCA had organized annual service caravans to the Monument Valley Indian reservation near the Four Corners where New Mexico, Arizona, Utah and Colorado boundaries meet.

"The teens felt they were working for the mission there, instead of for the Indians," explained Carl Jensen, program director for the Marin Y. He said the trip to the Eel River country was both to perform services and to establish lines of communication with the Indians. It was necessary to convince the reserved tribesmen to accept manpower offered by the teen-agers, Jensen said.

During much of the outing the Indians "were watching us" while the teen-agers picked up roadside litter, swept out the old Round Valley schoolhouse which has become the Indian's community center, and sought out other helpful tasks, according to Lyn Jensen, Y counselor and wife of the program director.

The Indians "kept telling us to just enjoy ourselves. They didn't realize we wanted to work," added Randy Harris, a teen-ager from Greenbrae. "We must have picked up a thousand beer cans" along the road. "We wanted to fix windows and do repairs in the old school."

The teen-agers obviously made a good impression among the tribesmen; they were invited to return to help modernize the old schoolhouse for a Head Start preschool center the Indian council plans to establish.

"When we talked to the Indians, they were very warm and friendly," young Harris and Miss Crawford agreed.

The "big" issue among youth in Round Valley and in nearby Covelo was whether the boys should wear long hair and the girls should break down the rule requiring skirts in school. The young Indians disapproved of three local youths who were letting their tresses grow, the Marin teen-agers found.

The young volunteers and their adult counselors found the reservation close-knit but clannish. Few teen-age Indians wanted to leave their community to try living elsewhere. The half-dozen tribes on the reservation lived separately, in small clusters of two or three houses "with lots of breathing room in between."

All the families prided themselves on having many children. The Indian students were active in team sports and Future Farmers of America projects in the Covelo school, but returned to their families for social activities in the evening.

"When we walked around after supper, they'd be out playing baseball with their families," the Marinites recalled.

The young YMCA volunteers did all their own household chores, living in the community center. After completing whatever volunteer tasks they could find, they split up into groups to hike in the reservation's forests, watch the Indians fish for salmon, or explore the Eel River's swimming potential.

Major social events in the mountain-girt valley are the Indian's annual rodeo in the grounds behind the old schoolhouse, and the women's annual bazaar which attracts throngs of buyers for the beadwork and other craftwork produced by the families.

Although the Indians seldom invite each other to dinner or overnight visits, the Marin teen-agers were given a party by one member of the reservation council, at which he handed out beads as souvenirs.

Council members travel often, pressing Washington and Sacramento for the Indian's self-betterment projects or on matters involving expansion of the reservation, Jensen reported.

"There's an airstrip there; I was surprised the council didn't have its own plane," he said.

The Indians strive for self-sufficiency, with each wage-earner contributing monthly "dues" for maintenance work, Indian council office staff and other projects. They have accumulated some $300,000 toward a much-needed medical center for the reservation, the Marin visitors found, and take care of impoverished or illness-stricken families out of council funds.

WORKING HOLIDAY — Carl Jensen (left) of the YMCA typed up a few notes Saturday when he and Randy Harris and Nancy Crawford visited the Independent-Journal to report on their visit to an Indian Reservation. They and other Marin youths devoted their Easter holidays to finding out what they might do for the Indians.

20 YEARS AGO

The Great Truman, MacArthur Feud

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The general said, "There is no substitute for victory." The President said, "We do not want to widen the conflict."

Thus was the stage set, 20 years ago this week, for President Harry S. Truman to fire Gen. Douglas MacArthur, precipitating a controversy that raged through the nation until long after the Korean War, which brought it on, had subsided.

MacArthur, supreme allied commander in the Pacific during World War II and subsequently chief executive of the occupation forces in Japan, was put in charge of United Nations troops when, on June 25, 1950, a total of 10 North Korean divisions invaded South Korea.

In the narrowest sense, the invasion was a civil war in a divided nation. But it also was a major crisis involving the two power blocs that emerged from World War II. In Some measure the conflict paralleled the present Vietnamese War.

Despite heavy odds, MacArthur's forces stopped the Communist advance, made a surprise landing at Inchon far to the enemy rear and broke out of the Pusan perimeter. Within the next two months the North Korean army was routed and almost destroyed.

Then, in November, the Chinese Communists intervened, touching off what MacArthur called a "new war," forcing U.N. troops to withdraw south of the 38th parallel. Shortly thereafter MacArthur, by implication, threatened to bomb and blockade Red China. He also called for Chinese commanders to discuss armistice terms.

Truman took strong exception to what he considered a soldier's intervention into diplomatic affairs. On Jan. 31 he informed MacArthur that Asia was not the only problem facing the nation as Russia was threatening Europe and the Middle East.

MacArthur held out for what his critics termed "all-out war," which MacArthur supporters said would bring victory in Korea and lasting peace throughout Asia.

With U.N. troops, mostly American, facing upwards of 400,000 Red Chinese, in addition to Soviet-equipped North Korean divisions, Truman put MacArthur under orders to quit issuing public statements.

But on April 5 Rep. Joseph Martin, R-Mass., made public a letter he received from MacArthur that expressed the general's disapproval of the administration's goals. The President considered this the last straw. He replaced MacArthur with Lt. Gen. Matthew Ridgway and in a broadcast to the nation said, "So far we have prevented World War III. We do not want to widen the conflict." Then the President braced for reaction.

MacArthur's removal produced an instant emotional and political uproar. The general had many supporters, some in high political position. There was talk of running him for president.

The general's return to America brought mass frenzy. There were wild receptions for him in Honolulu, San Francisco, Chicago, New York and, finally, Washington. Television, new then, carried the tumultuous scenes and the general's words to millions across the land.

On April 19 the general's homecoming culminated in an address before a joint session of Congress. "Once war is forced upon us," MacArthur said, "there is no other alternative than to apply every available means to bring it to a swift end. War's very object is victory — not prolonged indecision. n war, indeed, there can be no substitute for victory."

Then, remarking that he was closing 52 years of Army service, the general quoted from a barracks ballad: "Old soldiers never die; they just fade away."

MacArthur's ouster was investigated by a Senate committee but this evolved into an inconclusive debate over far eastern policy. The general, meanwhile, delivered a series of speeches criticizing "internal subversion, corruption and detailed regimentation" among the federal agencies.

MacArthur lived on for 12 years. He died at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, April 5, 1964, and was buried at Norfolk, Va.

Blue Cross Head Sees Need For Government Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Walter J. McNerney, president of Blue Cross associations, says the federal government must exercise a significantly stronger leadership in the field of health care if America is to meet expanding demands for doctors and hospitals.

"The apparatus we've used for years is now outdated," McNerney said Sunday. "The field does not operate well when left alone."

He was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

McNerney said the private sector must share responsibility with government and "neither can do it alone."

There should be more emphasis on area-wide planning, McNerney said, with state agencies determining which hospitals should expand and where new ones should be built on the basis of population.

Library Talks

Bruce D. Bajema, Marin County librarian, will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. with the San Anselmo Library board to discuss advantages of a reciprocal loan agreement between libraries. The meeting will be held at the San Anselmo Library.

EASTER SAMARITANS

Indians Welcome Teen Task Force

By JEFF GREER

Two dozen Marin County teen-agers and four adults spent four days of their Easter vacation happily doing humble chores at the Round Valley Indian reservation in Mendocino County.

When it was over, "we hated to come back," declared Nancy Crawford, a Terra Linda High School co-ed.

Nancy and the other teen-agers from throughout Marin County made a sort of exploratory "service caravan" to the valley — which holds California's largest Indian reservation — to see what tasks they could perform to help the 600 Indian residents.

The trip was sponsored by the Marin YMCA. During the previous five years the YMCA had organized annual service caravans to the Monument Valley Indian reservation near the Four Corners where New Mexico, Arizona, Utah and Colorado boundaries meet.

"The teens felt they were working for the mission there, instead of for the Indians," explained Carl Jensen, program director for the Marin Y. He said the trip to the Eel River country was both to perform services and to establish lines of communication with the Indians. It was necessary to convince the reserved tribesmen to accept manpower offered by the teen-agers, Jensen said.

During much of the outing the Indians "were watching us" while the teen-agers picked up roadside litter, swept out the old Round Valley schoolhouse which has become the Indian's community center, and sought out other helpful tasks, according to Lyn Jensen, Y counselor and wife of the program director.

The Indians "kept telling us to just enjoy ourselves. They didn't realize we wanted to work," added Randy Harris, a teen-ager from Greenbrae. "We must have picked up a thousand beer cans" along the road. "We wanted to fix windows and do repairs in the old school."

The teen-agers obviously made a good impression among the tribesmen; they were invited to return to help modernize the old schoolhouse for a Head Start preschool center the Indian council plans to establish.

"When we talked to the Indians, they were very warm and friendly," young Harris and Miss Crawford agreed.

The "big" issue among youth in Round Valley and in nearby Covelo was whether the boys should wear long hair and the girls should break down the rule requiring skirts in school. The young Indians disapproved of three local youths who were letting their tresses grow, the Marin teen-agers found.

The young volunteers and their adult counselors found the reservation close-knit but clannish. Few teen-age Indians wanted to leave their community to try living elsewhere. The half-dozen tribes on the reservation lived separately, in small clusters of two or three houses "with lots of breathing room in between."

All the families prided themselves on having many children. The Indian students were active in team sports and Future Farmers of America projects in the Covelo school, but returned to their families for social activities in the evening.

"When we walked around after supper, they'd be out playing baseball with their families," the Marinites recalled.

The young YMCA volunteers did all their own household chores, living in the community center. After completing whatever volunteer tasks they could find, they split up into groups to hike in the reservation's forests, watch the Indians fish for salmon, or explore the Eel River's swimming potential.

Major social events in the mountain-girt valley are the Indian's annual rodeo in the grounds behind the old schoolhouse, and the women's annual bazaar which attracts throngs of buyers for the beadwork and other craftwork produced by the families.

Although the Indians seldom invite each other to dinner or overnight visits, the Marin teen-agers were given a party by one member of the reservation council, at which he handed out beads as souvenirs.

Council members travel often, pressing Washington and Sacramento for the Indian's self-betterment projects or on matters involving expansion of the reservation, Jensen reported.

"There's an airstrip there; I was surprised the council didn't have its own plane," he said.

The Indians strive for self-sufficiency, with each wage-earner contributing monthly "dues" for maintenance work, Indian council office staff and other projects. They have accumulated some $300,000 toward a much-needed medical center for the reservation, the Marin visitors found, and take care of impoverished or illness-stricken families out of council funds.

WORKING HOLIDAY — Carl Jensen (left) of the YMCA typed up a few notes Saturday when he and Randy Harris and Nancy Crawford visited the Independent-Journal to report on their visit to an Indian Reservation. They and other Marin youths devoted their Easter holidays to finding out what they might do for the Indians.

Burglars Get 3 Power Saws

Three power saws were taken from two San Rafael merchants during the weekend, police reported.

Someone took a saw valued at $205 from the showroom of Davis Saw Service at 807 Francisco Boulevard between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday.

Two saws valued at $385 were taken between 7:20 p.m. Friday night and 9 a.m. Saturday morning, from Mac's Saw Service at 1013 Second Street, William Walker McNerney, owner, reported to police.

Conservation League Names New Leader

Harold Gregg of Forest Knolls has been elected president of the Marin Conservation League, an organization he already serves as executive director.

Chosen as vice presidents were Mrs. Paul Holmer of Kentfield, Frank Moncrief of Corte Madera and David Tirrell of San Francisco.

History Repeats Self: 'Snooping By FBI'

Skeletons must be rattling since Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., has called for the ouster of Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for spying on congressmen.

When Atty. Gen. Charles Joseph Bonaparte (a grandson of Napoleon's brother Jerome) asked in 1907 for creation of "a small permanent detective force" in the Justice Department, he was turned down by congressmen suspicious of the political uses to which such a force might be put.

They had reason. Strange things had been done by the Secret Service created by President Abraham Lincoln under Lafayette C. Baker during the Civil War. Political spying was one of them.

When Bonaparte renewed his request in 1908, congressmen were disturbed by rumors that President Theodore Roosevelt was getting information to force unwilling congressmen to vote his programs by using the Secret Service "to obtain interesting date when the gentlemen of Congress trod, heavily and rashly, the Primrose Path." During the debate, Rep. Walter I. Smith declared: "Nothing is more opposed to our race than a belief that a general system of espionage is being conducted by the federal government."

Nevertheless, Bonaparte was given funds to hire a few agents, and what later became the FBI was born. (Its total personnel in 1909 was 23)

WHAT THE CONGRESSMEN feared in 1907 came true during the Harding administration of 1921-24. Atty. Gen. Harry M. Daugherty used his Bureau of Investigation, then headed by famed detective William J. Burns, to compile personal files on enemies of the "Ohio gang."

That became one of the stenches that Calvin Coolidge, when he inherited the presidency on Harding's death, sought to eradicate. To do so, he brought in as attorney general the high-principled Harlan Fiske Stone, who later became chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stone cast about for a new head for the Bureau of Investigation who was untainted by the Daugherty-Burns scandals. He chose a young assistant attorney general named John Edgar Hoover. In addition to his rectitude, Hoover's qualifications included having prepared the case by which a former attorney general, A. Mitchell Palmer, had tried to deport hundreds of alien Communists in the "big Red scare" that followed World War I.

HISTORY REPEATS itself.

Hoover, installed in office to rid the FBI of the stench of political snooping, now is accused of the same offense himself.

The FBI under Hoover has grown since 1925 from a small, inept, politics-dominated bureau with few federal crimes within its jurisdiction to an immense organization with a wide assortment of powers and duties. But in doing so, it inevitably has grown closer to what Rep. Walter I. Smith feared in 1907: "a general system of espionage . . . conducted by the federal government." Too close, according to Congressman Boggs.

J. Edgar Hoover is 75. It is sad to see his long record of devoted service becoming more and more tarnished as his years accumulate. But perhaps even J. Edgar Hoover is not exempt from the truth that "power corrupts."

"Of course Mr. Hoover knows I have every confidence in him . . . he just heard me say so on the wiretap."

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Bridge District Transit Plan Not Really Mini-Priced

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Golden Gate Bridge District consultants so numbed the public with findings that rail rapid transit would cost $1 billion that spending only $331 million seems like peanuts.

That piddling figure is the price tag on the district's ferry and bus operation and expansion to bus rapid transit for the next decade..

But how much is $331 million?

It's two and one-half times the amount President Richard M. Nixon unsuccessfully requested to keep the supersonic transport project alive until June 30. And it's only $69 million short of the total estimated for completing development of the SST prototype.

Not that the district's transit facilities may not be worth more than the SST, but $331 million turns out to be a lot of money. Any time someone pushes for a rail system, keep in .ind that it would cost three times more than the mere $331 million.

ONE LINE from the district's plan especially caught our eye. The strongest opposition to construction of the bridge back in the '30s was by "ferryboat interests." Just like today — when private ferryboat interests are the main source of opposition to the district's pending entry into the ferry business.

The consultants' reports that led to the plan for the next decade, incidentally, had contrasting bindings. The engineers' report was bound in black. The urban planners, who arranged the binding of both, bound their report in white.

YOU RECALL Gov. Ronald Reagan's dictum to "squeeze, cut and trim" the budget? Add "squash," and credit it to Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

While the governor never has been seen to physically apply his dictum, Bagley actually carried his out by putting the budget under the edge of his mammoth capitol desk. (He really did it to make room under his desk for a telephone cable, but that would spoil the item.)

Despite the tremendous pressure, incidentally, not a drop was seen to ooze from the budget under Bagley's desk.

WE WONDERED why the Marin County Health Department limited its anti-rubella campaign to children 11 years old or younger. The answer was that the cutoff age was to avoid the chance of giving rubella to pregnant girls.

The shots, of course, could have been given to boys over 11, but think of the administrative nightmare — given today's hair and dress — of sorting them out!

TWO NEW LIGHTS are being tested on the Golden Gate Bridge, and the public has a chance to register its reaction before one is selected to replace the existing lights, which no longer are made. One is an ugly bulbous affair offered by giant General Electric, the other a handsome modern design by a little San Francisco firm. Both are south of the south tower on the east sidewalk.

Justice Doubted In Driving Case

Justice in the courts?

Every few days read in the I.J. the names and addresses of drivers picked up on drunken driving charges (502.)

Drunken driving is bad, no matter what the circumstances, and stiff penalties are certainly in order.

Eighty per cent of those drunks arrested were caught by the police or the highway patrol through erratic driving, obvious to spot by an alert patrolman, but without a crash or injuring anyone.

How come when a prominent Marin County attorney is arrested on a felony drunken driving charge, after crashing into a taxi and injuring a passenger in San Anselmo, he gets off with a misdemeanor and a fine?

This is justice? Marin County style?

BARRY W. ROGERS

(Nobody reads in the Independent-Journal the names of persons picked up on drunken driving charges, as we do not publish these arrests except where an injury accident is involved. We do publish the drunken driving convictions and sentences. — Editor.)

Federal Subsidy Of Arts Needed

It has become clearly apparent that the cultural activities of this nation can no longer rely solely on funds contributed by private individuals, philanthropic or business corporations for support.

The realization that federal assistance is necessary has been obvious to the leadership of the art movements of the country, who are concerned with the future of our symphony, opera, ballet and drama companies and of our museums.

The time has come when all citizens who share this concern about the cultural well-being of our nation should express this by writing to the members of the House Appropriations Committee asking for full funding for the National Endowment for the Arts.

The amount currently under consideration is $30 million. This is equivalent to the cost of one mile of super-highway.

Traditionally, European subsidy for the arts dates back to the 15th century. The entire art tradition of the western world, which this nation has admired, emulated and drawn upon in our own cultural development, was underwritten by a system of state subsidy from the time of the royal courts to the present . . .

Full funding of the National Endowment for the Arts is essential to the quality of our cultural environment!

Parents Endorse Work Of Toliver

As the parents of a child who attended Martin Luther King School for four years, we feel constrained to remark on the attacks by the Sausalito School Board on special assistant James Toliver.

We and our daughter have the highest regard for Toliver and his work. That he could be accused of incompetence seems a total contradiction of facts.

We note that he is charged with failing to bring about "a solution to problems that appear to be explosive." Problems in the district are indeed explosive, but to put the blame on one of the persons who has been working hardest to solve those problems is dangerously foolish. It isn't Toliver's doing that so-called adult persons refuse to listen to one another or to work together for the good of the students. It isn't his doing that school board meetings end in childish rows while the schools' problems remain unsolved.

His concern is, rightly, with the children. Through our daughter and other MLK students we have learned of many situations where Toliver saved the day. Racial incidents decreased sharply in the last school years, and a good deal of the credit goes to this man. He not only calmed potential disturbances, he also influenced the students so that by the end of the year they were very effectively doing their own policing. His methods were rational and the results were remarkable . . .

My Lai Blame Spread Widely

I wouldn't be presumptuous enough to pass judgement on Lieutenant Calley but there is one aspect which I think should be mentioned: uninformed combatants in war have always been subject to execution as "spies." Unfortunately the civilians who have sent our people to war, and the bulk of the mass media, have not seen fit to provide our boys with some standard and basis for protection in this vein. Thus we see frustrated young Americans seeing their comrades being picked off by an invisible adversary who is immune to reprisal or even detention if caught. The result has been excessive over-reaction in the field. Our men surely had to do something! . . .

Blame, in my view, must devolve on civilians. First in line is Eisenhower for his myopic SEATO ideas. Second is Kennedy for his infantile meddling. Third and foremost is LBJ and the Democratic Congress of 1964 for their autumn panic in the heat of a presidential campaign. Fourth and equally foremost is the national mass media for its lack of candor in all correlated events.

Naturally, one cannot expect any of the above agents to police themselves. So what will the result be? I say a drift into some new form of militancy which no one can now clearly visualize. And who will provide the wind in the sails for this starboard tack? Why, the liberals, "of course" . . . In another commercial pun, "the chicks are back" (to roost).

Divert Space Program Scientists To Correcting Air Pollution

WASHINGTON — If we can roam outer space and go to the moon, why can't we find a way to stop polluting the atmosphere on earth? In answer, the experts usually look at you patronizingly and say: "No, the problems are quiet different; there is no relationship."

We ought to keep on asking this question — and demand a better answer.

Right now, with sharp cuts in federal funds for the space program, with the abandonment of the SST, and with the aerospace industro laying off many skilled technologists, we face a painful problem of unemployment — and a great opportunity.

The problem is the mounting unemployment of scientists, engineers and technicians.

The opportunity is that these are the very people uniquely qualified to create the new technological breakthrough to enable industry and government to end perilous pollution.

WHAT A MOMENT to combine the managerial skills demonstrated by NASA with the technicians' skills of the aerospace unemployed mobilized to help produce the new technology to keep us from destroying our environment!

What an opportunity to turn the national liability of aerospace unemployment into a national asset for environmental progress!

How?

By asking a question: "If we can go to the moon, can't we end pollution?" And by finding that the answer is yes.

How? By taking the central lesson learned from NASA and applying it to the problem of pollution.

By creating a dedicated team of managerial, scientific and technical talent to find ways to protect the environment as NASA created a dedicated team to find ways to explore outer space.

CALL IT ANYTHING you want, perhaps the National Environmental Corp. Make it a public corporation like Comsat or Railpax. Don't start it on a shoestring. Give it a minimum of $100 million, the funds to be provided by government and industry because the fruit of its work will be ultimately benefiting both government and industry.

Give it skilled, experienced, dynamic leadership at the top. It deserves nothing less. No doubt there are many qualified managerial administrators but the one who, I believe, could do the most to make this enterprise come alive and burgeon into reality is the man who built NASA and put together the team that enabled us to orbit the earth and visit the moon, and who resigned only after Congress began to deplete his funds — James E. Webb. If Webb could be lured out of retirement, the project would soon be in orbit.

GOVERNMENT AND private industries need technological innovations which will enable them to end pollution of air and water and to do it at costs tolerable to both.

The proposed National Envoronmental Corp. would take contracts from business and from local, city, state and federal governments to come up with practical solutions to environmental problems. Private enterprise is already working in this field but the need is so urgent and vast that government and industry must work together. Delay is dangerous because we're polluting more than we are reducing pollution.

At this point 75,000 to 100,000 engineers, scientists and technicians are unemployed and the number is rising.

It is crucial to protect the nation's investment in the unemployed brainpower developed by the aerospace community.

What better way to use all we can of it than to create a team to work on pollution as NASA did to get to the moon?

High Confidence In Nader: A Lesson For Politicians

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Imagine how envious that most responsive of American poll-watchers, Richard M. Nixon, must be! Not only him, but all those who would like to replace him — Muskie, McGovern, Hughes, Bayh, Jackson, Wallace. Every one of them has been the subject of public opinion polls, and on occasion they have found encouragement in the results. But none of them has ever come close to the approval margins registered now for a non-politician, from a breed of citizen which seldom is even listed on the poll-takers' charts.

It is Ralph Nader, according to a Louis Harris Survey, who draws the endorsement of 53 per cent of Americans for doing "more good than harm," and about whom only 9 per cent draw the opposite conclusion. In the suburbs, where the votes increasingly are, he is approved by 63 per cent; among college graduates, the most influential voters, by 72 per cent; among independents, that crucial swing-group in any election, by 62 percent, and among those earning above $10,000, where much of the money to finance campaigns comes from, by 67 per cent. In none of those groups does the skepticism about him run higher than 11 per cent.

Yet he's not running for anything. That, to the politicians who covet such acceptance among the public, is the most amazing part of it.

ASIDE FROM THAT political self-denial, which is so straight in line with his well-publicized avoidance of personal publicity and his frugal life style, what Washingtonians remark on most is the assumption that he is riding for an eventual fall.

When he first rode into town as a rumpled young crusader for auto safety, nobody took him very seriously. But then he beat General Motors and people paid attention. Obviously if GM was not too big for him, nobody else was. And since then he has made life uncomfortable for nearly every other kind of corporation, including the only one that is bigger than GM, the U.S. government itself.

But in doing so he himself has become a form of corporation. He has spread out from auto safety to nursing homes, local property taxes, government subsidies to industry, industrial domination of government advisory committees, birth control pills, bureaucratic secrecy, television censorship, in-flight smoking, the medical profession, consumer and mortgage loan practices, supermarket prices and product dating, mine safety, the Food and Drug Administration, and pollution at Waikiki Beach . . . that is just a sampling. Merely listing them would take the rest of this column.

IT MAY NOT OCCUR to everybody who has heard of Nader that no one man, no matter how he stays up all night working, doesn't smoke or drink, prefers hot chocolate to coffee, doesn't bother to get his suits pressed, and avoids all but a few phone calls — no one superman could do all this crusading by himself.

Most of it is delegated to young lawyers or other professionals working out of the four Nader headquarters (the Center for Study of Responsive Law, the Public Interest Research Group, the Center for Auto Safety, and the project on corporate responsibility). Another sign of summer in Washington, expected now every year after the cherry blossoms fall, is the influx of white and fashionably upper-class undergraduates and law students to provide supplementary manpower to the year-round Nader's Raiders.

Nader himself can give only the roughest guidance to these eager volunteers. He is aloft most of the time going and coming to speaking engagements to raise money to continue and expand these modern crusades, and occasionally lending his name and telegenic face to the cause locally when a congressional hearing or other sufficiently prestigious forum is offered.

In effect, the investigations and publishing are done under a Nader franchise. The fat, passionate books entitled "The Nader Report on ——"(fill in blank) have about as much of his personal authorship as Kentucky Fried Chicken has of Colonel Sanders' culinary touch.

THAT IS WHY so many think he must someday slip up, that one of those zealous youngsters is going to make an outrageous charge that is proven wrong, and the Nader credibility which contrasts so with that of his corporate and governmental victims is going to be shattered.

But, despite a few lapses, it has not happened yet. The polls show where he stands among the many, but cannot measure the devotion of those who work for him, to whom he is the nearest substitute for Christ Himself. True, a few others think that is how he looks on himself. But the most audible outcries against him are from those whose corporate or bureaucratic ox has been gored.

When Sen. Thomas Dodd was headed for defeat in Connecticut, it was suggested seriously that Nader run to replace him. He probably could have won easily. But to him, and more so to his worshipers, that would have been a form of treason, of going over to the enemy.

So he will go on shaking up, but not trying to replace, the System. And his influence on it is not merely through his franchised exposes, but alos in the example he sets for practicing politicians. He and the polls suporting him are a daily reminder to them that the consumer is the most common American of all.

Blue Cross Head Sees Need For Government Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Walter J. McNerney, president of Blue Cross associations, says the federal government must exercise a significantly stronger leadership in the field of health care if America is to meet expanding demands for doctors and hospitals.

"The apparatus we've used for years is now outdated," McNerney said Sunday. "The field does not operate well when left alone."

He was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

McNerney said the private sector must share responsibility with government and "neither can do it alone."

There should be more emphasis on area-wide planning, McNerney said, with state agencies determining which hospitals should expand and where new ones should be built on the basis of population.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By C. P. McCarthy

Reporter Takes Blank Look At A Nameless Controversy

There is, or was, a saying that the three times a girl gets her name in the paper when she's born, when she marries, and when she dies.

A fourth landmark occasion may well be added, and that is the occasion of her home — being burglarized.

The Independent-Journal, in its ceaseless effort to inform its readers, each Monday runs a list of burglaries reported around the county the previous week.

The listing usually contains about 30 burglaries a week, which isn't a very promising figure if your're waiting to see your name in the paper.

However, there have been recent indications that some Marin citizens may have been cheated of their moment in the spotlight by a police department who, for some reason, has failed to tell the I-J about a burglary.

SOME CITY COUNCILMEN agree with the no-tell policy, while others feel that it is all right for burglaries to be reported, but names and addresses of victims should be deleted.

Councilman Benton A. Sifford of Larkspur goes along with the latter line, suggesting that publication of names and addresses might cause burglars to make "second calls."

I, of course, agree wholeheartedly with that theory, and will go so far as to suggest that names and addresses be left out of press reports entirely.

It might not lead to a better informed public, but at least all parties in the news would be protected.

We could have news stories about how President ... announced today that American troops had invaded ... Vice President ... two days later would announce the invasion of ... was not a flop as it had been called in reports in the ... Times and ... Post.

Councilman ... of ... would call for the firing of ... Police would report that ... of ... was arrested for pushing dope; ..., a student at ... High School, would win a scholarship to ... University, and her parents would announce the marriage of ... to ...

UNFORTUNATELY, many people, including I-J editors, don't see the wisdom and benevolence of this no-name policy. Some Marinites even wonder if the I-J is printing enough.

For instance, the paper received a letter last week from some folks in Ross wondering if all the crime in the peaceful little town is being reported.

They clipped an article from a recent I-J relating how Mayor Edwin J. Drechsel of Belvedere remarked that, at least from I-J reports, "Belvedere was somewhat noteworthy for not having burglaries." As it turned out, the burglaries just weren't reported to the I-J prior to the advent of new Police Chief John W. Jaeger.

The letter writers from Ross wondered if that might not be true in their town as well.

Please check and reveal the truth," they wrote. "We have a right to know what danger exists, but Ross Town Council sure won't tell us. We've asked!"

Too bad the letter writers didn't sign their names or addresses.

Chou's Hard Line Dashes Nixon Hopes

By STEWART HENSLEY
UPI Diplomatic Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon's efforts to improve relations with Peking are doomed to failure, at least for the immediate future, judging from recent statements attributed to Premier Chou en Lai.

And if Chou meant what he said, it will make little difference whether the United Nations votes to admit Red China to the world organization next fall since his conditions for joining are not likely to be met.

Chou's position was made known in two recent interviews with an American author, Edgar Snow. The statements to Snow were put together in an article published in the magazine New Republic. Snow is a long time friend of Chou, having known him and Mao Tse Tung since 1936 when the Communists pulled back to northwestern China to build their strength for the ultimate takeover of the country, which they accomplished in 1949.

Nixon's moves to try to improve relations with Peking during the past 18 months have consisted of removal of some of the restrictions on trade and removal of all restrictions against travel to the mainland by U.S. citizens.

These steps were designed to persuade the communists that the United States wanted to move toward a less acrimonious relationship, but there is no evidence whatever that they have softened at all the tough attitude of Chou on the big issue separating the two nations: the future of the nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan.

The United States is committed to defend the Nationalists against attack from the mainland. This commitment is embodied in a mutual security treaty concluded in 1954, and President Nixon has stressed repeatedly that he will honor that pledge.

Chou made it clear, in his talks with Snow, that the United States must end its "armed protectorate" over Taiwan before there could be any real diplomatic communication between Washington and Peking.

The United States, faced with mounting U. N. sentiment for the admission of Red China, is moving toward the adoption of what is called a "two-China" policy. Under such a policy the United States would not oppose admission of Peking, but would insist that Nationalist China also retain its seat.

Chou was asked by Snow how his country would respond if the United States voted to admit Peking and if his government were given a seat in the Security Council now held by the Nationalist Government. Chou replied that if the Chiang Kai Shek "clique" —as he describes the Nationalist government on Taiwan —were thrown out of the United Nations altogether, then Peking "would consider" joining.

The United States is firmly opposed to this. It could block expulsion of the Nationalists by using its veto power —and undoubtedly would do so.

The Chinese premier's attitude also appeared to rule out any resumption of sporadic meetings between the U. S. and Chinese ambassadors in Poland. The Chinese broke off these talks last spring as a gesture of protest against the U. S. move into Cambodia.

Minor Injuries To Passengers

Three passengers have suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident on Highway 101, south of Sierra Avenue, Cotati, and were treated at Hillcrest Hospital. Petaluma, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers said a car driven by Louis O. Bonomi of 399 Sierra Avenue, Cotati, struck the rear of a car driven by James Beacker, 18, of Santa Rosa, which had stopped at 12:35 a.m. Saturday.

James Ellison, 22, and Ronald Neal, 22, both of Oakland, suffered bruises, and Steven Petilla, 18, of Santa Rosa, suffered a facial cut. All were passengers in the Beacker car.

Pot Suspect Is Arrested

Corte Madera police have arrested Thomas F. Dillon, 23, of San Francisco, on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Police said Dillon was spotted "passed out" in his car along Madera Boulevard near the entrance to the Rafters restaurant at 3:05 a.m.

A search turned up two vials of what appeared to be marijuana and a hashish pipe, police said. Dillon was booked at Marin County Jail with bail set at $625.

He was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

History Repeats Self: 'Snooping By FBI'

Skeletons must be rattling since Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., has called for the ouster of Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for spying on congressmen.

When Atty. Gen. Charles Joseph Bonaparte (a grandson of Napoleon's brother Jerome) asked in 1907 for creation of "a small permanent detective force" in the Justice Department, he was turned down by congressmen suspicious of the political uses to which such a force might be put.

They had reason. Strange things had been done by the Secret Service created by President Abraham Lincoln under Lafayette C. Baker during the Civil War. Political spying was one of them.

When Bonaparte renewed his request in 1908, congressmen were disturbed by rumors that President Theodore Roosevelt was getting information to force unwilling congressmen to vote his programs by using the Secret Service "to obtain interesting date when the gentlemen of Congress trod, heavily and rashly, the Primrose Path." During the debate, Rep. Walter I. Smith declared: "Nothing is more opposed to our race than a belief that a general system of espionage is being conducted by the federal government."

Nevertheless, Bonaparte was given funds to hire a few agents, and what later became the FBI was born. (Its total personnel in 1909 was 23)

WHAT THE CONGRESSMEN feared in 1907 came true during the Harding administration of 1921-24. Atty. Gen. Harry M. Daugherty used his Bureau of Investigation, then headed by famed detective William J. Burns, to compile personal files on enemies of the "Ohio gang."

That became one of the stenches that Calvin Coolidge, when he inherited the presidency on Harding's death, sought to eradicate. To do so, he brought in as attorney general the high-principled Harlan Fiske Stone, who later became chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stone cast about for a new head for the Bureau of Investigation who was untainted by the Daugherty-Burns scandals. He chose a young assistant attorney general named John Edgar Hoover. In addition to his rectitude, Hoover's qualifications included having prepared the case by which a former attorney general, A. Mitchell Palmer, had tried to deport hundreds of alien Communists in the "big Red scare" that followed World War I.

HISTORY REPEATS itself.

Hoover, installed in office to rid the FBI of the stench of political snooping, now is accused of the same offense himself.

The FBI under Hoover has grown since 1925 from a small, inept, politics-dominated bureau with few federal crimes within its jurisdiction to an immense organization with a wide assortment of powers and duties. But in doing so, it inevitably has grown closer to what Rep. Walter I. Smith feared in 1907: "a general system of espionage ... conducted by the federal government." Too close, according to Congressman Boggs.

J. Edgar Hoover is 75. It is sad to see his long record of devoted service becoming more and more tarnished as his years accumulate. But perhaps even J. Edgar Hoover is not exempt from the truth that "power corrupts."

"Of course Mr. Hoover knows I have every confidence in him ... he just heard me say so on the wiretap."

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Bridge District Transit Plan Not Really Mini-Priced

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Golden Gate Bridge District consultants so numbed the public with findings that rail rapid transit would cost $1 billion that spending only $331 million seems like peanuts.

That piddling figure is the price tag on the district's ferry and bus operation and expansion to bus rapid transit for the next decade..

But how much is $331 million?

It's two and one-half times the amount President Richard M. Nixon unsuccessfully requested to keep the supersonic transport project alive until June 30. And it's only $69 million short of the total estimated for completing development of the SST prototype.

Not that the district's transit facilities may not be worth more than the SST, but $331 million turns out to be a lot of money. Any time someone pushes for a rail system, keep in .ind that it would cost three times more than the mere $331 million.

ONE LINE from the district's plan especially caught our eye. The strongest opposition to construction of the bridge back in the '30s was by "ferryboat interests." Just like today — when private ferryboat interests are the main source of opposition to the district's pending entry into the ferry business.

The consultants' reports that led to the plan for the next decade, incidentally, had contrasting bindings. The engineers' report was bound in black. The urban planners, who arranged the binding of both, bound their report in white.

YOU RECALL Gov. Ronald Reagan's dictum to "squeeze, cut and trim" the budget? Add "squash," and credit it to Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

While the governor never has been seen to physically apply his dictum, Bagley actually carried his out by putting the budget under the edge of his mammoth capitol desk. (He really did it to make room under his desk for a telephone cable, but that would spoil the item.)

Despite the tremendous pressure, incidentally, not a drop was seen to ooze from the budget under Bagley's desk.

WE WONDERED why the Marin County Health Department limited its anti-rubella campaign to children 11 years old or younger. The answer was that the cutoff age was to avoid the chance of giving rubella to pregnant girls.

The shots, of course, could have been given to boys over 11, but think of the administrative nightmare — given today's hair and dress — of sorting them out!

TWO NEW LIGHTS are being tested on the Golden Gate Bridge, and the public has a chance to register its reaction before one is selected to replace the existing lights, which no longer are made. One is an ugly bulbous affair offered by giant General Electric, the other a handsome modern design by a little San Francisco firm. Both are south of the south tower on the east sidewalk.

Justice Doubted In Driving Case

Justice in the courts?

Every few days read in the I.J. the names and addresses of drivers picked up on drunken driving charges (502.)

Drunken driving is bad, no matter what the circumstances, and stiff penalties are certainly in order.

Eighty per cent of those drunks arrested were caught by the police or the highway patrol through erratic driving, obvious to spot by an alert patrolman, but without a crash or injuring anyone.

How come when a prominent Marin County attorney is arrested on a felony drunken driving charge, after crashing into a taxi and injuring a passenger in San Anselmo, he gets off with a misdemeanor and a fine?

This is justice? Marin County style?

BARRY W. ROGERS

(Nobody reads in the Independent-Journal the names of persons picked up on drunken driving charges, as we do not publish these arrests except where an injury accident is involved. We do publish the drunken driving convictions and sentences. — Editor.)

Federal Subsidy Of Arts Needed

It has become clearly apparent that the cultural activities of this nation can no longer rely solely on funds contributed by private individuals, philanthropic or business corporations for support.

The realization that federal assistance is necessary has been obvious to the leadership of the art movements of the country, who are concerned with the future of our symphony, opera, ballet and drama companies and of our museums.

The time has come when all citizens who share this concern about the cultural well-being of our nation should express this by writing to the members of the House Appropriations Committee asking for full funding for the National Endowment for the Arts.

The amount currently under consideration is $30 million. This is equivalent to the cost of one mile of super-highway.

Traditionally, European subsidy for the arts dates back to the 15th century. The entire art tradition of the western world, which this nation has admired, emulated and drawn upon in our own cultural development, was underwritten by a system of state subsidy from the time of the royal courts to the present ...

Full funding of the National Endowment for the Arts is essential to the quality of our cultural environment!

Parents Endorse Work Of Toliver

As the parents of a child who attended Martin Luther King School for four years, we feel constrained to remark on the attacks by the Sausalito School Board on special assistant James Toliver.

We and our daughter have the highest regard for Toliver and his work. That he could be accused of incompetence seems a total contradiction of facts.

We note that he is charged with failing to bring about "a solution to problems that appear to be explosive." Problems in the district are indeed explosive, but to put the blame on one of the persons who has been working hardest to solve those problems is dangerously foolish. It isn't Toliver's doing that so-called adult persons refuse to listen to one another or to work together for the good of the students. It isn't his doing that school board meetings end in childish rows while the schools' problems remain unsolved.

His concern is, rightly, with the children. Through our daughter and other MLK students we have learned of many situations where Toliver saved the day. Racial incidents decreased sharply in the last school years, and a good deal of the credit goes to this man. He not only calmed potential disturbances, he also influenced the students so that by the end of the year they were very effectively doing their own policing. His methods were rational and the results were remarkable ...

My Lai Blame Spread Widely

I wouldn't be presumptuous enough to pass judgement on Lieutenant Calley but there is one aspect which I think should be mentioned: uninformed combatants in war have always been subject to execution as "spies." Unfortunately the civilians who have sent our people to war, and the bulk of the mass media, have not seen fit to provide our boys with some standard and basis for protection in this vein. Thus we see frustrated young Americans seeing their comrades being picked off by an invisible adversary who is immune to reprisal or even detention if caught. The result has been excessive over-reaction in the field. Our men surely had to do something! ...

Blame, in my view, must devolve on civilians. First in line is Eisenhower for his myopic SEATO ideas. Second is Kennedy for his infantile meddling. Third and foremost is LBJ and the Democratic Congress of 1964 for their autumn panic in the heat of a presidential campaign. Fourth and equally foremost is the national mass media for its lack of candor in all correlated events.

Naturally, one cannot expect any of the above agents to police themselves. So what will the result be? I say a drift into some new form of militancy which no one can now clearly visualize. And who will provide the wind in the sails for this starboard tack? Why, the liberals, "of course" ... In another commercial pun, "the chicks are back" (to roost).

Divert Space Program Scientists To Correcting Air Pollution

WASHINGTON — If we can roam outer space and go to the moon, why can't we find a way to stop polluting the atmosphere on earth? In answer, the experts usually look at you patronizingly and say: "No, the problems are quiet different; there is no relationship."

We ought to keep on asking this question — and demand a better answer.

Right now, with sharp cuts in federal funds for the space program, with the abandonment of the SST, and with the aerospace industro laying off many skilled technologists, we face a painful problem of unemployment — and a great opportunity.

The problem is the mounting unemployment of scientists, engineers and technicians.

The opportunity is that these are the very people uniquely qualified to create the new technological breakthrough to enable industry and government to end perilous pollution.

WHAT A MOMENT to combine the managerial skills demonstrated by NASA with the technicians' skills of the aerospace unemployed mobilized to help produce the new technology to keep us from destroying our environment!

What an opportunity to turn the national liability of aerospace unemployment into a national asset for environmental progress!

How?

By asking a question: "If we can go to the moon, can't we end pollution?" And by finding that the answer is yes.

How? By taking the central lesson learned from NASA and applying it to the problem of pollution.

By creating a dedicated team of managerial, scientific and technical talent to find ways to protect the environment as NASA created a dedicated team to find ways to explore outer space.

CALL IT ANYTHING you want, perhaps the National Environmental Corp. Make it a public corporation like Comsat or Railpax. Don't start it on a shoestring. Give it a minimum of $100 million, the funds to be provided by government and industry because the fruit of its work will be ultimately benefiting both government and industry.

Give it skilled, experienced, dynamic leadership at the top. It deserves nothing less. No doubt there are many qualified managerial administrators but the one who, I believe, could do the most to make this enterprise come alive and burgeon into reality is the man who built NASA and put together the team that enabled us to orbit the earth and visit the moon, and who resigned only after Congress began to deplete his funds — James E. Webb. If Webb could be lured out of retirement, the project would soon be in orbit.

GOVERNMENT AND private industries need technological innovations which will enable them to end pollution of air and water and to do it at costs tolerable to both.

The proposed National Envoronmental Corp. would take contracts from business and from local, city, state and federal governments to come up with practical solutions to environmental problems. Private enterprise is already working in this field but the need is so urgent and vast that government and industry must work together. Delay is dangerous because we're polluting more than we are reducing pollution.

At this point 75,000 to 100,000 engineers, scientists and technicians are unemployed and the number is rising.

It is crucial to protect the nation's investment in the unemployed brainpower developed by the aerospace community.

What better way to use all we can of it than to create a team to work on pollution as NASA did to get to the moon?

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

High Confidence In Nader: A Lesson For Politicians

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Imagine how envious that most responsive of American poll-watchers, Richard M. Nixon, must be! Not only him, but all those who would like to replace him — Muskie, McGovern, Hughes, Bayh, Jackson, Wallace. Every one of them has been the subject of public opinion polls, and on occasion they have found encouragement in the results. But none of them has ever come close to the approval margins registered now for a non-politician, from a breed of citizen which seldom is even listed on the poll-takers' charts.

It is Ralph Nader, according to a Louis Harris Survey, who draws the endorsement of 53 per cent of Americans for doing "more good than harm," and about whom only 9 per cent draw the opposite conclusion. In the suburbs, where the votes increasingly are, he is approved by 63 per cent; among college graduates, the most influential voters, by 72 per cent; among independents, that crucial swing-group in any election, by 62 percent, and among those earning above $10,000, where much of the money to finance campaigns comes from, by 67 per cent. In none of those groups does the skepticism about him run higher than 11 per cent.

Yet he's not running for anything. That, to the politicians who covet such acceptance among the public, is the most amazing part of it.

ASIDE FROM THAT political self-denial, which is so straight in line with his well-publicized avoidance of personal publicity and his frugal life style, what Washingtonians remark on most is the assumption that he is riding for an eventual fall.

When he first rode into town as a rumpled young crusader for auto safety, nobody took him very seriously. But then he beat General Motors and people paid attention. Obviously if GM was not too big for him, nobody else was. And since then he has made life uncomfortable for nearly every other kind of corporation, including the only one that is bigger than GM, the U.S. government itself.

But in doing so he himself has become a form of corporation. He has spread out from auto safety to nursing homes, local property taxes, government subsidies to industry, industrial domination of government advisory committees, birth control pills, bureaucratic secrecy, television censorship, in-flight smoking, the medical profession, consumer and mortgage loan practices, supermarket prices and product dating, mine safety, the Food and Drug Administration, and pollution at Waikiki Beach ... that is just a sampling. Merely listing them would take the rest of this column.

IT MAY NOT OCCUR to everybody who has heard of Nader that no one man, no matter how he stays up all night working, doesn't smoke or drink, prefers hot chocolate to coffee, doesn't bother to get his suits pressed, and avoids all but a few phone calls — no one superman could do all this crusading by himself.

Most of it is delegated to young lawyers or other professionals working out of the four Nader headquarters (the Center for Study of Responsive Law, the Public Interest Research Group, the Center for Auto Safety, and the project on corporate responsibility). Another sign of summer in Washington, expected now every year after the cherry blossoms fall, is the influx of white and fashionably upper-class undergraduates and law students to provide supplementary manpower to the year-round Nader's Raiders.

Nader himself can give only the roughest guidance to these eager volunteers. He is aloft most of the time going and coming to speaking engagements to raise money to continue and expand these modern crusades, and occasionally lending his name and telegenic face to the cause locally when a congressional hearing or other sufficiently prestigious forum is offered.

In effect, the investigations and publishing are done under a Nader franchise. The fat, passionate books entitled "The Nader Report on ——"(fill in blank) have about as much of his personal authorship as Kentucky Fried Chicken has of Colonel Sanders' culinary touch.

THAT IS WHY so many think he must someday slip up, that one of those zealous youngsters is going to make an outrageous charge that is proven wrong, and the Nader credibility which contrasts so with that of his corporate and governmental victims is going to be shattered.

But, despite a few lapses, it has not happened yet. The polls show where he stands among the many, but cannot measure the devotion of those who work for him, to whom he is the nearest substitute for Christ Himself. True, a few others think that is how he looks on himself. But the most audible outcries against him are from those whose corporate or bureaucratic ox has been gored.

When Sen. Thomas Dodd was headed for defeat in Connecticut, it was suggested seriously that Nader run to replace him. He probably could have won easily. But to him, and more so to his worshipers, that would have been a form of treason, of going over to the enemy.

So he will go on shaking up, but not trying to replace, the System. And his influence on it is not merely through his franchised exposes, but alos in the example he sets for practicing politicians. He and the polls suporting him are a daily reminder to them that the consumer is the most common American of all.

Two Eagle Scouts For One Troop

It isn't every day that a Boy Scout troop gains an Eagle Scout in its ranks, but Troop 42 of Novato recently gained two at one Court of Honor.

Scouts Scott Lilly, 15, a sophomore at San Marin High School, and Jerry Hendel, 16, a junior at San Marin High, received the awards at West Novato School.

Hendel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence P. Hendel of 6 Nogales Court, Novato, has been an instructor with the troop since September. For his Eagle Scout project, he wrote an orientation booklet for new scouts.

Hendel was a patrol leader and assistant patrol leader with Troop 104 at Kadena Air Force Base, Okinawa, before joining the Novato troop.

He entered scouting as a Cub Scout at Hamilton Air Force Base in 1962 and became a Boy Scout in Okinawa in 1966.

Lilly, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Lilly of 30 San Benito Way, has been the troop's senior patrol leader for the past six months. For his Eagle Scout project, he surveyed the Novato area for potential equestrian and hiking trails.

He entered scouting as a tenderfoot in Troop 42 in October 1966, and has served as leader of the Eagle patrol for two years. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow, and has taken two 50-mile hikes in the Sierra, a 50-mile canoe trip down the American River and has participated in survival campouts on islands in Tomales Bay.

Lilly is an Independent-Journal carrier in Novato. Troop 42 is sponsored by the Novato Kiwanis Club.

All coffees will be in San Rafael.

Car Accidents Bring Four Minor Injuries

Four persons received minor injuries in accidents during the weekend, California Highway Patrol reported.

William Fredrick Morris, 16, of 3 Geneva Way, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and bruises.

He was northbound on Mabry Way, at Rafael Way, Santa Venetia at 6:15 p.m. Saturday when his car collided with one driven east on San Rafael Way by Cheryl Ann Bosch, 24, of 135 Vendola Drive, San Rafael, patrolmen reported.

Julio Cesar Valdes, 41, of Daly City was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruised ribs. His northbound car hit the divider on Highway 101 at the Tiburon overpass at 6:50 a.m. yesterday, patrolmen reported.

Howard A. James, 60, of 523 D Street, San Rafael, was to see his own doctor for minor injuries received in an accident at 1:05 p.m. Saturday on Shoreline Highway 800 feet north of Highway 101.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Floyd Leo James, 53, of 815 Fourth Street, San Rafael. It collided with one driven by John Wadsworth Everts, 15, of 410 Hillside Avenue, Mill Valley. Both were northbound on Shoreline Highway, according to patrol.

LaVoyle Marie Chewning, 46, of Richmond was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts on her arm and face, received in an accident at 8 p.m. Friday on Highway 17 west of the Richmond-San Rafael bridge.

Her westbound car collided with another westbound car driven by Jordan Lee Varner, 45, of Vallejo, according to the patrol.

Weapons Count In Petaluma

Russell John Mancebo, 28, of 220 Fair Street, Petaluma, has been arrested on suspicion of possession of a deadly weapon.

Officers said Mancebo's car was stopped Friday at 11:10 p.m. on a traffic violation in American Alley at the rear of Kentucky Street. They said a sawed off shotgun rigged to fire while still in its case was seen in the backseat.

As officers reached for the weapon, they said Mancebo attempted to flee, but was caught between buildings a few yards away. He was booked into Sonoma County Jail for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Condominium Application Due A Hearing Tomorrow

San Rafael Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on a proposal to convert a 40-unit apartment house at 237 Picnic Avenue to condominium ownership, at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the city hall council chamber.

The condominum subdivision sought by Picnic Hill, would provide air space division, with surrounding land being "common area."

The commission also is scheduled to resume its discussion on the proposed ordinance governing tidelands and waterways within the city.

Also on the agenda is adoption of a resolution instructing the city planning director to process sign permit applications in accordance with the recently adopted sign ordinance, even though the ordinance has not yet legally taken effect.

Use permits will be discussed for a children's reading center school at 35 Mitchell Boulevard, a grooming and modelling school for young women at 926 Irwin Street, a medical office at 1634 Fifth Avenue, and an auto repair shop at 50 Tiburon Street.

Valley Players Set Play Dates

The San Geronimo Valley Art Center's Valley Players will present the two-act play "Thurber Carnival" Friday and Satudday and April 23 and 24.

The play, first presented on Broadway in 1960, is a series of short sketches by famous author James Thurber. It opens and closes with a series of "one-liners" from which the Rowan and Martin "Laugh-in" television show borrowed so successfully.

The play is directed by Barbara Jeppesen of San Geronimo. It will be performed at 8:30 p.m. at the art center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Geronimo.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By C. P. McCarthy

Reporter Takes Blank Look At A Nameless Controversy

There is, or was, a saying that the three times a girl gets her name in the paper when she's born, when she marries, and when she dies.

A fourth landmark occasion may well be added, and that is the occasion of her home — being burglarized.

The Independent-Journal, in its ceaseless effort to inform its readers, each Monday runs a list of burglaries reported around the county the previous week.

The listing usually contains about 30 burglaries a week, which isn't a very promising figure if your're waiting to see your name in the paper.

However, there have been recent indications that some Marin citizens may have been cheated of their moment in the spotlight by a police department who, for some reason, has failed to tell the I-J about a burglary.

SOME CITY COUNCILMEN agree with the no-tell policy, while others feel that it is all right for burglaries to be reported, but names and addresses of victims should be deleted.

Councilman Benton A. Sifford of Larkspur goes along with the latter line, suggesting that publication of names and addresses might cause burglars to make "second calls."

I, of course, agree wholeheartedly with that theory, and will go so far as to suggest that names and addresses be left out of press reports entirely.

It might not lead to a better informed public, but at least all parties in the news would be protected.

We could have news stories about how President ... announced today that American troops had invaded ... Vice President ... two days later would announce the invasion of ... was not a flop as it had been called in reports in the ... Times and ... Post.

Councilman ... of ... would call for the firing of ... Police would report that ... of ... was arrested for pushing dope; ..., a student at ... High School, would win a scholarship to ... University, and her parents would announce the marriage of ... to ...

UNFORTUNATELY, many people, including I-J editors, don't see the wisdom and benevolence of this no-name policy. Some Marinites even wonder if the I-J is printing enough.

For instance, the paper received a letter last week from some folks in Ross wondering if all the crime in the peaceful little town is being reported.

They clipped an article from a recent I-J relating how Mayor Edwin J. Drechsel of Belvedere remarked that, at least from I-J reports, "Belvedere was somewhat noteworthy for not having burglaries." As it turned out, the burglaries just weren't reported to the I-J prior to the advent of new Police Chief John W. Jaeger.

The letter writers from Ross wondered if that might not be true in their town as well.

Please check and reveal the truth," they wrote. "We have a right to know what danger exists, but Ross Town Council sure won't tell us. We've asked!"

Too bad the letter writers didn't sign their names or addresses.

Chou's Hard Line Dashes Nixon Hopes

By STEWART HENSLEY
UPI Diplomatic Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon's efforts to improve relations with Peking are doomed to failure, at least for the immediate future, judging from recent statements attributed to Premier Chou en Lai.

And if Chou meant what he said, it will make little difference whether the United Nations votes to admit Red China to the world organization next fall since his conditions for joining are not likely to be met.

Chou's position was made known in two recent interviews with an American author, Edgar Snow. The statements to Snow were put together in an article published in the magazine New Republic. Snow is a long time friend of Chou, having known him and Mao Tse Tung since 1936 when the Communists pulled back to northwestern China to build their strength for the ultimate takeover of the country, which they accomplished in 1949.

Nixon's moves to try to improve relations with Peking during the past 18 months have consisted of removal of some of the restrictions on trade and removal of all restrictions against travel to the mainland by U.S. citizens.

These steps were designed to persuade the communists that the United States wanted to move toward a less acrimonious relationship, but there is no evidence whatever that they have softened at all the tough attitude of Chou on the big issue separating the two nations: the future of the nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan.

The United States is committed to defend the Nationalists against attack from the mainland. This commitment is embodied in a mutual security treaty concluded in 1954, and President Nixon has stressed repeatedly that he will honor that pledge.

Chou made it clear, in his talks with Snow, that the United States must end its "armed protectorate" over Taiwan before there could be any real diplomatic communication between Washington and Peking.

The United States, faced with mounting U. N. sentiment for the admission of Red China, is moving toward the adoption of what is called a "two-China" policy. Under such a policy the United States would not oppose admission of Peking, but would insist that Nationalist China also retain its seat.

Chou was asked by Snow how his country would respond if the United States voted to admit Peking and if his government were given a seat in the Security Council now held by the Nationalist Government. Chou replied that if the Chiang Kai Shek "clique" —as he describes the Nationalist government on Taiwan —were thrown out of the United Nations altogether, then Peking "would consider" joining.

The United States is firmly opposed to this. It could block expulsion of the Nationalists by using its veto power —and undoubtedly would do so.

The Chinese premier's attitude also appeared to rule out any resumption of sporadic meetings between the U. S. and Chinese ambassadors in Poland. The Chinese broke off these talks last spring as a gesture of protest against the U. S. move into Cambodia.

Minor Injuries To Passengers

Three passengers have suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident on Highway 101, south of Sierra Avenue, Cotati, and were treated at Hillcrest Hospital. Petaluma, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers said a car driven by Louis O. Bonomi of 399 Sierra Avenue, Cotati, struck the rear of a car driven by James Beacker, 18, of Santa Rosa, which had stopped at 12:35 a.m. Saturday.

James Ellison, 22, and Ronald Neal, 22, both of Oakland, suffered bruises, and Steven Petilla, 18, of Santa Rosa, suffered a facial cut. All were passengers in the Beacker car.

Pot Suspect Is Arrested

Corte Madera police have arrested Thomas F. Dillon, 23, of San Francisco, on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Police said Dillon was spotted "passed out" in his car along Madera Boulevard near the entrance to the Rafters restaurant at 3:05 a.m.

A search turned up two vials of what appeared to be marijuana and a hashish pipe, police said. Dillon was booked at Marin County Jail with bail set at $625.

He was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Adding A Warm Touch To Men's Farm

By DYANNE FORTNER

Nestled atop a knoll along Valley Ford Highway, midway between Bodega Bay and Petaluma, is a rambling, new structure which seems out of place in an area of weather beaten barns and fences. made of ston,e wood and glass, this 11,000 square foot building houses 40 men associated with St. Anthony Farms.

The farm is part of the well known St. Anthony Dining Room on Market Street in San Francisco and was founded in 1953 primarily to raise meat for the free dinners in the city. Both are owned by the Catholic Church and operated by Franciscan Fathers. The Rev. Alfred Boeddeker, O.F.M., whose office is in San Francisco, commutes each Tuesday to the ranch to carry out his supervisorial duties.

Farm residents are men who previously used the services of the dining room and requested a place at the ranch. Free to stay as long as he wishes, each man is expected to work at his optimum in performing ranch chores. Showers, well-balanced meals and clothing are offered in return.

A year ago the new housing facility was constructed from donations of all types of building materials. Currently a lumber firm is donating wood, with which residents will make nightstands.

Upon the building's completion Father Boeddecker approached the farm's board of directors and asked for assistance in putting together an auxiliary. Naturally, these men went home and asked their wives to help, and a few weeks later Mrs. Lucien Libarle of Petaluma was elected first president of the auxiliary.

Millie Libarle says that her organization was asked to give the new ranch house "a woman's touch." Its first endeavors were new wardrobe purchases for each man during the Christmas holidays.

"We took these packages out to the men just a few days before Christmas. Each auxiliary member had baked dozens and dozens of cookies so there would be plenty throughout the holidays. One member's child encouraged his 4-H club to donate a table-tennis table and equipment for the men. When the children arrived with this gift they also came with a tree and ornaments," Millie remembers.

"Those men were so touched by the presence of these young people who really cared. Everyone trimmed the tree, sang carols and enjoyed a pinata. For most of the men it had been years since they had enjoyed the pleasures of this particular holiday. We had a wonderful time," she recalled.

Many of the 20 auxiliary members are Santa Rosa women, but Mrs. Libarle is now actively seeking Marin County support. "St. Anthony's population is not just Catholic; it's absolutely non-denominational. These men come from all over." Any woman in the area is invited to help, says Mrs. Libarle.

"We're a very informal but effective group. Meetings are not important to us," she stated. "There is a board of directors and when we work on a project the bulk of work is done by telephone. Our treasury is our own; we spend the funds as the auxiliary pleases."

St. Anthony's Auxiliary assisted also in the formal dedication of the new ranch house last August when more than 500 persons attended.

Presently auxiliary members have a campaign to drape each window of the dormitory. Titled "windows to the world" individuals and organizations have been approached to donate a small amount sufficient for one window's fabric. Residents will make the rods and brackets with which to install the finished draperies.

A continuing project of the auxiliary has been to gather used blankets and pillows for each room. Another feminine touch has been to place seasonal decorations on each of the dining room tables.

"The men seem to appreciate what we are doing and are eager to help in any way they can," she said.

Serving with Mrs. Libarle on the board of directors are Mmes. Earl Dolcini of Petaluma, vice president; E. L. Davis of Penngrove, recording secretary; August Sebastiani of Sonoma, corresponding secretary; Louis Foppiano of Healdsburg, treasurer; Carlton Spridgen, Charles Toohey and Edward Healey, Santa Rosa board members.

A NEW building housing 40 residents of St. Anthony Farm on Valley Ford Highway between Bodega Bay and Petaluma, is being decorated with curtains by members of the new St. Anthony Auxiliary. The small group of women gathering material to be used for curtains like the finished ones up in the room of Gary Randles, right. At the window is Mrs. Earl Dolcini of Petaluma, vice president of the Auxiliary and inspecting the fabric are Mrs. Lucien Libarle of Petaluma, first vice president, and Rev. Alfred Boeddeker, executive director and founder of the St. Anthony Dining Room in San Francisco.

IN THE spacious dining room of the farm for men overlooking the Valley Ford area Mrs. Dolcini places Easter decorations on the tables. St. Anthony Farm Auxiliary members create seasonal centerpieces. In the rear are Father Boeddeker, Mrs. Libarle and Frank Schepergerdes, farm manager.

How To Shop For Colleges During Summer Vacations

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—For those heading for college, summertime is only part easy-living. For it can be a time also for shopping for a college, even though enrollment is two or three years away.

"College Prospecting" is the term the University of Rochester (N. Y.) uses in a spring roundup of what the campus tourist should look for and what to expect from the perusal.

There's a trend to making the whole family vacation one of college-hunting, says the university's admissions office. But before deciding on an itinerary, the office suggests that the student consult the guidance counselor. His recommendations will help to guide to the college that best fits the needs and interests of the student.

Some further hints for campus prospecting:

Summer is a busy season at admissions offices. If you want to talk with an admissions counselor, make an appointment ahead if possible.

Dress comfortably. Admissions offices recognize that it's hard to look spic and span after a long auto trip with the family but you'll find it pays to stop off at a service station to freshen up before arriving on campus.

Don't be afraid to ask the admissions counselor whether he thinks your qualifications are such as to make it worthwhile to file a formal application. It's important of course that you provide accurate information on your high school performance to date and any aptitude or achievement test scores your school can provide. The more information you bring, the more realistic the admissions office can be about your chances of enrollment.

If you're still a high school freshman or sophomore, you may find it helpful to tour campuses and pick up general admissions and financial aid information this summer. Then wait until later in high school years to schedule a formal admissions interview.

Remember that on many campuses the summertime student body is not the same composition as the wintertime roster. Many schools run summer workshops, institutes and special summer programs for students, teachers and other professional people.

Don't try to cover too many colleges in one trip. You'll be too rushed to get more than a fuzzy idea of each—and you and the family certainly will not have much of a vacation.

If you have time, take in some of the special events on campus. You'll find many colleges offer summer theater, library and art exhibits, concerts, special lectures and sports events. Attending these will be fun for the campus tourists—and a reflection of the character of the school.

After each visit, make some notes on your reactions. These will refresh your memory next fall when you talk over college plans with your guidance counselor.

Follow up your trip by talking with students in your area who attend the colleges you visited. Summer is a good time to find some of them at home to give first-hand reactions to campus life. Also consult alumni in your area.

If your tour raises some additional questions, don't hesitate to write for further information...unless it's already detailed in the catalogs and other literature you received at the admissions office during your visit.

18 Million Americans Suffer From Some Type Of Allergy

Most people are allergic to something — and sometimes to someone.

As defined by the Allergy Foundation of America, "an allergy is a sensitivity which some people develop to substances which are harmless to non-allergic persons." These substances, called allergens, are inhaled, swallowed, touched or injected into the body. Why an individual may suddenly become allergic to something, or why one person sneezes and another breaks out with hives when exposed to the same protein remain, for the most part, unanswered questions.

Although hay fever, the most common allergic disease is primarily due to the inhalation of pollens, other allergens that aggravate symptoms are dust, molds, and animal dander.

Hay fever is more likely to occur in families where hay fever or other allergic diseases exist. Self-diagnosis and self-treatment can prove hazardous.

It is usually necessary for the physician to become a medical detective, and to deputize his patient. Together they investigate the patient's diet, his living habits and occupation. The physician may perform skin tests, and a number of laboratory procedures before the offending allergen can be identified.

Once discovered, it may be possible to avoid. If not, there are a number of measures the physician may suggest to alleviate the distressing symptoms.

Air conditioners and air purifiers help. Desensitization through injections of allergenic extracts do, too, for many.

It has been estimated that there are over 18 million persons in the U.S. suffering from some form of allergic disease making allergies a major health problem.

Two Eagle Scouts For One Troop

It isn't every day that a Boy Scout troop gains an Eagle Scout in its ranks, but Troop 42 of Novato recently gained two at one Court of Honor.

Scouts Scott Lilly, 15, a sophomore at San Marin High School, and Jerry Hendel, 16, a junior at San Marin High, received the awards at West Novato School.

Hendel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence P. Hendel of 6 Nogales Court, Novato, has been an instructor with the troop since September. For his Eagle Scout project, he wrote an orientation booklet for new scouts.

Hendel was a patrol leader and assistant patrol leader with Troop 104 at Kadena Air Force Base, Okinawa, before joining the Novato troop.

He entered scouting as a Cub Scout at Hamilton Air Force Base in 1962 and became a Boy Scout in Okinawa in 1966.

Lilly, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Lilly of 30 San Benito Way, has been the troop's senior patrol leader for the past six months. For his Eagle Scout project, he surveyed the Novato area for potential equestrian and hiking trails.

He entered scouting as a tenderfoot in Troop 42 in October 1966, and has served as leader of the Eagle patrol for two years. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow, and has taken two 50-mile hikes in the Sierra, a 50-mile canoe trip down the American River and has participated in survival campouts on islands in Tomales Bay.

Lilly is an Independent-Journal carrier in Novato. Troop 42 is sponsored by the Novato Kiwanis Club.

Four persons received minor injuries in accidents during the weekend, California Highway Patrol reported.

William Fredrick Morris, 16, of 3 Geneva Way, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and bruises.

He was northbound on Mabry Way, at Rafael Way, Santa Venetia at 6:15 p.m. Saturday when his car collided with one driven east on San Rafael Way by Cheryl Ann Bosch, 24, of 135 Vendola Drive, San Rafael, patrolmen reported.

Julio Cesar Valdes, 41, of Daly City was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruised ribs. His northbound car hit the divider on Highway 101 at the Tiburon overpass at 6:50 a.m. yesterday, patrolmen reported.

Howard A. James, 60, of 523 D Street, San Rafael, was to see his own doctor for minor injuries received in an accident at 1:05 p.m. Saturday on Shoreline Highway 800 feet north of Highway 101.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Floyd Leo James, 53, of 815 Fourth Street, San Rafael. It collided with one driven by John Wadsworth Everts, 15, of 410 Hillside Avenue, Mill Valley. Both were northbound on Shoreline Highway, according to patrol.

Weapons Count In Petaluma

Russell John Mancebo, 28, of 220 Fair Street, Petaluma, has been arrested on suspicion of possession of a deadly weapon.

Officers said Mancebo's car was stopped Friday at 11:10 p.m. on a traffic violation in American Alley at the rear of Kentucky Street. They said a sawed off shotgun rigged to fire while still in its case was seen in the backseat.

As officers reached for the weapon, they said Mancebo attempted to flee, but was caught between buildings a few yards away. He was booked into Sonoma County Jail for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Condominium Application Due A Hearing Tomorrow

San Rafael Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on a proposal to convert a 40-unit apartment house at 237 Picnic Avenue to condominium ownership, at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the city hall council chamber.

The condominum subdivision sought by Picnic Hill, would provide air space division, with surrounding land being "common area."

The commission also is scheduled to resume its discussion on the proposed ordinance governing tidelands and waterways within the city.

Also on the agenda is adoption of a resolution instructing the city planning director to process sign permit applications in accordance with the recently adopted sign ordinance, even though the ordinance has not yet legally taken effect.

Use permits will be discussed for a children's reading center school at 35 Mitchell Boulevard, a grooming and modelling school for young women at 926 Irwin Street, a medical office at 1634 Fifth Avenue, and an auto repair shop at 50 Tiburon Street.

Valley Players Set Play Dates

The play, first presented on Broadway in 1960, is a series of short sketches by famous author James Thurber. It opens and closes with a series of "one-liners" from which the Rowan and Martin "Laugh-in" television show borrowed so successfully.

The play is directed by Barbara Jeppesen of San Geronimo. It will be performed at 8:30 p.m. at the art center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Geronimo.

How To Put Down A Know It All Who Always Has The Solution

DEAR HELEN:

How do you put down a stupid know-it-all? This guy is dumb. But he thinks he is an authority on everything. No matter what you start discussing, he has "the solution" and it's not only wrong but so prejudiced and hateful that you can't just ignore him. He's dangerous, too, for the loud ones get heard, and sometimes believed.

He was the one who tried to get our block organized against a new white family that had an adopted black baby. He started all kinds of rumors, none true, as I proved, but these really great people were made miserable for a while.

I wish there was a law against verbal littering. How do you neutralize a big mouth? — M.A.D.

DEAR M.

When he starts "illiterating in public places" show up his ignorance with pointed questions — and a gentle needle: great for sewing up big mouths. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

We don't have a place to put our fireplace wood under locks, so we stack it out in back.

Each night when we come home from work, our wood pile has dwindled.

We don't point fingers, but our neighbor's chimney belches smoke, and he hasn't bought wood all winter.

To catch the thief, would it be all right to bore holes in a few top chunks of wood, insert small firecrackers or maybe pouches of sulphur? An explosion or a house full of fumes would at least discourage him. — BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED:

Definitely not.

Firecrackers exploding under pressure are dangerous, and sulphur fumes might almost stifle small children or animals. Even though you could prove theft, you might have a big law suit on your hands. And what if you used the wrong piece of wood in your own fireplace?

Better to alert your friendly neighborhood policeman — and let your neighbor know about it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A recent letter in your column reminded me of my own "wonderful, strong, handsome husband" who "isn't normal." He too has sky-dived, but he prefers mountain climbing or shooting rapids in a kayak.

No, my husband isn't normal. He's something very special, not a parasite who is satisfied with watching life via television. Bob must experience the pain, the hardship and the exhilaration for himself, and I am proud of him.

I'm afraid this worried writer is in for much heartache. She has a lion on her hands whereas all she wanted was a big, cozy, overweight hamster. Surely she knew she was marrying a sports nut. If she tries to change him now she will either smother him, drive him crazy, or away. xy advice to her is:

1. Accept what your husband does and try to understand why he enjoys it. I am neither strong nor brave enough to climb mountains, but I can see why he likes to.

2. Do not make him feel guilty. He'll begin to resent you.

3. Listen with interest as he relates his adventures.

4. Pray you will live as long as he does, though he may be healthier, having enjoyed a fuller life.

5. Love him now and always for the man he is, and not as a reflection of what you wish he were. — KAREN

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

An Increase In Tasteless Fruit

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — What ever happened to apples, peaches, tomatoes, grapes and strawberries that used to really taste like apples, peaches, tomatoes, grapes and strawberries?

While government researchers and professional growers have succeeded in developing new breeds that look prettier, have fewer bruises and can be transported longer distances without damage, there is one thing they have increasingly overlooked:

Taste.

All fresh fruits and vegetables are beginning to taste more and more alike. If present trends continue, it may not be long before there will be no way to tell them apart except by appearance.

A few eyars ago, Betty Furness voiced a plaintive plea about this:

"MY OFFICE," she said, "has received complaints from women who have bought food that looked superb — and turned out to be tasteless. Grapes, peaches, strawberries and tomatoes. Consumers are almost tearful about tomatoes.

"Does the consumer really want it?" she asked. "Does he want fruit and vegetables that look as though they were ready to be photographed for a women's magazine — or does he want flavor."

It must be admitted that many people either have dull taste buds or don't know what some fruit and vegetable products should taste like. But many others are becoming disgusted.

A typical comment came recently from a California consumer.

"SOON," HE wrote, "the cantaloupes from the Imperial Valley will begin to be harvested. Now, this is a sort of disgrace to the Nation and to the consumer, that the growers of the Imperial Valley pick these fine cantaloupes before they are ripe, with the result that they reach market hard as a rock.

"Often, the grocer holds them several days in order to ripen them, but you can't ripen a cantaloupe by merely picking it green and holding it. The banana will ripen itself, but the cantaloupe merely shrivels up and the meats inside get like rubber."

The reasons for such practices are obvious. Growers and marketers want to increase their profits by cutting down on damage to fruit and vegetables caused by shipment over long distances and storage for long periods of time. They also want to cut down the number of rejects at the farm or orchard.

The result has been a greater variety of fruits and vegetables for buyers to choose from across the nation. Seasons are no longer important. One restaurant in Washington, D.C., features strawberries all year long. A bowl of them with cream is listed on the menu for $1.95.

BUT THE greater efficiency in marketing produce has submerged some things that should be still improtant to buyers: flavor and nutrition.

Most fruits and vegetables are at the peak of their nutritional quality when they are at the point of maturity. Harvesting them before that point means fewer vitamins, minerals, sugar and other elements of nutrition.

This is not the way many food processors operate, however. It is to their advantage to get fruit and vegetables as close as possible to their point of maturity. As a result, there is a growing gap between the taste and nutrition of fresh and processed food products.

Of course, food processing brings some loss of flavor and nutrition. But it is ironic that as the marketing of fresh produce reaches peak efficiency, the ultimate consumer finds it necessary to turn more and more to cans, bottles and frozen packages to find the best qualities of fresh produce.

Adding A Warm Touch To Men's Farm

By DYANNE FORTNER

Nestled atop a knoll along Valley Ford Highway, midway between Bodega Bay and Petaluma, is a rambling, new structure which seems out of place in an area of weather beaten barns and fences. made of ston,e wood and glass, this 11,000 square foot building houses 40 men associated with St. Anthony Farms.

The farm is part of the well known St. Anthony Dining Room on Market Street in San Francisco and was founded in 1953 primarily to raise meat for the free dinners in the city. Both are owned by the Catholic Church and operated by Franciscan Fathers. The Rev. Alfred Boeddeker, O.F.M., whose office is in San Francisco, commutes each Tuesday to the ranch to carry out his supervisorial duties.

Farm residents are men who previously used the services of the dining room and requested a place at the ranch. Free to stay as long as he wishes, each man is expected to work at his optimum in performing ranch chores. Showers, well-balanced meals and clothing are offered in return.

A year ago the new housing facility was constructed from donations of all types of building materials. Currently a lumber firm is donating wood, with which residents will make nightstands.

Upon the building's completion Father Boeddecker approached the farm's board of directors and asked for assistance in putting together an auxiliary. Naturally, these men went home and asked their wives to help, and a few weeks later Mrs. Lucien Libarle of Petaluma was elected first president of the auxiliary.

Millie Libarle says that her organization was asked to give the new ranch house "a woman's touch." Its first endeavors were new wardrobe purchases for each man during the Christmas holidays.

"We took these packages out to the men just a few days before Christmas. Each auxiliary member had baked dozens and dozens of cookies so there would be plenty throughout the holidays. One member's child encouraged his 4-H club to donate a table-tennis table and equipment for the men. When the children arrived with this gift they also came with a tree and ornaments," Millie remembers.

"Those men were so touched by the presence of these young people who really cared. Everyone trimmed the tree, sang carols and enjoyed a pinata. For most of the men it had been years since they had enjoyed the pleasures of this particular holiday. We had a wonderful time," she recalled.

Many of the 20 auxiliary members are Santa Rosa women, but Mrs. Libarle is now actively seeking Marin County support. "St. Anthony's population is not just Catholic; it's absolutely non-denominational. These men come from all over." Any woman in the area is invited to help, says Mrs. Libarle.

"We're a very informal but effective group. Meetings are not important to us," she stated. "There is a board of directors and when we work on a project the bulk of work is done by telephone. Our treasury is our own; we spend the funds as the auxiliary pleases."

St. Anthony's Auxiliary assisted also in the formal dedication of the new ranch house last August when more than 500 persons attended.

Presently auxiliary members have a campaign to drape each window of the dormitory. Titled "windows to the world" individuals and organizations have been approached to donate a small amount sufficient for one window's fabric. Residents will make the rods and brackets with which to install the finished draperies.

A continuing project of the auxiliary has been to gather used blankets and pillows for each room. Another feminine touch has been to place seasonal decorations on each of the dining room tables.

"The men seem to appreciate what we are doing and are eager to help in any way they can," she said.

Serving with Mrs. Libarle on the board of directors are Mmes. Earl Dolcini of Petaluma, vice president; E. L. Davis of Penngrove, recording secretary; August Sebastiani of Sonoma, corresponding secretary; Louis Foppiano of Healdsburg, treasurer; Carlton Spridgen, Charles Toohey and Edward Healey, Santa Rosa board members.

A NEW building housing 40 residents of St. Anthony Farm on Valley Ford Highway between Bodega Bay and Petaluma, is being decorated with curtains by members of the new St. Anthony Auxiliary. The small group of women gathering material to be used for curtains like the finished ones up in the room of Gary Randles, right. At the window is Mrs. Earl Dolcini of Petaluma, vice president of the Auxiliary and inspecting the fabric are Mrs. Lucien Libarle of Petaluma, first vice president, and Rev. Alfred Boeddeker, executive director and founder of the St. Anthony Dining Room in San Francisco.

IN THE spacious dining room of the farm for men overlooking the Valley Ford area Mrs. Dolcini places Easter decorations on the tables. St. Anthony Farm Auxiliary members create seasonal centerpieces. In the rear are Father Boeddeker, Mrs. Libarle and Frank Schepergerdes, farm manager.

How To Shop For Colleges During Summer Vacations

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—For those heading for college, summertime is only part easy-living. For it can be a time also for shopping for a college, even though enrollment is two or three years away.

"College Prospecting" is the term the University of Rochester (N. Y.) uses in a spring roundup of what the campus tourist should look for and what to expect from the perusal.

There's a trend to making the whole family vacation one of college-hunting, says the university's admissions office. But before deciding on an itinerary, the office suggests that the student consult the guidance counselor. His recommendations will help to guide to the college that best fits the needs and interests of the student.

Some further hints for campus prospecting:

Summer is a busy season at admissions offices. If you want to talk with an admissions counselor, make an appointment ahead if possible.

Dress comfortably. Admissions offices recognize that it's hard to look spic and span after a long auto trip with the family but you'll find it pays to stop off at a service station to freshen up before arriving on campus.

Don't be afraid to ask the admissions counselor whether he thinks your qualifications are such as to make it worthwhile to file a formal application. It's important of course that you provide accurate information on your high school performance to date and any aptitude or achievement test scores your school can provide. The more information you bring, the more realistic the admissions office can be about your chances of enrollment.

If you're still a high school freshman or sophomore, you may find it helpful to tour campuses and pick up general admissions and financial aid information this summer. Then wait until later in high school years to schedule a formal admissions interview.

Remember that on many campuses the summertime student body is not the same composition as the wintertime roster. Many schools run summer workshops, institutes and special summer programs for students, teachers and other professional people.

Don't try to cover too many colleges in one trip. You'll be too rushed to get more than a fuzzy idea of each—and you and the family certainly will not have much of a vacation.

If you have time, take in some of the special events on campus. You'll find many colleges offer summer theater, library and art exhibits, concerts, special lectures and sports events. Attending these will be fun for the campus tourists—and a reflection of the character of the school.

After each visit, make some notes on your reactions. These will refresh your memory next fall when you talk over college plans with your guidance counselor.

Follow up your trip by talking with students in your area who attend the colleges you visited. Summer is a good time to find some of them at home to give first-hand reactions to campus life. Also consult alumni in your area.

If your tour raises some additional questions, don't hesitate to write for further information...unless it's already detailed in the catalogs and other literature you received at the admissions office during your visit.

18 Million Americans Suffer From Some Type Of Allergy

Most people are allergic to something — and sometimes to someone.

As defined by the Allergy Foundation of America, "an allergy is a sensitivity which some people develop to substances which are harmless to non-allergic persons." These substances, called allergens, are inhaled, swallowed, touched or injected into the body. Why an individual may suddenly become allergic to something, or why one person sneezes and another breaks out with hives when exposed to the same protein remain, for the most part, unanswered questions.

Although hay fever, the most common allergic disease is primarily due to the inhalation of pollens, other allergens that aggravate symptoms are dust, molds, and animal dander.

Hay fever is more likely to occur in families where hay fever or other allergic diseases exist. Self-diagnosis and self-treatment can prove hazardous.

It is usually necessary for the physician to become a medical detective, and to deputize his patient. Together they investigate the patient's diet, his living habits and occupation. The physician may perform skin tests, and a number of laboratory procedures before the offending allergen can be identified.

Once discovered, it may be possible to avoid. If not, there are a number of measures the physician may suggest to alleviate the distressing symptoms.

Air conditioners and air purifiers help. Desensitization through injections of allergenic extracts do, too, for many.

It has been estimated that there are over 18 million persons in the U.S. suffering from some form of allergic disease making allergies a major health problem.

Peanut Butter

Peanut butter, an excellent source of food energy, protein, and B vitamins, blends smoothly into cooked dishes while adding tasty variety to common foods, such as potatoes. Either white or sweet ones are zestier when crunchy peanut butter is mashed with them. Meatloaf takes on unusual nutty goodness with peanut butter as an ingredient.

White Gowns Are Joyous

NEW YORK (UPI)—The use of white for wedding gowns is a custom with roots in antiquity when white denoted joy. Early Romans wore white at births, feasts and other celebrations. Among the Greeks, the white rose was an emblem of joy. And the Patagonians painted white decorations on their bodies on joyous occasions. On the eve of the wedding ceremony they covered their entire bodies with white.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

How To Put Down A Know It All Who Always Has The Solution

DEAR HELEN:

How do you put down a stupid know-it-all? This guy is dumb. But he thinks he is an authority on everything. No matter what you start discussing, he has "the solution" and it's not only wrong but so prejudiced and hateful that you can't just ignore him. He's dangerous, too, for the loud ones get heard, and sometimes believed.

He was the one who tried to get our block organized against a new white family that had an adopted black baby. He started all kinds of rumors, none true, as I proved, but these really great people were made miserable for a while.

I wish there was a law against verbal littering. How do you neutralize a big mouth? — M.A.D.

DEAR M.

When he starts "illiterating in public places" show up his ignorance with pointed questions — and a gentle needle: great for sewing up big mouths. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

We don't have a place to put our fireplace wood under locks, so we stack it out in back.

Each night when we come home from work, our wood pile has dwindled.

We don't point fingers, but our neighbor's chimney belches smoke, and he hasn't bought wood all winter.

To catch the thief, would it be all right to bore holes in a few top chunks of wood, insert small firecrackers or maybe pouches of sulphur? An explosion or a house full of fumes would at least discourage him. — BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED:

Definitely not.

Firecrackers exploding under pressure are dangerous, and sulphur fumes might almost stifle small children or animals. Even though you could prove theft, you might have a big law suit on your hands. And what if you used the wrong piece of wood in your own fireplace?

Better to alert your friendly neighborhood policeman — and let your neighbor know about it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A recent letter in your column reminded me of my own "wonderful, strong, handsome husband" who "isn't normal." He too has sky-dived, but he prefers mountain climbing or shooting rapids in a kayak.

No, my husband isn't normal. He's something very special, not a parasite who is satisfied with watching life via television. Bob must experience the pain, the hardship and the exhilaration for himself, and I am proud of him.

I'm afraid this worried writer is in for much heartache. She has a lion on her hands whereas all she wanted was a big, cozy, overweight hamster. Surely she knew she was marrying a sports nut. If she tries to change him now she will either smother him, drive him crazy, or away. xy advice to her is:

1. Accept what your husband does and try to understand why he enjoys it. I am neither strong nor brave enough to climb mountains, but I can see why he likes to.

2. Do not make him feel guilty. He'll begin to resent you.

3. Listen with interest as he relates his adventures.

4. Pray you will live as long as he does, though he may be healthier, having enjoyed a fuller life.

5. Love him now and always for the man he is, and not as a reflection of what you wish he were. — KAREN

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

An Increase In Tasteless Fruit

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — What ever happened to apples, peaches, tomatoes, grapes and strawberries that used to really taste like apples, peaches, tomatoes, grapes and strawberries?

While government researchers and professional growers have succeeded in developing new breeds that look prettier, have fewer bruises and can be transported longer distances without damage, there is one thing they have increasingly overlooked:

Taste.

All fresh fruits and vegetables are beginning to taste more and more alike. If present trends continue, it may not be long before there will be no way to tell them apart except by appearance.

A few eyars ago, Betty Furness voiced a plaintive plea about this:

"MY OFFICE," she said, "has received complaints from women who have bought food that looked superb — and turned out to be tasteless. Grapes, peaches, strawberries and tomatoes. Consumers are almost tearful about tomatoes.

"Does the consumer really want it?" she asked. "Does he want fruit and vegetables that look as though they were ready to be photographed for a women's magazine — or does he want flavor."

It must be admitted that many people either have dull taste buds or don't know what some fruit and vegetable products should taste like. But many others are becoming disgusted.

A typical comment came recently from a California consumer.

"SOON," HE wrote, "the cantaloupes from the Imperial Valley will begin to be harvested. Now, this is a sort of disgrace to the Nation and to the consumer, that the growers of the Imperial Valley pick these fine cantaloupes before they are ripe, with the result that they reach market hard as a rock.

"Often, the grocer holds them several days in order to ripen them, but you can't ripen a cantaloupe by merely picking it green and holding it. The banana will ripen itself, but the cantaloupe merely shrivels up and the meats inside get like rubber."

The reasons for such practices are obvious. Growers and marketers want to increase their profits by cutting down on damage to fruit and vegetables caused by shipment over long distances and storage for long periods of time. They also want to cut down the number of rejects at the farm or orchard.

The result has been a greater variety of fruits and vegetables for buyers to choose from across the nation. Seasons are no longer important. One restaurant in Washington, D.C., features strawberries all year long. A bowl of them with cream is listed on the menu for $1.95.

BUT THE greater efficiency in marketing produce has submerged some things that should be still improtant to buyers: flavor and nutrition.

Most fruits and vegetables are at the peak of their nutritional quality when they are at the point of maturity. Harvesting them before that point means fewer vitamins, minerals, sugar and other elements of nutrition.

This is not the way many food processors operate, however. It is to their advantage to get fruit and vegetables as close as possible to their point of maturity. As a result, there is a growing gap between the taste and nutrition of fresh and processed food products.

Of course, food processing brings some loss of flavor and nutrition. But it is ironic that as the marketing of fresh produce reaches peak efficiency, the ultimate consumer finds it necessary to turn more and more to cans, bottles and frozen packages to find the best qualities of fresh produce.

ONE FOR THE ROAD — Car designer Bruce Weeks checks off another glass fiber auto shell for shipment. The youthful designer decided about a year ago that anything Detroit could do, he could do better. The result is a flourishing business.

They Shell Out For His Design

By ERIK M. INGRAM

At 20, auto designer Bruce Weeks may well be on his way to fame and fortune, for he appears to have found yet another soft spot in America's auto-buying appetite.

Weeks's product is a sporty fiberglass car body that can be fitted easily to the frame of a Volkswagen "bug." The result is dramatic.

So dramatic, the College of Marin sophomore says, that his Invader GT isn't for everyone.

It's designed for the man with a youthful yen for one of those sleek Italian racing jobs, but with finances only for a German economy model.

A Weeks sales brochure teases: "If you're a man satisfied with the sluggish handling and box-like styling found in the Detroit monsters, then don't order an Invader."

Weeks said the other day he's sold more than 20 of the special auto bodies "and the letters are pouring in."

The rise from college student to business executive began about a year ago when he and a companion decided they could build an auto body shell better — and cheaper —than those already on the market.

They built a wooden shape over a VW chassis, built it up with clay and refined the clay to the contours they wanted. A mold was then cast over the clay and now serves to mold fiberglass bodies.

Sitting four inches off the ground in the driver's seat of his Invader, which serves both as a demonstrator model and an office, the lanky Woodacre youth said he has since bought out his partner, is now the company's lone executive, and business is good.

And as the lone executive, Weeks said with a smile, he receives all profits from the sleek-nosed product. The Invader body costs $595 for the standard kit, including mounts, and $795 for the deluxe, which features a pair of plexiglass, gullwing doors and tailored upholstery for deep-fitted bucket seats.

The subject of profits was skirted by Weeks, who mumbled something about "trade secrets."

The youth said he is selling dealerships around the country at a price ranging from $500 to $5,000, depending on territory. Three already have been sold — in Connecticut, Colorado and Indiana, Weeks said.

San Rafael sales are located at the company garage at 180 Paul Drive in Northgate Industrial Park. However, says Weeks, he's interested in selling a dealership in the San Rafael area, since school studies limit the garage's operation to Saturdays.

Weeks — who says he has no intention of remaining solely in the auto business and is looking to a law career —predicted the Invader body style "will be good until 1975 because of its futuristic design."

Week's personal Invader was built for less than $2,000. He said the added cost included purchase of an early vintage VW and converstion to Chevrolet wheels.

"It really gets the looks — and 35 miles to the gallon," he said.

Abortion Laws' Revision Urged In Legislation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation making major changes in the state's abortion law, including repealing a portion of the provision which allows abortions to preserve the mental health of the mother, was proposed today by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach.

Burke said introduction of the five bills and one resolution "in no way was to imply that I condone or accept abortions as means toward effecting birth control, or as a way of skirting one's responsibility for their actions."

"The purpose of these bills is a step toward preventing the flagrant abuses and toward closing some of the loopholes which some people have used to side-step the law for their own gain," said Burke.

Three Held In Shooting Spree

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police arrested three young men Sunday in what they described as a series of senseless shootings that left three persons wounded.

Officers, who followed a trail of blood, took into custody men they identified as Henry phillips, 20; James C. Taylor, 21; and Charles Hill, 19.

Those hurt are Charles Young, 15, who was robbed of a cigarette lighter and then shot in the elbow; Michael Allen, who was robbed of $15 and shot in the stomach; and Martha Mitchell, 15, who police say was struck in the head by a random shot.

None are in serious condition, doctors say.

The arrested men were held for investigations into attempted murder, assault and robbery.

Charity Fund Plans Campaign

Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of San Francisco, which serves San Francisco, Marin, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, will have its annual appeal May 16.

Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken announced the goal is $450,000, and the appeal will be directed to every church and parish in the archdiocese.

"The annual collection for archidiocesan charities is a continuing expression of charity," he said. "Each wage earner is urged to pledge a regular monthly gift to help others less fortunate than himself."

Soviets Urge Global Effort For Second Decade In Space

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union marked man's first decade in space today by seeking more cooperation with American astronauts and saying orbital stations and robot explorers are its chief goals in the 1970s.

Soviet cosmonaut Yuri A. Gagarin 10 years ago today made man's first flight in space, orbiting the earth once in Vostok 1.

"The road to the planets is hope," Moscow Radio said in announcing Gagarin's feat. It was Gagarin's only space flight. He died in an airplane crash in 1968.

In a letter to the Communist party newspaper Pravda today, 19 Soviet cosmonauts said:

"We think that in the interest of peace and friendship between the peoples of our planet, business cooperation between space explorers of different countries, including the Soviet Union and the United States, should develop and grow stronger."

Writing in the same edition of Pravda, top space scientist Boris N. Petrov said orbital stations and a more sophisticated generation of robot explorers are the chief Soviet goals in the second space decade.

"The second decade could be called an epoch of orbital stations, planned research work of men in conditions of space laboratories, a decade of wide use of automatic stations," Petrov wrote.

"Space exploration would go along the way of gradually setting up simple—in the beginning — orbital stations which would be followed by more complicated and bigger orbital stations for exploration, scientific and technical experiments."

Writing Sunday in the weekly magazine Ogonyok, Petrov called for "fruitful international cooperation" in space exploration.

"The task of constructing space exploration facilities and the usage of outer space for peaceful purposes is the favorable basis for fruitful international cooperation wherein both big and small countries can effectively participate."

Apparently referring to the United States, the scientist added:

"The broadness and the versatility of the tasks of the exploration of outer space cannot be covered by one country no matter how high a level of scientific and technical prowess the country has achieved."

Volcano Viewers Off Mt. Etna During Eruption

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — Authorities ordered tourists today back from the upper slopes of Mt. Etna, where for more than a week Europe's tallest volcano has been rumbling and bubbling lava.

Police said hundreds of tourists climbed the sides of the 10,902 foot high Etna to see a fireworks display unmatched since 1949.

But authorities also emphasized there was no immediate danger to villages and farms dotting the lower slopes of the volcano.

Rivers of lava, which scientists said were as hot as 3,630 degrees fahrenheit inched down the slopes at a measured speed of between 7 and 10 feet per hour.

White Gowns Are Joyous

NEW YORK (UPI)—The use of white for wedding gowns is a custom with roots in antiquity when white denoted joy. Early Romans wore white at births, feasts and other celebrations. Among the Greeks, the white rose was an emblem of joy. And the Patagonians painted white decorations on their bodies on joyous occasions. On the eve of the wedding ceremony they covered their entire bodies with white.

Hawkins Modifies Principal Plans

Principalships at Redwood and Tamalpais high schools will survive — at least for one more year — under yet another recommendation to be heard tonight by the district board.

Dr. Wilber D. Hawkins, district superintendent, said today that "to ease anxieties on the part of the staff and community," he has modified his earlier proposal to terminate the post of principal at all three district high schools.

He will instead recommend a course of action suggested by Dr. Surjit Singh, chairman of the Ad Hoc Congress studying the plan, that only Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo undergo change.

Hawkins's controversial reorganization plan would replace principals with assistant superintendents. They would assume the principals' duties plus those of four district office administrative posts being eliminated.

Singh's proposal calls for a test of Hawkins's plan by hiring only one assistant superintendent to lake the place of Principal Harold Allison of Drake High School who will step down at the end of the school year.

The alternate proposal suggested by Singh also calls for retention of the four district office administrators to act as liaisons between schools thus keeping lines of communication open.

However, a district spokesman said today Hawkins still plans to modify these positions once it is determined to what extent their responsibilities can be absorbed by personnel at the three schools.

Hawkins said his decision to change tonight's recommendation came with realization that his proposal had become confused with "some issues" never intended.

He said those issues included a staff and community misunderstanding that his reorganization plan was intended to split the district, was a means of ridding the district of two principals, and a dehumanizing of students.

"By demonstrating the effectiveness of the plan at one school," Hawkins said, "it will show the opposition the plan can work."

He said the two principals, Raymond J. Bell of Tamalpais and Donald Kreps of Redwood, would spend next year in "a training program to demonstrate their ability" to handle the tasks assigned assistant superintendents under his plan.

The board will consider the Singh proposal tonight at 8 o'clock at the Redwood High School gymnasium in Larkspur.

2 Cycle Riders Hurt In Mishaps

Two men stationed on the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Coral Sea, berthed at Hunter's Point, San Francisco, were injured yesterday in separate motorcycle accidents on Shoreline Highway, the California Highway Patrol has reported.

Officers said Leonard C. Smith, 21, was injured when his vehicle skidded on a curve of Shoreline Highway two miles north of Stinson Beach at 5:20 p.m.

He was treated at Marin General Hospital for multiple facial cuts and shoulder separation and transferred to Oak Knoll Naval Hospital, Oakland.

In the second accident, the patrol said, Patrick J. Cervantez, 23, lost control of his motorcycle on a curve of Shoreline Highway 1.5 miles north of Panoramic Highway near Stinson Beach at 6:10 p.m.

He was reported in good condition today at Letterman General Hospital at the Presidio of San Francisco with broken ribs.

Court Rules Blagborne Police Dismissal Valid

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The reinstatement bid of former Petaluma police officer Robert C. Blagborne was rejected today in Sonoma County Superior Court.

Judge Kenneth M. Eymann ruled that Blagborne's dismissal was valid and that he had not shown that it was caused by his participation in wage negotiations last summer.

Blagborne and his attorney, Paul E. Neuer of San Francisco, had attempted to show that Blagborne was considered a fine police officer until he participated in wage negotiations as a member of the Petaluma Police Officers Association.

The wage negotiations nearly led to a police strike last August.

Judge Eymann noted that efficiency reports prepared on Blagborne by his watch commanders had shown him to be a competent officer until the August 1970 report when personality and temperament problems were reported.

In September, when Blagborne's one-year probationary period was to have ended, it was extended by three months. His superiors said it was hoped he could resolve some of his problems in that time period.

Blagborne was dismissed at the end of that period on Dec. 10.

Judge Eymann found the city was acting within its personnel rules and regulations in extending the probation and Blagborne's dismissal.

Colorado contains six times as much mountainous area as Switzerland.

Man Found Hanged To Death

A 25-year-old San Rafael man was discovered dead yesterday in the backyard of his sister's home at 18 Cermenho Court, San Rafael.

The Marin County Coroner's Office said Larry A. McNeal, of 41 Corrillo Drive, was discovered about 6 p.m., hanging from a tree in the yard of the Joseph Tallariti residence.

His sister, Anita Tallariti, told the coroner's office her brother had been depressed for the past six years, since he was the driver of a car involved in an accident in which two persons died. She reported the young man had quarreled with his girlfriend shortly before his death.

A native of St. Cloud, Minn., McNeal had lived 23 years in California and two years in Marin County. His last job was as a machinist for an engineering firm.

In addition tohis sister, McNeal is survived by his father, Adrian McNeal of San Rafael.

Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Lucas Valley Community Church, 2000 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Friends may call until noon tomorrow at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley.

Man Arrested In Drugs Case

A 25-year-old man caught breaking into an apartment, was arrested on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs and narcotics paraphernalia.

Michael Thomas Martin, 25, of 78 El Camino, San Rafael, was held in lieu of $658 bail in Marin County Jail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

Police were called to 100 Bayo Vista Drive on a report that someone was breaking into an apartment. When they apprehended Martin, he had some red capsules thought to be a dangerous drug and narcotics paraphernalia in his possession.

Coalition Is Backing Bay Government Plan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A coalition of business, environmental and other civic groups today promised a "muscular campaign" to back legislation to create a regional government in the Bay Area.

Banded together as Action for a Regional Environmental Agency (AREA) were the Bay Area Council, League of Women Voters of the Bay Area, Sierra Club, Save San Francisco Bay Association, People for Open Space, American Association of Universtiy Women and San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association.

The aim of their "Save the Bay Area" campaign will be passage of legislation by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, to create a 40-member Conservation and Development Agency of the Bay Area. The agency, whose directors would be elected directly, would have the power to enforce its regional plan on all other agencies except the federal government.

William D. Evers of San Francisco, chairman of AREA and vice chairman of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, said the new group would run the same sort of campaign that won passage of the BCDC law. "We'll have buses going to Sacramento, bumper strips and all that kind of activity," he said at a news conference in the Ferry Building.

Evers, citing the members of AREA, said it was "the first time such a broad-based effort has been made for a bill."

Noting that a similar measure by Knox was killed last year by the Senate Governmental Organization Committee, Evers said AREA was working to have the rules committee assign it this year to the local government committee, which is chaired by Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, co-author of the Knox measure.

Evers said that the measure also had been amended to avoid going to the Senate Finance Committee, also considered hostile to regional government measures.

Knox said that the only opposition to his measure again would be from the Association of Bay Area Governments, which he noted had hired a lobbyist to help kill it.

The assemblyman said that ABAG, run by city councilmen and county supervisors, was opposed especially to his bill because they would not run the new agency. The association's general plans, he commented, were "totally meaningless" because ABAG was a voluntary organization with no power of enforcement.

Three Hurt In One-Car Crash

Three men were injured in a one-car accident yesterday at 6:20 p.m. on Bodega Avenue, west of Petaluma.

The driver, Steven Popko, 24, of 312 Sixth Street, Petaluma, was reported in good condition with back injuries at Community Hospital of Sonoma County. His passengers, Robert F. Krusen, 24, of 8910 Cypress Avenue, Cotati, and Timothy Andersen, 24, of the same address, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for cuts.

The California Highway Patrol said Popko had been driving on the wrong side of the road and went into a creekbed while trying to avoid an oncoming car.

Surf Claims Mother, Daughter

A 47-year-old Sacramento mother and her four-year-old daughter were drowned off the South Beach of the Point Reyes National Seashore yesterday after they were swept into the surf.

Drowned were Barbara Short, wife of Herbert Short, and their daughter Denise Lynn. Their bodies were not recovered.

Constable Michael McLean of Point Reyes Station said the Shorts, and another couple were walking along the beach at about 3 p.m. when a tremendous surge brought the sea upon the beach and waves swept away the two women and the child. The two husbands managed to rescue the unidentified woman, McLean said.

Seashore rangers and a sheriff's deputy responded but rescue of the mother and child was impossible, he said. The beach where the two drowned is a "dangerous area where many previous drownings have taken place," McLean said.

Sheriff's deputies reported the area is heavily posted with signs "No swimming . . . dangerous surf."

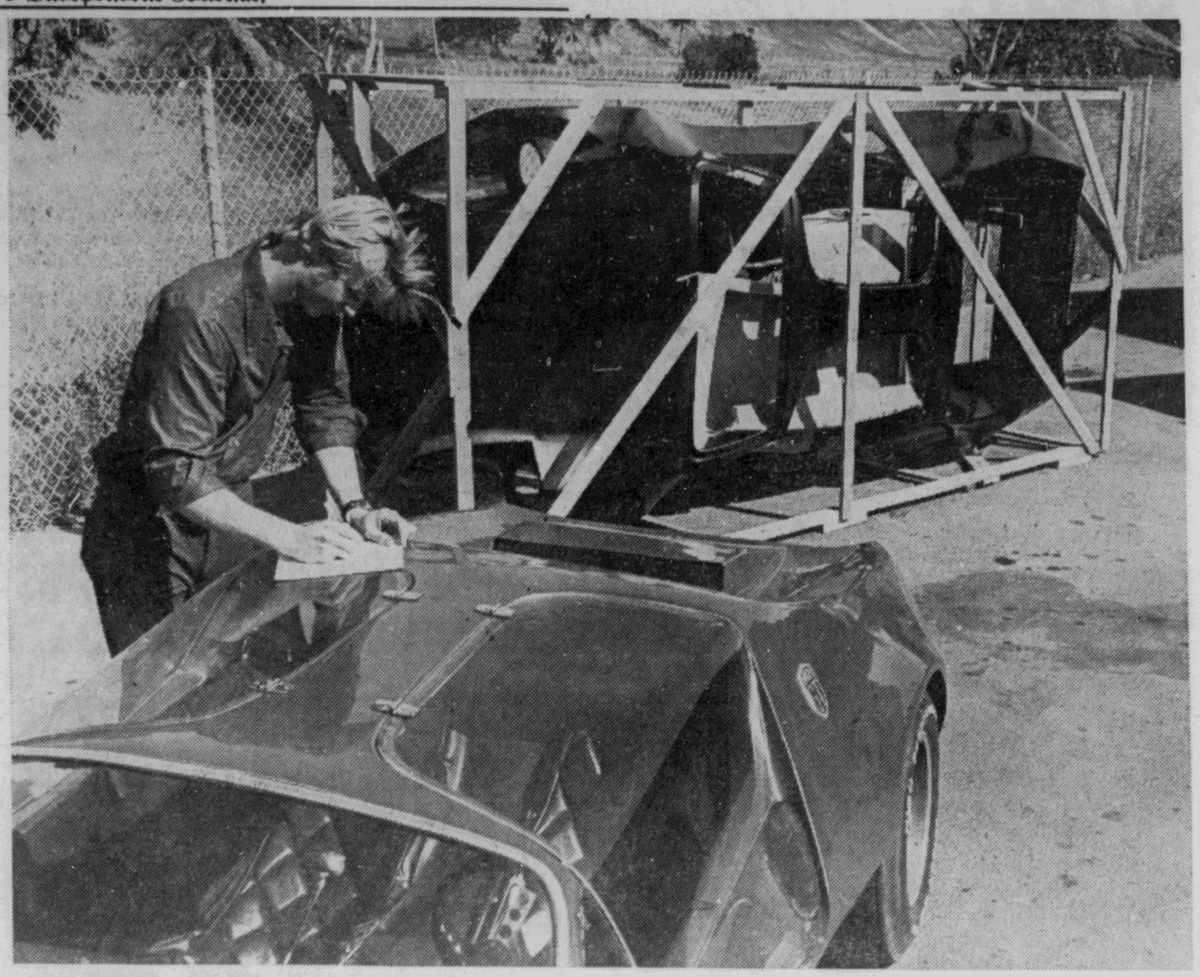
They Shell Out For His Design



ONE FOR THE ROAD — Car designer Bruce Weeks checks off another glass fiber auto shell for shipment. The youthful designer decided about a year ago that anything Detroit could do, he could do better. The result is a flourishing business.

By ERIK M. INGRAM

At 20, auto designer Bruce Weeks may well be on his way to fame and fortune, for he appears to have found yet another soft spot in America's auto-buying appetite.

Weeks's product is a sporty fiberglass car body that can be fitted easily to the frame of a Volkswagen "bug." The result is dramatic.

So dramatic, the College of Marin sophomore says, that his Invader GT isn't for everyone.

It's designed for the man with a youthful yen for one of those sleek Italian racing jobs, but with finances only for a German economy model.

A Weeks sales brochure teases: "If you're a man satisfied with the sluggish handling and box-like styling found in the Detroit monsters, then don't order an Invader."

Weeks said the other day he's sold more than 20 of the special auto bodies "and the letters are pouring in."

The rise from college student to business executive began about a year ago when he and a companion decided they could build an auto body shell better — and cheaper —than those already on the market.

They built a wooden shape over a VW chassis, built it up with clay and refined the clay to the contours they wanted. A mold was then cast over the clay and now serves to mold fiberglass bodies.

Sitting four inches off the ground in the driver's seat of his Invader, which serves both as a demonstrator model and an office, the lanky Woodacre youth said he has since bought out his partner, is now the company's lone executive, and business is good.

And as the lone executive, Weeks said with a smile, he receives all profits from the sleek-nosed product. The Invader body costs $595 for the standard kit, including mounts, and $795 for the deluxe, which features a pair of plexiglass, gullwing doors and tailored upholstery for deep-fitted bucket seats.

The subject of profits was skirted by Weeks, who mumbled something about "trade secrets."

The youth said he is selling dealerships around the country at a price ranging from $500 to $5,000, depending on territory. Three already have been sold — in Connecticut, Colorado and Indiana, Weeks said.

San Rafael sales are located at the company garage at 180 Paul Drive in Northgate Industrial Park. However, says Weeks, he's interested in selling a dealership in the San Rafael area, since school studies limit the garage's operation to Saturdays.

Weeks — who says he has no intention of remaining solely in the auto business and is looking to a law career —predicted the Invader body style "will be good until 1975 because of its futuristic design."

Week's personal Invader was built for less than $2,000. He said the added cost included purchase of an early vintage VW and converstion to Chevrolet wheels.

"It really gets the looks — and 35 miles to the gallon," he said.

Abortion Laws' Revision Urged In Legislation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation making major changes in the state's abortion law, including repealing a portion of the provision which allows abortions to preserve the mental health of the mother, was proposed today by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach.

Burke said introduction of the five bills and one resolution "in no way was to imply that I condone or accept abortions as means toward effecting birth control, or as a way of skirting one's responsibility for their actions."

"The purpose of these bills is a step toward preventing the flagrant abuses and toward closing some of the loopholes which some people have used to side-step the law for their own gain," said Burke.

Three Held In Shooting Spree

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police arrested three young men Sunday in what they described as a series of senseless shootings that left three persons wounded.

Officers, who followed a trail of blood, took into custody men they identified as Henry phillips, 20; James C. Taylor, 21; and Charles Hill, 19.

Those hurt are Charles Young, 15, who was robbed of a cigarette lighter and then shot in the elbow; Michael Allen, who was robbed of $15 and shot in the stomach; and Martha Mitchell, 15, who police say was struck in the head by a random shot.

None are in serious condition, doctors say.

The arrested men were held for investigations into attempted murder, assault and robbery.

Charity Fund Plans Campaign

Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of San Francisco, which serves San Francisco, Marin, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, will have its annual appeal May 16.

Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken announced the goal is $450,000, and the appeal will be directed to every church and parish in the archdiocese.

"The annual collection for archidiocesan charities is a continuing expression of charity," he said. "Each wage earner is urged to pledge a regular monthly gift to help others less fortunate than himself."

Soviets Urge Global Effort For Second Decade In Space

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union marked man's first decade in space today by seeking more cooperation with American astronauts and saying orbital stations and robot explorers are its chief goals in the 1970s.

Soviet cosmonaut Yuri A. Gagarin 10 years ago today made man's first flight in space, orbiting the earth once in Vostok 1.

"The road to the planets is hope," Moscow Radio said in announcing Gagarin's feat. It was Gagarin's only space flight. He died in an airplane crash in 1968.

In a letter to the Communist party newspaper Pravda today, 19 Soviet cosmonauts said:

"We think that in the interest of peace and friendship between the peoples of our planet, business cooperation between space explorers of different countries, including the Soviet Union and the United States, should develop and grow stronger."

Writing in the same edition of Pravda, top space scientist Boris N. Petrov said orbital stations and a more sophisticated generation of robot explorers are the chief Soviet goals in the second space decade.

"The second decade could be called an epoch of orbital stations, planned research work of men in conditions of space laboratories, a decade of wide use of automatic stations," Petrov wrote.

"Space exploration would go along the way of gradually setting up simple—in the beginning — orbital stations which would be followed by more complicated and bigger orbital stations for exploration, scientific and technical experiments."

Writing Sunday in the weekly magazine Ogonyok, Petrov called for "fruitful international cooperation" in space exploration.

"The task of constructing space exploration facilities and the usage of outer space for peaceful purposes is the favorable basis for fruitful international cooperation wherein both big and small countries can effectively participate."

Apparently referring to the United States, the scientist added:

"The broadness and the versatility of the tasks of the exploration of outer space cannot be covered by one country no matter how high a level of scientific and technical prowess the country has achieved."

Volcano Viewers Off Mt. Etna During Eruption

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — Authorities ordered tourists today back from the upper slopes of Mt. Etna, where for more than a week Europe's tallest volcano has been rumbling and bubbling lava.

Police said hundreds of tourists climbed the sides of the 10,902 foot high Etna to see a fireworks display unmatched since 1949.

But authorities also emphasized there was no immediate danger to villages and farms dotting the lower slopes of the volcano.

Rivers of lava, which scientists said were as hot as 3,630 degrees fahrenheit inched down the slopes at a measured speed of between 7 and 10 feet per hour.

Today is Monday, April 12, the 102nd day of 1971.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aries.

American statesman Henry Clay was born April 12, 1777.

On this day in history:

In 1861 the Civil War began when Confederate troops opened fire on Fort Sumter, S.C.

In 1945 President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga. Roughly three hours later Vice President Harry Truman was sworn in as chief executive.

In 1954 Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, referred to as the "father of the atomic bomb," was suspended by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission as a possible security risk.

In 1961 Russia launched a man into space. He became the first human to orbit the earth and return safely.

A thought for today: American writer George Curtis said, "Imagination is as good as many voyages . . . and how much cheaper."

Cattle Complaint

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some dairy cattle will just as soon eat the baling wire as the hay it bales. When they do, it's possible they'll become victims of Hardware Disease, resulting in reduced milk production and even death to the animal. Most recent solution to the problem is wire replacement by a twine made from plastic.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Shifting In the Cards Is Quite Out of Line For Play

"Please settle a big dispute that had disrupted my wife's bridge group. Some of my wife's friends say that I am not fit to play bridge with hyenas; the rest of them say that I am. Since you have written about hyenas in one of your bridge books, perhaps you will decide this point for them and get me off the hook." Thus begins a plaintive letter from a West Coast reader, who encloses the hand that got him into the hyena cage.

HEART LEAD

"The opening lead was the king of hearts, and I saw at once that I would lose two hearts and might lose two trump tricks. The best chance to make the hand was to persuade the opening leader to switch to a different suit at the second trick.

"I dropped the queen of hearts from my hand on the first trick, and then shifted some of the cards in my hand. Many of the players in this game shift cards when they're out of a suit in order to continue to alternate red and black suits; and I hoped that my little act would make the opening leader think I was out of hearts.

"The lady at my left looked at me suspiciously but decided to believe me, as she later remarked. She switched to the eight of clubs, and of course I got rid of the deuce of hearts on a high diamond.

UNFINISHED HAND

"My contract was now unbeatable, but we never finished the hand. The opponents screeched like a pair of bilked baboons. The printable portion of their remarks was that I had no right to shift the cards in my hand when I dropped the queen of hearts. I said I could shift my cards whenever I pleased. Who is right?"

I'm happy to report that those who say my correspondent is not fit to play bridge with hyenas are wrong. I know several hyenas who shift their cards and stage other acts when they play bridge. They would gladly accept my correspondent into their game.

A FINE PLAY

Dropping the queen of hearts is a fine play, but shifting the cards is quite out of line. In an ethical game you must try to win by the card you play, not by your manner of playing the card.

Hawkins Modifies Principal Plans

Principalships at Redwood and Tamalpais high schools will survive — at least for one more year — under yet another recommendation to be heard tonight by the district board.

Dr. Wilber D. Hawkins, district superintendent, said today that "to ease anxieties on the part of the staff and community," he has modified his earlier proposal to terminate the post of principal at all three district high schools.

He will instead recommend a course of action suggested by Dr. Surjit Singh, chairman of the Ad Hoc Congress studying the plan, that only Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo undergo change.

Hawkins's controversial reorganization plan would replace principals with assistant superintendents. They would assume the principals' duties plus those of four district office administrative posts being eliminated.

Singh's proposal calls for a test of Hawkins's plan by hiring only one assistant superintendent to lake the place of Principal Harold Allison of Drake High School who will step down at the end of the school year.

The alternate proposal suggested by Singh also calls for retention of the four district office administrators to act as liaisons between schools thus keeping lines of communication open.

However, a district spokesman said today Hawkins still plans to modify these positions once it is determined to what extent their responsibilities can be absorbed by personnel at the three schools.

Hawkins said his decision to change tonight's recommendation came with realization that his proposal had become confused with "some issues" never intended.

He said those issues included a staff and community misunderstanding that his reorganization plan was intended to split the district, was a means of ridding the district of two principals, and a dehumanizing of students.

"By demonstrating the effectiveness of the plan at one school," Hawkins said, "it will show the opposition the plan can work."

He said the two principals, Raymond J. Bell of Tamalpais and Donald Kreps of Redwood, would spend next year in "a training program to demonstrate their ability" to handle the tasks assigned assistant superintendents under his plan.

The board will consider the Singh proposal tonight at 8 o'clock at the Redwood High School gymnasium in Larkspur.

2 Cycle Riders Hurt In Mishaps

Two men stationed on the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Coral Sea, berthed at Hunter's Point, San Francisco, were injured yesterday in separate motorcycle accidents on Shoreline Highway, the California Highway Patrol has reported.

Officers said Leonard C. Smith, 21, was injured when his vehicle skidded on a curve of Shoreline Highway two miles north of Stinson Beach at 5:20 p.m.

He was treated at Marin General Hospital for multiple facial cuts and shoulder separation and transferred to Oak Knoll Naval Hospital, Oakland.

In the second accident, the patrol said, Patrick J. Cervantez, 23, lost control of his motorcycle on a curve of Shoreline Highway 1.5 miles north of Panoramic Highway near Stinson Beach at 6:10 p.m.

He was reported in good condition today at Letterman General Hospital at the Presidio of San Francisco with broken ribs.

Court Rules Blagborne Police Dismissal Valid

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The reinstatement bid of former Petaluma police officer Robert C. Blagborne was rejected today in Sonoma County Superior Court.

Judge Kenneth M. Eymann ruled that Blagborne's dismissal was valid and that he had not shown that it was caused by his participation in wage negotiations last summer.

Blagborne and his attorney, Paul E. Neuer of San Francisco, had attempted to show that Blagborne was considered a fine police officer until he participated in wage negotiations as a member of the Petaluma Police Officers Association.

The wage negotiations nearly led to a police strike last August.

Judge Eymann noted that efficiency reports prepared on Blagborne by his watch commanders had shown him to be a competent officer until the August 1970 report when personality and temperament problems were reported.

In September, when Blagborne's one-year probationary period was to have ended, it was extended by three months. His superiors said it was hoped he could resolve some of his problems in that time period.

Blagborne was dismissed at the end of that period on Dec. 10.

Judge Eymann found the city was acting within its personnel rules and regulations in extending the probation and Blagborne's dismissal.

Colorado contains six times as much mountainous area as Switzerland.

Man Found Hanged To Death

A 25-year-old San Rafael man was discovered dead yesterday in the backyard of his sister's home at 18 Cermenho Court, San Rafael.

The Marin County Coroner's Office said Larry A. McNeal, of 41 Corrillo Drive, was discovered about 6 p.m., hanging from a tree in the yard of the Joseph Tallariti residence.

His sister, Anita Tallariti, told the coroner's office her brother had been depressed for the past six years, since he was the driver of a car involved in an accident in which two persons died. She reported the young man had quarreled with his girlfriend shortly before his death.

A native of St. Cloud, Minn., McNeal had lived 23 years in California and two years in Marin County. His last job was as a machinist for an engineering firm.

In addition tohis sister, McNeal is survived by his father, Adrian McNeal of San Rafael.

Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Lucas Valley Community Church, 2000 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Friends may call until noon tomorrow at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley.

Man Arrested In Drugs Case

A 25-year-old man caught breaking into an apartment, was arrested on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs and narcotics paraphernalia.

Michael Thomas Martin, 25, of 78 El Camino, San Rafael, was held in lieu of $658 bail in Marin County Jail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

Police were called to 100 Bayo Vista Drive on a report that someone was breaking into an apartment. When they apprehended Martin, he had some red capsules thought to be a dangerous drug and narcotics paraphernalia in his possession.

Coalition Is Backing Bay Government Plan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A coalition of business, environmental and other civic groups today promised a "muscular campaign" to back legislation to create a regional government in the Bay Area.

Banded together as Action for a Regional Environmental Agency (AREA) were the Bay Area Council, League of Women Voters of the Bay Area, Sierra Club, Save San Francisco Bay Association, People for Open Space, American Association of Universtiy Women and San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association.

The aim of their "Save the Bay Area" campaign will be passage of legislation by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, to create a 40-member Conservation and Development Agency of the Bay Area. The agency, whose directors would be elected directly, would have the power to enforce its regional plan on all other agencies except the federal government.

William D. Evers of San Francisco, chairman of AREA and vice chairman of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, said the new group would run the same sort of campaign that won passage of the BCDC law. "We'll have buses going to Sacramento, bumper strips and all that kind of activity," he said at a news conference in the Ferry Building.

Evers, citing the members of AREA, said it was "the first time such a broad-based effort has been made for a bill."

Noting that a similar measure by Knox was killed last year by the Senate Governmental Organization Committee, Evers said AREA was working to have the rules committee assign it this year to the local government committee, which is chaired by Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, co-author of the Knox measure.

Evers said that the measure also had been amended to avoid going to the Senate Finance Committee, also considered hostile to regional government measures.

Knox said that the only opposition to his measure again would be from the Association of Bay Area Governments, which he noted had hired a lobbyist to help kill it.

The assemblyman said that ABAG, run by city councilmen and county supervisors, was opposed especially to his bill because they would not run the new agency. The association's general plans, he commented, were "totally meaningless" because ABAG was a voluntary organization with no power of enforcement.

Three Hurt In One-Car Crash

Three men were injured in a one-car accident yesterday at 6:20 p.m. on Bodega Avenue, west of Petaluma.

The driver, Steven Popko, 24, of 312 Sixth Street, Petaluma, was reported in good condition with back injuries at Community Hospital of Sonoma County. His passengers, Robert F. Krusen, 24, of 8910 Cypress Avenue, Cotati, and Timothy Andersen, 24, of the same address, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for cuts.

The California Highway Patrol said Popko had been driving on the wrong side of the road and went into a creekbed while trying to avoid an oncoming car.

Surf Claims Mother, Daughter

A 47-year-old Sacramento mother and her four-year-old daughter were drowned off the South Beach of the Point Reyes National Seashore yesterday after they were swept into the surf.

Drowned were Barbara Short, wife of Herbert Short, and their daughter Denise Lynn. Their bodies were not recovered.

Constable Michael McLean of Point Reyes Station said the Shorts, and another couple were walking along the beach at about 3 p.m. when a tremendous surge brought the sea upon the beach and waves swept away the two women and the child. The two husbands managed to rescue the unidentified woman, McLean said.

Seashore rangers and a sheriff's deputy responded but rescue of the mother and child was impossible, he said. The beach where the two drowned is a "dangerous area where many previous drownings have taken place," McLean said.

Sheriff's deputies reported the area is heavily posted with signs "No swimming . . . dangerous surf."

Task Force Reports On Pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Industrial polluters and the federal government itself have combined to turn the nation's rivers and lakes into a "water wasteland," a task force sponsored by Ralph Nader charged today.

The graduate students who compiled the massive 700-page report also said the government's campaign to clean up water pollution has been a "miserable failure."

"Because water belongs to no one —except the people — special interests, including government polluters, use it as their private sewers," Nader said in a forward to the study.

When government has moved to stop the fouling of water systems by industry, the polluters "have consistently attempted to excuse the activities by pointing an accusatory finger back at the government," Nader said.

Not only does the government, through the environmental protection agency, fail to effectively administer existing antipollution laws, it is itself the nation's largest polluter, the report said.

For example, the study said in 1968 the Defense Department dumped over 100 million gallons of "inadequately treated" sewage into waterways.

But disease-bearing wastes from sewers are not the chief danger to water supplies, according to the report. A bigger threat comes from the 500 sophisticated new chemicals which industry dumps each year. The public then becomes an unwitting guinea pig to test chemicals the report said.

The task force, which labored 21 months on the study, said under existing laws, industry can secure a virtual license to pollute through "political sabotage." The group urged that:

—Government pollution control officials not be permitted discretion to decide whether they will or will not enforce the pollution laws against industry violators.

—Public officials who are found to "knowingly have acquiesced in pollution" be subect to the same penalties as those who caused the pollution.

—Employers who inform on corporate polluters be given a reward by the government and legal protection from reprisals by employers.

—Individual citizens be given the right to sue industrial polluters who fail to meet federal or state standards.

Poindexter Attorney Calls Case A 'Zero'

NEW YORK (UPI)—A defense attorney said today in his summation that the government's case against Chicagoan David R. Poindexter, charged with harboring fugitive black revolutionary Angela Davis, "comes to a big fat zero."

Stanley Arkin, counsel for the 37-year-old black defendant, told a jury of seven men and five women that the government had failed to provide any evidence Poindexter and Miss Davis attempted to avoid public attention during eight weeks of travel together last fall.

"They were in plain sight all the time," Arkin said, pointing out that they always entered motels together to register. "Would you call that harboring and concealing?"

Poindexter was arrested at a motel here last October with Miss Davis, who was returned to California to face trial on kidnap-murder charges growing out of a San Rafael courtroom shootout. He faces five years in prison and a fine of $10,000 if convicted.

The prosecution presented evidence that newspapers, television and radio were carrying news of Miss Davis' indictment, her disappearance, and the issurance of a federal fugitive warrant for her arrest during a period the couple travelled together last August.

However, said Arkin, none of 44 prosecution witnesses were able to testify they found a newspaper in rooms the couple occupied or that Poindexter saw or heard anything on radio or television "that gave him one inkling of the warrant out for Miss Davis' arrest."

Rate Hike For Coach Flights

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Civil Aeronautics Board today approved a two step fare increase on airline coach flights ranging up to 9 per cent.

CAB Chairman Secour Browne said the increase would cost the consumer from $115 million to $400 million depending on the volume of airline traffic.

Under the board order the airlines got an immediate 6 per cent fare hike. The board also gave tentative approval to another 3 per cent hike in 50 days.

But the 3 per cent hike could not go into effect then if objections were filed.

The airlines had filed for increases ranging from 12 to 27 per cent.

Under the board's decision, some individual airline coach fares could be rolled back because of selected increases granted Oct. 15, 1970, which increased fares by more than 9 per cent.

The fare increase would mean for example that the present Detroit to Miami coach fare would go from $81 to $86, but the Boston to New York fare, which benefited from the earlier increase, would be cut from $26 to $24.

New Pumping Plant To Combat Flooding

Construction has begun on a new sewage pumping plant designed to keep downtown and southern San Rafael dry during storms and to meet pollution control demands of the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The new plant near the Highway 101 overpass will replace the smaller pump station at Grand Avenue and East Francisco Boulevard, which lies in the path of freeway expansion, according to Norris M. Rawles, city public works director and administrator of the San Rafael Sanitation District.

Clearwater Hydromech Co. is building the station under a $496,800 contract; Coast Pump Co. will install pumps worth another $62,530 before the station begins operation in the fall.

The santitation district project will be coordinated with an estimated $1,380,602 modernization of the city's sanitary sewers, Rawles said yesterday. The city has requested $289,000 is federal funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development; the balance will be financed by bond sales already approved by San Rafael's voters.

The sewer line bids are to be opened in May, Rawles said, under the antipollution timetable demanded by the regional water quality board.

On this day in history:

In 1861 the Civil War began when Confederate troops opened fire on Fort Sumter, S.C.

In 1945 President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga. Roughly three hours later Vice President Harry Truman was sworn in as chief executive.

In 1954 Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, referred to as the "father of the atomic bomb," was suspended by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission as a possible security risk.

In 1961 Russia launched a man into space. He became the first human to orbit the earth and return safely.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Shifting In the Cards Is Quite Out of Line For Play

"Please settle a big dispute that had disrupted my wife's bridge group. Some of my wife's friends say that I am not fit to play bridge with hyenas; the rest of them say that I am. Since you have written about hyenas in one of your bridge books, perhaps you will decide this point for them and get me off the hook." Thus begins a plaintive letter from a West Coast reader, who encloses the hand that got him into the hyena cage.

HEART LEAD

"The opening lead was the king of hearts, and I saw at once that I would lose two hearts and might lose two trump tricks. The best chance to make the hand was to persuade the opening leader to switch to a different suit at the second trick.

"I dropped the queen of hearts from my hand on the first trick, and then shifted some of the cards in my hand. Many of the players in this game shift cards when they're out of a suit in order to continue to alternate red and black suits; and I hoped that my little act would make the opening leader think I was out of hearts.

"The lady at my left looked at me suspiciously but decided to believe me, as she later remarked. She switched to the eight of clubs, and of course I got rid of the deuce of hearts on a high diamond.

UNFINISHED HAND

"My contract was now unbeatable, but we never finished the hand. The opponents screeched like a pair of bilked baboons. The printable portion of their remarks was that I had no right to shift the cards in my hand when I dropped the queen of hearts. I said I could shift my cards whenever I pleased. Who is right?"

I'm happy to report that those who say my correspondent is not fit to play bridge with hyenas are wrong. I know several hyenas who shift their cards and stage other acts when they play bridge. They would gladly accept my correspondent into their game.

A FINE PLAY

Dropping the queen of hearts is a fine play, but shifting the cards is quite out of line. In an ethical game you must try to win by the card you play, not by your manner of playing the card.

First Police TV Watch On Streets Is Tested

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (BW) — The nation's first police-operated low light level television system designed for round-the-clock crime detection has been placed in operation by GTE Sylvania Inc., Mountain View, Calif.

The system consists of two all-weather cameras mounted 22 feet above the ground on utility poles. The cameras are connected to two monitors at police headquarters via underground cables. When completed the system will include a 24-hour video tape unit that will record all incidents "seen" by the cameras.

Each camera, mounted on a motor-driven turret, is remotely controlled from police headquarters. They can rotate nearly 360 degrees, tilt vertically 120 degrees, and zoom in on objects almost one-half mile away.

Under the pilot program, the cameras will concentrate on the city's principal business area. From the camera locations, police can scan roof tops, storefronts, doorways and traffic. When desired, the area covered by each camera can be expanded two blocks in each direction, and the camera can "look" into adjacent side streets.

When a suspicious incident is detected on the monitor, foot patrolmen or radio cars are alerted from headquarters.

"As crime increases each year, police departments are seeking new, effective means of deterring it," Thomas J. Delaney, commissioner of public safety of the Mount Vernon Police Department stated. "We are investigating low light level television cameras because they permit completely automatic day and night operation and because police officers can easily be trained in their use.

"Fewer patrolmen should be required in the area covered by the cameras and the presence of the camera may be a psychological deterrent," he added.

The heart of the closed circuit system is a new camera that can easily detect and record a man one-half mile away in extreme darkness. The unit contains a powerful sensor that reacts to light levels too low for normal human vision. If the scene is illuminated by a bright light, such as sunlight, an automatic control adjusts the 29-pound camera to maintain a clear picture and protect the sensor.

California Bank Reports Income

SAN FRANCISCO — (BW) — The Bank of California has reported first quarter income before security losses of $2,137,000, or 74 cents per share, up from $1,612,000 and 55 cents a share in the first quarter of 1970.

Net income after security losses for the first quarter of 1971 of $2,114,000, or 73 cents per share, also was up from $1,016,000, or 35 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1970.

Calls Represent Options To Buy

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have noticed advertisements in newspapers for calls. Would you explain what they are and how they work? — F.T.

A. Calls are options to purchase a given stock within a specified time limit and at a stated price. In order for a call buyer to profit, the stock must go up in price. A typical call contract is written for 100 shares to be purchased within six months and 10 days. The buyer pays a premium usually about 15 per cent of the current total cost for 100 shares. For shares trading at 30 a call would cost approximately $450.

The "striking price" — buy level specified by the call — is usually close to current trading price. In our example striking price would be around 30, thus in order to make a profit shares would have to rise above 34½, not including commissions. This would cover the cost of 100 shares at 30 plus the $450 call premium.

This call would be exercised simply by buying the 100 shares at 30 any time through the expiration date. Profit, of course, would not be realized until shares are sold.

The advantages of a call are: a proportionally smaller initial investment which increases leverage and a known, limited risk. Regardless of how far shares may plunge, the loss is limited to the cost of the call which is then allowed to expire.

The call, which is in bearer form and therefore negotiable, is held by the broker. Not only do the terms of the option appear on the contract, but also an endorsement by a New York Stock Exchange member firm guaranteeing delivery of the shares within the time limit and at the striking price.

As a general rule, dealers write options on request from potential buyers. Terms vary; thus it pays to have your broker shop around for the most advantageous contract. The advertisements you mention represent a minor portion of a dealer's business, inventory which he has built up through writing other types of option contracts.

Market In Good Start For Week

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market was higher in active trading near noon today.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index posted a gain of 0.41 at 102.51.

Harry Laubscher, analyst for Walston & Co., said "Economic recovery will be slow, but we will probably notice a definite pickup starting about the third quarter."

Among the encouraging economic items last week were a Commerce Department report that retail sales in March ran 7 per cent ahead of the year ago period, and a 24 per cent rise in late March automobile sales.

Prices also were firm in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Active Amex issues included Certron fractionally higher on 46,000 shares, and TWA warrants also up slightly on a volume of around 25,000.

On the Big Board, Bausch & Lomb rose more than 4, while Walt Disney and Xerox climbed 3 3-8 and 2 1-8, respectively. Natomas rose 2 1-2.

Steels and motors generally added fractions. So did most airlines, and aircrafts.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Incomprehensible Tax Form? Reach For Your Crystal Ball!

If you receive a letter from IRS in reference to any tax return that you have filed or not filed, payments that you have made or not made, don't give up if it looks incomprehensible at first. The IRS has 1,306 forms that are machine prepared and shipped out to the taxpayer.

That's right. The IRS has issued Publication 676 (1-70), "Catalog of Forms, Form Letters, Notices", which lists 1,306 forms that might affect you, (not counting all the various tax return forms and schedules).

These forms are preprinted and the machine only prints in a little bit of information such as your name and address and the tax form and some clue as to what portion of the form letter may apply to you.

Always read carefully the machine printed portion of the form and see if you can figure out what tax return and what year they are talking about and then see if you can tie in this to any part of the preprinted form.

The IRS has so much correspondence with taxpayers that it is physically impossible for them to do this on an individual basis. Therefore, they have these forms and they cover practically every situation. However, sometimes it helps to have a crystal ball to figure out what they are talking about.

Also, the IRS believes that they allow plenty of time for you to answer their notices if you answer promptly. However, sometimes they do not process your answer promptly and you may get several notices from them about the same time. The best thing you can do is to answer each notice promptly and in full immediately after you get it. Also, it is a good idea to send each answer by certified mail. Then you can prove that you really did answer.

When you write to the IRS, be sure to include the following information:

Name and address as shown on the most recent return and on the return in question, if different; taxpayer identification number (Social Security Number or Employer Identification Number); type of return; taxable period in question; telephone number of the taxpayer or accountant.

Always use the piggy-back labesl and pre-addressed, precoded envelopes as these expedite the processing of returns and correspondence.

Whenever a taxpayer changes his or her name, the IRS Service Center at Ogden Utah should be notified at the same time the Social Security Administration is notified of the name change.

Aerospace Head Hits 'Irrational' SST Opposition

PALO ALTO — (BW) — Science and technology have given Americans more individual freedom than any other nation has ever enjoyed, but today a blind emotional reaction to technological advance is killing off projects such as research into supersonic flight, an aerospace spokesman has warned.

In an SST post-mortem before the Stanford University Graduate School of Business, Dr. Karl G. Harr Jr., president of the Aerospace Industries Association, said the anti-SST movement was only a symptom of a broader and irrational anti-science, anti-technology mood in the country.

As president of the Aerospace Industries Association, which includes the major manufacturers of America's spacecraft, aircraft, missiles and related components, Dr. Harr played a leading role in championing the SST before Congress.

"Without hesitation," Dr. Harr said, "I will say that in my years in Washington, I have never heard seriously advanced arguments as grossly over-simplified and irrational as some of those by the opponents of the SST."

$559,450 PROJECT STARTS — Clearwater Hydromech Co. foreman Ralph Peabody checks alignment of huge steel sheeting pilings that will be driven 25 feet into the ground for the San Rafael Sanitation District's new pumping plant on Francisco Boulevard near the Highway 101 overpass.

Task Force Reports On Pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Industrial polluters and the federal government itself have combined to turn the nation's rivers and lakes into a "water wasteland," a task force sponsored by Ralph Nader charged today.

The graduate students who compiled the massive 700-page report also said the government's campaign to clean up water pollution has been a "miserable failure."

"Because water belongs to no one —except the people — special interests, including government polluters, use it as their private sewers," Nader said in a forward to the study.

When government has moved to stop the fouling of water systems by industry, the polluters "have consistently attempted to excuse the activities by pointing an accusatory finger back at the government," Nader said.

Not only does the government, through the environmental protection agency, fail to effectively administer existing antipollution laws, it is itself the nation's largest polluter, the report said.

For example, the study said in 1968 the Defense Department dumped over 100 million gallons of "inadequately treated" sewage into waterways.

But disease-bearing wastes from sewers are not the chief danger to water supplies, according to the report. A bigger threat comes from the 500 sophisticated new chemicals which industry dumps each year. The public then becomes an unwitting guinea pig to test chemicals the report said.

The task force, which labored 21 months on the study, said under existing laws, industry can secure a virtual license to pollute through "political sabotage." The group urged that:

—Government pollution control officials not be permitted discretion to decide whether they will or will not enforce the pollution laws against industry violators.

—Public officials who are found to "knowingly have acquiesced in pollution" be subect to the same penalties as those who caused the pollution.

—Employers who inform on corporate polluters be given a reward by the government and legal protection from reprisals by employers.

—Individual citizens be given the right to sue industrial polluters who fail to meet federal or state standards.

Poindexter Calls Case A 'Zero'

NEW YORK (UPI)—A defense attorney said today in his summation that the government's case against Chicagoan David R. Poindexter, charged with harboring fugitive black revolutionary Angela Davis, "comes to a big fat zero."

Stanley Arkin, counsel for the 37-year-old black defendant, told a jury of seven men and five women that the government had failed to provide any evidence Poindexter and Miss Davis attempted to avoid public attention during eight weeks of travel together last fall.

"They were in plain sight all the time," Arkin said, pointing out that they always entered motels together to register. "Would you call that harboring and concealing?"

Poindexter was arrested at a motel here last October with Miss Davis, who was returned to California to face trial on kidnap-murder charges growing out of a San Rafael courtroom shootout. He faces five years in prison and a fine of $10,000 if convicted.

The prosecution presented evidence that newspapers, television and radio were carrying news of Miss Davis' indictment, her disappearance, and the issurance of a federal fugitive warrant for her arrest during a period the couple travelled together last August.

However, said Arkin, none of 44 prosecution witnesses were able to testify they found a newspaper in rooms the couple occupied or that Poindexter saw or heard anything on radio or television "that gave him one inkling of the warrant out for Miss Davis' arrest."

Tax Bite Deeper

MANILA (UPI)—Under a new Philippine tax law, taxes on winnings in horse races or jai-alai have been increased from 2½ to 3 per cent. Owners of winning race horses already are subject to a 5 per cent tax on the horses' winnings.

Rate Hike For Coach Flights

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Civil Aeronautics Board today approved a two step fare increase on airline coach flights ranging up to 9 per cent.

CAB Chairman Secour Browne said the increase would cost the consumer from $115 million to $400 million depending on the volume of airline traffic.

Under the board order the airlines got an immediate 6 per cent fare hike. The board also gave tentative approval to another 3 per cent hike in 50 days.

But the 3 per cent hike could not go into effect then if objections were filed.

The airlines had filed for increases ranging from 12 to 27 per cent.

Under the board's decision, some individual airline coach fares could be rolled back because of selected increases granted Oct. 15, 1970, which increased fares by more than 9 per cent.

The fare increase would mean for example that the present Detroit to Miami coach fare would go from $81 to $86, but the Boston to New York fare, which benefited from the earlier increase, would be cut from $26 to $24.

New Pumping Plant To Combat Flooding

Construction has begun on a new sewage pumping plant designed to keep downtown and southern San Rafael dry during storms and to meet pollution control demands of the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The new plant near the Highway 101 overpass will replace the smaller pump station at Grand Avenue and East Francisco Boulevard, which lies in the path of freeway expansion, according to Norris M. Rawles, city public works director and administrator of the San Rafael Sanitation District.

Clearwater Hydromech Co. is building the station under a $496,800 contract; Coast Pump Co. will install pumps worth another $62,530 before the station begins operation in the fall.

The santitation district project will be coordinated with an estimated $1,380,602 modernization of the city's sanitary sewers, Rawles said yesterday. The city has requested $289,000 is federal funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development; the balance will be financed by bond sales already approved by San Rafael's voters.

The sewer line bids are to be opened in May, Rawles said, under the antipollution timetable demanded by the regional water quality board.

First Police TV Watch On Streets Is Tested

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (BW) — The nation's first police-operated low light level television system designed for round-the-clock crime detection has been placed in operation by GTE Sylvania Inc., Mountain View, Calif.

The system consists of two all-weather cameras mounted 22 feet above the ground on utility poles. The cameras are connected to two monitors at police headquarters via underground cables. When completed the system will include a 24-hour video tape unit that will record all incidents "seen" by the cameras.

Each camera, mounted on a motor-driven turret, is remotely controlled from police headquarters. They can rotate nearly 360 degrees, tilt vertically 120 degrees, and zoom in on objects almost one-half mile away.

Under the pilot program, the cameras will concentrate on the city's principal business area. From the camera locations, police can scan roof tops, storefronts, doorways and traffic. When desired, the area covered by each camera can be expanded two blocks in each direction, and the camera can "look" into adjacent side streets.

When a suspicious incident is detected on the monitor, foot patrolmen or radio cars are alerted from headquarters.

"As crime increases each year, police departments are seeking new, effective means of deterring it," Thomas J. Delaney, commissioner of public safety of the Mount Vernon Police Department stated. "We are investigating low light level television cameras because they permit completely automatic day and night operation and because police officers can easily be trained in their use.

"Fewer patrolmen should be required in the area covered by the cameras and the presence of the camera may be a psychological deterrent," he added.

The heart of the closed circuit system is a new camera that can easily detect and record a man one-half mile away in extreme darkness. The unit contains a powerful sensor that reacts to light levels too low for normal human vision. If the scene is illuminated by a bright light, such as sunlight, an automatic control adjusts the 29-pound camera to maintain a clear picture and protect the sensor.

California Bank Reports Income

SAN FRANCISCO — (BW) — The Bank of California has reported first quarter income before security losses of $2,137,000, or 74 cents per share, up from $1,612,000 and 55 cents a share in the first quarter of 1970.

Net income after security losses for the first quarter of 1971 of $2,114,000, or 73 cents per share, also was up from $1,016,000, or 35 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1970.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Calls Represent Options To Buy

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have noticed advertisements in newspapers for calls. Would you explain what they are and how they work? — F.T.

A. Calls are options to purchase a given stock within a specified time limit and at a stated price. In order for a call buyer to profit, the stock must go up in price. A typical call contract is written for 100 shares to be purchased within six months and 10 days. The buyer pays a premium usually about 15 per cent of the current total cost for 100 shares. For shares trading at 30 a call would cost approximately $450.

The "striking price" — buy level specified by the call — is usually close to current trading price. In our example striking price would be around 30, thus in order to make a profit shares would have to rise above 34½, not including commissions. This would cover the cost of 100 shares at 30 plus the $450 call premium.

This call would be exercised simply by buying the 100 shares at 30 any time through the expiration date. Profit, of course, would not be realized until shares are sold.

The advantages of a call are: a proportionally smaller initial investment which increases leverage and a known, limited risk. Regardless of how far shares may plunge, the loss is limited to the cost of the call which is then allowed to expire.

The call, which is in bearer form and therefore negotiable, is held by the broker. Not only do the terms of the option appear on the contract, but also an endorsement by a New York Stock Exchange member firm guaranteeing delivery of the shares within the time limit and at the striking price.

As a general rule, dealers write options on request from potential buyers. Terms vary; thus it pays to have your broker shop around for the most advantageous contract. The advertisements you mention represent a minor portion of a dealer's business, inventory which he has built up through writing other types of option contracts.

A new office in industrial designing has been opened at 1414 Fourth Street, San Rafael by John McLeod Little of Terra Linda.

Most recently Little was with Piper Aircraft Corp., Vero Beach, Fla., serving there as manager for styling, preparing mechanical assembly layouts and in other capacities. Before that he was with Mooney Aircraft, Inc. in Texas and had his own industrial design offices in Toleda, Ohio and other cities.

He has received several awards for his work and has authored several articles in leading technical magazines. His experience covers a wide range of design and production in many fields of business and industry.

VICTOR C. KOCH of San Rafael has been appointed vice president and national sales manager for Benevest, Inc., investment subsidiary of Benevest Financial, Inc. and sister company to Benevest Income Tax. He has been West Coast sales manager for Stewart Capital Corp. of New York. Prior to that he was executive vice president of Beneficial Equities, a national mutual fund and insurance sales organization.

Koch Charshaf

KENNETH W. CHARSHAF of San Rafael has been named a vice president by Bank of America. He joined the bank in 1957 and has spent all of his banking career in San Francisco offices. Since 1969 he has been assistant vice president in the computer systems research department.

MRS. ELIZABETH CATE, a resident at Hamilton Air Force Base, has been appointed assistant vice president of the recently opened Security Mortgage Group in San Rafael and will head the internal operations of the office. Most recently she was operations supervisor of the Marin mortgage division of Redwood Bank and she has also served in the mortgage departments of Security Pacific Bank and Crocker Citizens National Bank.

NEW GENERAL LENDING OFFICER at Bank of America's Northgate office is Mable H. Hansen of Vallejo, who has been on the Santa Rosa regional administrative staff. The title of assistant cashier goes along with the promotion. She succeeds Paul Simmons, who has resigned.

CHARLES VAN EVERA of Belvedere has joined Lewis Realty in Mill Valley. He has been a specialist in aerial tramways and the installation of ski lifts. Also new to the Lewis staff are two former stewardesses with Pan American World Airways, Louise Ritchie and Susan Norris.

MARIN HOMEOWNERS and renters who received a questionnaire by mail in the Survey of Residential Finance being conducted by the Bureau of Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, are being reminded to fill them out and return them to the bureau as soon as possible.

Follow-up copies of the questionnaire will be mailed to those who do not return completed forms. First mailing was started in February and recently completed. Phase one of the survey will be completed this summer and is aimed at obtaining basic information about the financing of housing in the United States. A second phase, to be done in the early summer, will involve mailing questionnaires to lending institutions or individuals that furnish home financing.

TWO ORGANIZATIONS listed as in San Rafael, Kenneth M. Levy, Inc. and Pacific Western Mortgage Co., have been named "Associates" of the National Housing Partnership for the San Francisco-Northern California area. National Housing Partnership is a private organization created by Congress and financed by industry, labor and financial institutions to spur development and construction of low and moderate income housing across the nation.

Market In Good Start For Week

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market was higher in active trading near noon today.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index posted a gain of 0.41 at 102.51.

Harry Laubscher, analyst for Walston & Co., said "Economic recovery will be slow, but we will probably notice a definite pickup starting about the third quarter."

Among the encouraging economic items last week were a Commerce Department report that retail sales in March ran 7 per cent ahead of the year ago period, and a 24 per cent rise in late March automobile sales.

Prices also were firm in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Active Amex issues included Certron fractionally higher on 46,000 shares, and TWA warrants also up slightly on a volume of around 25,000.

On the Big Board, Bausch & Lomb rose more than 4, while Walt Disney and Xerox climbed 3 3-8 and 2 1-8, respectively. Natomas rose 2 1-2.

Steels and motors generally added fractions. So did most airlines, and aircrafts.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL

Incomprehensible Tax Form? Reach For Your Crystal Ball!

If you receive a letter from IRS in reference to any tax return that you have filed or not filed, payments that you have made or not made, don't give up if it looks incomprehensible at first. The IRS has 1,306 forms that are machine prepared and shipped out to the taxpayer.

That's right. The IRS has issued Publication 676 (1-70), "Catalog of Forms, Form Letters, Notices", which lists 1,306 forms that might affect you, (not counting all the various tax return forms and schedules).

These forms are preprinted and the machine only prints in a little bit of information such as your name and address and the tax form and some clue as to what portion of the form letter may apply to you.

Always read carefully the machine printed portion of the form and see if you can figure out what tax return and what year they are talking about and then see if you can tie in this to any part of the preprinted form.

The IRS has so much correspondence with taxpayers that it is physically impossible for them to do this on an individual basis. Therefore, they have these forms and they cover practically every situation. However, sometimes it helps to have a crystal ball to figure out what they are talking about.

Also, the IRS believes that they allow plenty of time for you to answer their notices if you answer promptly. However, sometimes they do not process your answer promptly and you may get several notices from them about the same thing. The best thing you can do is to answer each notice promptly and in full immediately after you get it. Also, it is a good idea to send each answer by certified mail. Then you can prove that you really did answer.

When you write to the IRS, be sure to include the following information:

Name and address as shown on the most recent return and on the return in question, if different; taxpayer identification number (Social Security Number or Employer Identification Number); type of return; taxable period in question; telephone number of the taxpayer or accountant.

Always use the piggy-back labesl and pre-addressed, precoded envelopes as these expedite the processing of returns and correspondence.

Whenever a taxpayer changes his or her name, the IRS Service Center at Ogden Utah should be notified at the same time the Social Security Administration is notified of the name change.

Aerospace Head Hits 'Irrational' SST Opposition

PALO ALTO — (BW) — Science and technology have given Americans more individual freedom than any other nation has ever enjoyed, but today a blind emotional reaction to technological advance is killing off projects such as research into supersonic flight, an aerospace spokesman has warned.

In an SST post-mortem before the Stanford University Graduate School of Business, Dr. Karl G. Harr Jr., president of the Aerospace Industries Association, said the anti-SST movement was only a symptom of a broader and irrational anti-science, anti-technology mood in the country.

As president of the Aerospace Industries Association, which includes the major manufacturers of America's spacecraft, aircraft, missiles and related components, Dr. Harr played a leading role in championing the SST before Congress.

"Without hesitation," Dr. Harr said, "I will say that in my years in Washington, I have never heard seriously advanced arguments as grossly over-simplified and irrational as some of those by the opponents of the SST."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

The Pill May Be Abused For Sex, But Alternative May Be Worse

D. C. writes: "Several days ago I heard that a local doctor prescribed birth control pills for a teen-age girl. I understand she asked for the prescription and told the doctor that if he did not give it to her, she would find a physician who would. In my opinion, this is sanctioning unrestrained sexual freedom." I agree, even tho the lack of contraceptive devices, including the pill, never discouraged illicit sex — if the time was right.

CONSIDER THE alternative, in that unplanned pregnancies are hazardous. Nothing is more pitiful than a 15, 16, or 18 year old unwed pregnant girl. She is desperate and has a dim future even tho many get married. Under these circumstances, the young father must quit school and find a job. Ninety per cent are divorced by the time they are 20. This is a stiff price to pay for a single mistake. Even first offenders in a criminal court are given better treatment by the judge.

What do other doctors think about this controversial issue? At the University of Chicago, teen-agers can obtain advice on medically supervised contraception. In the Journal of Reproductive Medicine for Obstreticians and Gynecologists, two-thirds of 1,763 physicians said they would provide birth control information if requested by an unwed minor without parental permission. And 130 medicos said they would do so with reservations.

OF 597 PHYSICIANS who would not provide this information, 105 feared legal reprisals and 43 declined for moral reasons. Medical Tribune asked three physicians whether contraceptives should be given to all who ask. All said that they did prescribe, but one wanted parental consent if the request came from an unwed minor. The second, an obstetrician and gynecologist, concerned about the increasing number of illegitimate births, was interested in motivating those who should, but do not use contraceptives. In his opinion, we must be realistic about sex. Furthermore, parents and teen-agers should understand the difference between physical sex and sexuality.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

INWARD GOITER

P. B. writes: When an inward goiter is removed, is the thyroid gland taken out at the same time?

REPLY

A goiter is an enlarged thyroid gland. On enlarging, it may grow in a downward direction under the breastbone (inward) instead of bulging out in the front of the neck or on the sides. When this enlargement is causing symptoms by pressing on neighboring structures, surgical removal of most of the gland is recommended.

ORGAN RECITALS

A. L. writes: My mother-in-law who lives with us is ill. It seems that people who visit her insist upon dwelling on their own ailments. We feel this is not good for her or the family. Do you agree?

REPLY

Yes. Tell your visitors not to discuss illnesses with grandma because it is upsetting to her. But people are funny and you may not be successful in stopping these boring organ recitals.

THE DIABETIC TRAVELER

B. D. writes: Is it better for a diabetic who wants to go to Europe to fly or go by ship?

REPLY

Take your choice. There will be no problem if you are on a diet and take insulin or antidiabetic tablets. Insulin injections are easily given provided you have the proper kit.

STARS ABOVE

Big Dipper Now At Top Of Swing

By SHERMAN WALKER

The Big Dipper, the best known of all the figures in the sky, is at the top of its swing around the north pole of the sky and is at its best position for our 9 p.m. viewing. The dipper is close enough to the celestial north pole that it never sets in the northern half of the United States.

If the axis of the earth were extended northward until it apparently touched the sky, that point would represent the celestial north pole. All stars seem to revolve around that point because their apparent motion is due to the rotation of the earth around its axis.

If directions are necessary to find the Big Dipper, face northward at 9 p.m. and look at the region of the sky that is north of the overhead point. Also, look at the region between the North Star and the overhead point.

This constellation is more correctly called Ursa Major, meaning the Greater Bear. It was designated a bear by American Indians before Columbus as well as by Europeans. It is a large figure and contains many more stars than those in the dipper, which represent only the tail and part of the body of the bear.

The two stars at the end of the bowl of the dipper are called the Pointers because a line drawn through them points in the general direction of the North Star, and aids the eye in finding it. All seven stars of the dipper are close to magnitude 2 in brightness, except Megrez, where the handle joins the bowl, which is magnitude 3.

Driver Injured As Cars Collide

David H. Monser, 35, of Martinez, and Susan Heltman, 30, of Pleasant Hill, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for bruises suffered in an accident at noon yesterday on Old Adobe Road, north of Tunzi Lane, Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said the car driven by Monser collided with a car driven by Edward T. Hobbs, 28, of 3678 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma.

Air Activity

There will be more than usual air activity from Hamilton Air Force Base today through Wednesday with the 84th Fighter Intercepter Squadron engaged in defense training exercises to prevent simulated enemy aircraft from reaching the Bay Area, the base public information office reported today.

Father Reports Son Wounded

Navy Lt. Charles (Chuck) S. Hardeman Jr. of 140 Legend Road, Sleepy Hollow, has been reported wounded in Cat Lo, South Vietnam, according to his father, Charles S. Hardeman Sr.

Hardeman, on his second tour as salvage adviser to the Vietnamese Navy, was reported in fair condition in an Australian-based hospital in Vietnam with shrapnel wounds of the back. His father said he was wounded last Wednesday when a Viet Cong rocket exploded near salvaging operations in U Minh.

He graduated from Marin Catholic High School and the University of Oregon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hardeman of Sleepy Hollow.

Adam Powell To Resign Church

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. told 2,500 members of his congregation Sunday he is going to resign as pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church which he has headed for 34 years and go into self-exile in Bimini.

Powell, who took the church over from his father in 1937, said he wanted to resign the post effective Friday, but said he would stay on, if requested, until a new pastor is found.

Powell, 62, who was ousted from his Harlem congressional seat last fall by Charles Rangel Jr., said the "time has come for a change." He said he would preach from time to time at a small church in Bimini.

Easter Egg Roll At White House Draws Hundreds

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The usually secure White House gates were flung open today to hundreds of eager, squealing children pitching into the traditional Easter Monday egg roll.

But in the early hours the host and hostess, President and Mrs. Nixon, were busy with official chores and were unable to greet the youngsters, all below the age of 8, accompanied by their parents. A half hour after the annual event began, some 200 kiddies had poured into the Nixons' back yard.

It was warm and sunny, and veteran egg roll observers said there never had been a more "beautiful" day for the event.

As the southwest gate opened, the visitors walked through a huge carved out egg with a greeting overhead; "Welcome to the White House." The Army band struck up "Easter Parade."

Bay-Area educated, the soprano studied under Dr. Jan Popper at Stanford and has previously worked with Sandor Salgo, conductor of the Marin Symphony, in opera productions. She also has performed with the San Francisco Spring Opera and throughout the country in concerts and operas.

Other works to be performed Sunday are "Afternoon of a Faun" by Debussy and Prokofiev's Symphony No. 5.

This will be the orchestra's last concert in the College of Marin gymnasium before moving in September to permanent facilities in the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Marin County Civic Center.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

The Pill May Be Abused For Sex, But Alternative May Be Worse

D. C. writes: "Several days ago I heard that a local doctor prescribed birth control pills for a teen-age girl. I understand she asked for the prescription and told the doctor that if he did not give it to her, she would find a physician who would. In my opinion, this is sanctioning unrestrained sexual freedom." I agree, even tho the lack of contraceptive devices, including the pill, never discouraged illicit sex — if the time was right.

CONSIDER THE alternative, in that unplanned pregnancies are hazardous. Nothing is more pitiful than a 15, 16, or 18 year old unwed pregnant girl. She is desperate and has a dim future even tho many get married. Under these circumstances, the young father must quit school and find a job. Ninety per cent are divorced by the time they are 20. This is a stiff price to pay for a single mistake. Even first offenders in a criminal court are given better treatment by the judge.

What do other doctors think about this controversial issue? At the University of Chicago, teen-agers can obtain advice on medically supervised contraception. In the Journal of Reproductive Medicine for Obstreticians and Gynecologists, two-thirds of 1,763 physicians said they would provide birth control information if requested by an unwed minor without parental permission. And 130 medicos said they would do so with reservations.

OF 597 PHYSICIANS who would not provide this information, 105 feared legal reprisals and 43 declined for moral reasons. Medical Tribune asked three physicians whether contraceptives should be given to all who ask. All said that they did prescribe, but one wanted parental consent if the request came from an unwed minor. The second, an obstetrician and gynecologist, concerned about the increasing number of illegitimate births, was interested in motivating those who should, but do not use contraceptives. In his opinion, we must be realistic about sex. Furthermore, parents and teen-agers should understand the difference between physical sex and sexuality.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

INWARD GOITER

P. B. writes: When an inward goiter is removed, is the thyroid gland taken out at the same time?

REPLY

A goiter is an enlarged thyroid gland. On enlarging, it may grow in a downward direction under the breastbone (inward) instead of bulging out in the front of the neck or on the sides. When this enlargement is causing symptoms by pressing on neighboring structures, surgical removal of most of the gland is recommended.

ORGAN RECITALS

A. L. writes: My mother-in-law who lives with us is ill. It seems that people who visit her insist upon dwelling on their own ailments. We feel this is not good for her or the family. Do you agree?

REPLY

Yes. Tell your visitors not to discuss illnesses with grandma because it is upsetting to her. But people are funny and you may not be successful in stopping these boring organ recitals.

THE DIABETIC TRAVELER

B. D. writes: Is it better for a diabetic who wants to go to Europe to fly or go by ship?

REPLY

Take your choice. There will be no problem if you are on a diet and take insulin or antidiabetic tablets. Insulin injections are easily given provided you have the proper kit.

STARS ABOVE

Big Dipper Now At Top Of Swing

By SHERMAN WALKER

The Big Dipper, the best known of all the figures in the sky, is at the top of its swing around the north pole of the sky and is at its best position for our 9 p.m. viewing. The dipper is close enough to the celestial north pole that it never sets in the northern half of the United States.

If the axis of the earth were extended northward until it apparently touched the sky, that point would represent the celestial north pole. All stars seem to revolve around that point because their apparent motion is due to the rotation of the earth around its axis.

If directions are necessary to find the Big Dipper, face northward at 9 p.m. and look at the region of the sky that is north of the overhead point. Also, look at the region between the North Star and the overhead point.

This constellation is more correctly called Ursa Major, meaning the Greater Bear. It was designated a bear by American Indians before Columbus as well as by Europeans. It is a large figure and contains many more stars than those in the dipper, which represent only the tail and part of the body of the bear.

The two stars at the end of the bowl of the dipper are called the Pointers because a line drawn through them points in the general direction of the North Star, and aids the eye in finding it. All seven stars of the dipper are close to magnitude 2 in brightness, except Megrez, where the handle joins the bowl, which is magnitude 3.

David H. Monser, 35, of Martinez, and Susan Heltman, 30, of Pleasant Hill, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for bruises suffered in an accident at noon yesterday on Old Adobe Road, north of Tunzi Lane, Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said the car driven by Monser collided with a car driven by Edward T. Hobbs, 28, of 3678 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma.

Father Reports Son Wounded

Navy Lt. Charles (Chuck) S. Hardeman Jr. of 140 Legend Road, Sleepy Hollow, has been reported wounded in Cat Lo, South Vietnam, according to his father, Charles S. Hardeman Sr.

Hardeman, on his second tour as salvage adviser to the Vietnamese Navy, was reported in fair condition in an Australian-based hospital in Vietnam with shrapnel wounds of the back. His father said he was wounded last Wednesday when a Viet Cong rocket exploded near salvaging operations in U Minh.

He graduated from Marin Catholic High School and the University of Oregon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hardeman of Sleepy Hollow.

Adam Powell To Resign Church

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. told 2,500 members of his congregation Sunday he is going to resign as pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church which he has headed for 34 years and go into self-exile in Bimini.

Powell, who took the church over from his father in 1937, said he wanted to resign the post effective Friday, but said he would stay on, if requested, until a new pastor is found.

Powell, 62, who was ousted from his Harlem congressional seat last fall by Charles Rangel Jr., said the "time has come for a change." He said he would preach from time to time at a small church in Bimini.

Easter Egg Roll At White House Draws Hundreds

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The usually secure White House gates were flung open today to hundreds of eager, squealing children pitching into the traditional Easter Monday egg roll.

But in the early hours the host and hostess, President and Mrs. Nixon, were busy with official chores and were unable to greet the youngsters, all below the age of 8, accompanied by their parents. A half hour after the annual event began, some 200 kiddies had poured into the Nixons' back yard.

It was warm and sunny, and veteran egg roll observers said there never had been a more "beautiful" day for the event.

As the southwest gate opened, the visitors walked through a huge carved out egg with a greeting overhead; "Welcome to the White House." The Army band struck up "Easter Parade."

Novato Council Will Pick Member

A former candidate, a man who almost ran and a commissioner who planned to run next year are among the applicants seeking a seat on the Novato City Council.

There is a field of four for the seat to be vacated by resigning Mayor Douglas M. Merrill tomorrow and the council will pick his successor.

Applicants are: Betty J. Machado, a housewife; Lee C. Wise, manager of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s Novato Branch; Planning Commissioner John C. Schoonover; and attorney David Price Jones.

Jones, 36, declined to be interviewed on his views, saying he thought it inappropriate to make any statement to voters, since the voters won't be making the choice. He felt his communication should be directed to the council.

The council has scheduled a closed session at 7:45 p.m. today to consider any further applications for the council seat.

The only strong critic of the council has been Mrs. Machado, a former candidate, who believes there should be a woman on the council "to create balance."

Mrs. Machado said concern about Novato's planned "social action" program and increased authority granted City Mgr. Charles A. Brown prompted her to seek appointment.

She felt "the council needed to have some conservative thinking on behalf of the taxpayers."

Wise, 64, former member of the planning commission, said he is "generally very happy with the way the city is going."

He said he was seeking the council seat because he "would like to work for Novato," and almost ran three years ago. He has been attending council sessions since the city was incorporated, and would now "like to be on the other side of the fence."

Schoonover, 43, western area analyst for the Cyclone Fence Division of U.S. Steel, said he has reached the point of seeking the post gradually, starting with joining the Gnoss Estates Association, a homeowners' group and being assigned as their observer at council sessions.

He served as president of the association, and in January, 1970 was appointed to the planning commission. "I feel the planning commission is a natural intermediary step to the city council because of the city problems, many go through the planning commission." He said he had planned "to run in 1972."

On issues, Mrs. Machado has opposed the plan endorsed by the council to involve the city in social problems by starting what City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has described as a limited community action program.

"I felt it would be too costly on the tax rolls and will duplicate county services in a city area," she said.

The program calls for creating a citizens advisory committee on social problems, possibly a youth commission, and provision of office space for social service personnel who serve the Novato area.

"More than a need for social involvement by the city, there is a need for street improvement," Mrs. Machado said. There also is a need for parks, "but they have to be tailored to the needs of the community. We don't want parks all over town."

Mrs. Machado also contended the city manager has been given too much authority and "needs watching." She also protested hiring an administrative assistant saying: "I don't think we need an aide de camp to the city manager for the type of work being done in this town."

An outspoken critic of the council, Mrs. Machado has asked that it "consider what is 'best for the community' rather than letting petty viewpoints deny me the right to be appointed."

Wise stressed the time that a councilman must dedicate to the job. "If you're going to do a good job, you have to spend a lot of time doing homework," he said. Wise said he now has the time to devote to the job.

He backed the recently adopted downtown plan. "I think it is good and should be implemented and should have a chance to work," he said.

There is a need for parks in the city, but "the money the city has can only be stretched so far, and the people are going to have to help if we are going to have a large program," he said.

Schoonover said the streets were one of the city's major problems, and they have "really fallen into disrepair," but "the city has a money problem."

The city will "have to go to a system of priorities," he said.

The answer to the money problem is a broader tax base, and "I'm sure a lot can be done to get industry here," Schoonover said.

Schoonover, a backer of the downtown plan, said "we are concerned with determining the direction we want the city to go."

One of the key elements in the downtown plan is a regional shopping center, north of the present downtown, and Schoonover believes such a center would "keep Novato money in Novato."

The amount "of purchasing dollars going out of Novato now is fantastic," he said.

The downtown plan will "work out with time, gradually through the years, and isn't going to be all done, boom-boom," he said.

On parks, he said, "It's the same old problem, money."

I-J's Bockrath Wins National Press Photographers 1st Place

I-J Special Report

COLOMBIA, Mo. — Independent-Journal photographer Roger Bockrath has won first place in the National Press Photographers Association's "Spot News" category with a photo taken during the Aug. 7 shootout at the Civic Center.

Bockrath's prize-winning photo showed Judge Harold J. Haley and other hostages being led at gunpoint from the Marin County Hall of Justice.

Bockrath, 21, joined the Independent-Journal in 1968.

A total of 618 photographers from 38 states submitted 10,826 photos in this year's competition for top honors in the judging. The awards were announced at the University of Missouri by the co-sponsors of the event, the National Press Photographers Association-Association, the University of Missouri School of Journalism and Universal Science News, Inc.

The photo competition annually provides a forum where a jury of press and magazine photographers and editors can evaluate the best work of each year.

Bockrath's picture also earned him first place in the spot news category in the California Newspaper Publishers Association judging of the top 1970 picture. He received that award Feb. 6.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance
40,000 miles	Prorated on Miles Driven
40 month	$10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00
18 month	2.00

Tread Wear Expectancy offer does not apply to tires used commercially.

Symphony To Perform On Sunday

Soprano Marni Nixon will be recitalist in the seldom-performed "Facade" by William Walton when the Marin Symphony closes its current season Sunday at 8 p.m. in the College of Marin gymnasium.

Miss Nixon has been heard in several movie sound tracks, dubbing for Audrey Hepburn in "My Fair Lady," Deborah Kerr in "The King and I" and Natalie Wood in "West Side Story."

Bay-Area educated, the soprano studied under Dr. Jan Popper at Stanford and has previously worked with Sandor Salgo, conductor of the Marin Symphony, in opera productions. She also has performed with the San Francisco Spring Opera and throughout the country in concerts and operas.

Other works to be performed Sunday are "Afternoon of a Faun" by Debussy and Prokofiev's Symphony No. 5.

This will be the orchestra's last concert in the College of Marin gymnasium before moving in September to permanent facilities in the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Marin County Civic Center.

The course is open only to high school graduates and there is a fee, reported James Looney, executive director of the Marin YMCA.

Strange Advice From Masters Champ

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Charlie Coody, who got the Masters championship, a new green coat for the Easter parade, and "revenge" all in the same package, joined with the disappointed man he defeated, Jack Nicklaus, today to offer the duffers of America a strange bit of advice:

"If you want to play championship golf—be nervous.

"I never got over my first-tee jitters all day, and it helped me," said the new champion from Abilene, Tex. "It helped me to keep concentrating and keep thinking about getting done the things I had to get done."

"I was just too darned relaxed," said the crestfallen Nicklaus, who saw his hopes for golf's first pro grand slam go down the drain as he and young John Miller tied for second place, two strokes behind Coody's winning nine-under-par score of 279 for 72 holes.

"I birdied the first hole and I thought, 'ah, now everything is going according to plan,'" said Nicklaus. "It never did. But all the time I kept thinking that it was going to—I kept feeling sure that soon everything would start happening for me, that I would get birdies and I would win the tournament. It happened, but the opposite way.

"Yes, I was overconfident," confessed Nicklaus, who already won the PGA championship this year and was aiming at a "slam" including the Masters and U.S. and British Opens. "Not until I heard Coody had parred, did I realize I wasn't going to win."

The 33-year-old Coody fired a two-under-par 70, after starting the day tied with Nicklaus for the lead. Nicklaus had a par 72 and the 23-year-old Miller of Napa, Calif., shot a stunning 68. Miller actually held the lead after 15 holes, standing nine-under-par. But he bogeyed the 16th and 18th.

Coody knows how that feels, all right—until his triumph Sunday he was known in Masters history as the man who had the title in his hands in 1969 and blew it by bogeying the last three holes.

It was "revenge" that Coody mentioned the first thing in his hour of triumph.

"In 1969 I was one mighty disappointed fellow," the tall, slope-shouldered Texan said. "It ate at my insides for a long time. I got a little revenge for that today."

Coody twice blew big leads in this Masters, too—he led the first round by three strokes and had a four-stroke lead at one point in the third round before falling back into a tie. In the end he had to come from behind after young Miller stormed into the lead.

"There was pressure this time, but it was a different kind of pressure," he explained. "That time I was in front and other people were trying to catch me. This time someone else was in front and I was trying to catch him."

Miller opened the door for Coody when he bogeyed the 16th and Coody, playing behind him, came charging through with birdies on both the 15th with a nine-foot putt and the 16th with a 15-footer. But he pointed to a shot on the 17th that saved a par as "the shot that won the tournament."

Fearful of a tree that had caused him trouble on the 17th Saturday, Coody put his drive too far to the left and found himself in a bunker "without a clear shot at the green."

"I knew I was in a fair way to bogey or worse," he said. "I hit a seven-iron, aiming it to the right of the green and hoping to hook it back toward the green. It hooked, but not very much and was 15 feet off

SEASON'S FIRST PITCH

A trio of San Rafael's most distinguished officials officially opened the 1971 Terra Linda youth baseball season Saturday. Mayor Paul Bettini pitched, Supervisor John McInnis caught, and Police Chief Joseph Brusatori batted. Bettini had a lot of infielders behind him — more than 400 boys — but Brusatori hit the ball over everybody into left field. See story and more pictures, page 32. (Independent-Journal photo)

Bucks, Bullets Triumph In NBA

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Larry Costello issued a warning to the Los Angeles Lakers Sunday following the Milwaukee Bucks 91-73 win over the Lakers.

"We're going out there ready to explode," Costello said. "We're way overdue and I can feel it coming."

Costello was talking about the shoddy offensive performance by his Bucks, a performance which was good enough to win, but still way below the Bucks' standards.

Milwaukee shot 48 per cent from the floor, and the only reason they won was because the Lakers could only hit on 33 per cent of their shots.

The 73 points run up by the Lakers tied the record for the fewest points scored against the Bucks in their history, and Costello credited that to a defense by Milwaukee he called "superb."

"Our defense won the game for us," he said. "The guys were really hustling, forcing them (the Lakers) to take bad shots. We were superb."

In the other NBA game, the altimore Bullets stunned the championNew York nicks 114-88 in the third game of the East finals. New York leads the best-of-seven set, 2-1, with the fourth game scheduled Wednesday in Baltimore.

A'S NEED IT

Pitching Help Is On The Way

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Pitching help is on the way for the Oakland Athletics and it can't come too soon.

With the exception of young lefthander Vida Blue, the A's pitching staff thus far this season resembles a battery of batting practice buffoons. Jim Hunter, the A's ace last season with 18 wins, was shelled unmercifully in the first inning and a third Easter Sunday as the Kansas City Royals jumped to a quick 5-0 lead and coasted to a 10-5 victory before 5,238 fans at the Oakland Coliseum.

Oakland also appeared headed for a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Royals Saturday until pinchhitter Tommy Davis doubled with two out in the bottom of the ninth to drive in two runs for a 5-4 A's victory.

Today the A's, now 2-4 on the season, opened an 11-game, 11day road trip through the Midwest with an afternoon game against the red-hot Milwaukee Brewers who sport a 3-1 mark. Rollie Fingers is slated to throw against former A's hurler Lew Krausse.

Joining the A's today in Milwaukee were pitchers Ron Klimkowski and Rob Gardner who were obtained from the New York Yankees in a trade for hard-hitting outfielder Felipe Alou.

"And there's a chance Chuck Dobson also will join us in Milwaukee," said A's manager Dick Williams. "He's been taking cortisone shots for that sore elbow and threw several hard pitches last Friday at Rochester, Minn., without feeling any pain."

However, Williams says there's still a chance that Dobson will have to undergo surgery. A decision on that is expected from specialists at the Mayo Clinic this week. Dobson has been undergoing tests for five days at the famed clinic.

With the acquisition of Klimkowski and Gardner and the possibility Dobson might be available, Williams passed up a chance to sign former Cy Young Award winner Mike McCormick who is now a free agent.

McCormick, former San Francisco Giants lefthander who was cut loose by the Yankees this spring, was a press-box spectator at the Oakland Coliseum Sunday. He said he would accompany the Royals back to Kansas City and hopes to land a spot on their staff this week.

Upstart In AAU Upset

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)—The Atwoods, Meyers and Kinsellas were there and winning—but the loudest and longest applause of the National Amateur Athletic Union shortcourse swimming championships went to an "old man" making a comeback and an upstart sprint swimmer.

The sprint swimmer was Frank Heckl of Southern California who posted his third straight upset win in Saturday's final events.

Heckl shot from behind with a perfect move on the final turn in the Washington State University pool to edge Indiana's Mark Spitz in the 100 freestyle with a winning time of 45.56 seconds.

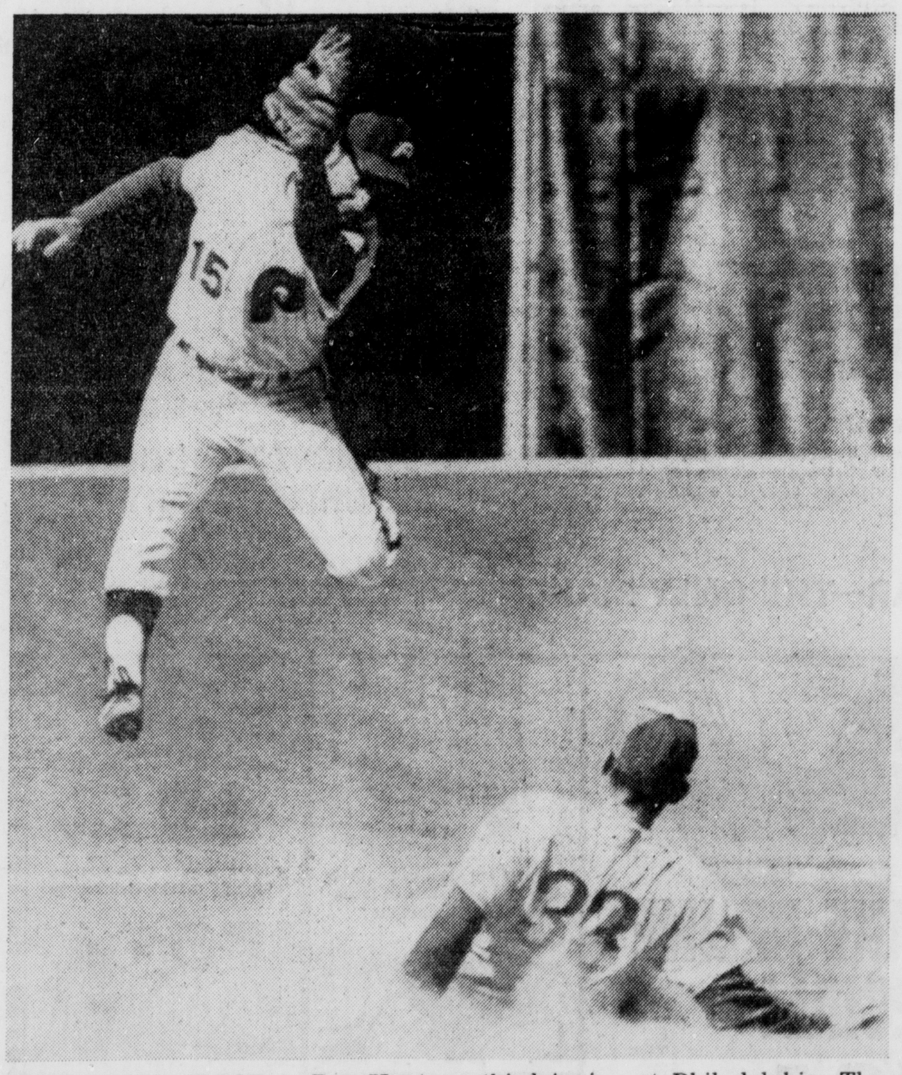
Spits was timed in 45.6 seconds to take a narrow second over Tennessee's Dave Edgar by two-tenths of a second.

The "old man" who provided some heroics was Mike Burton, a former UCLA swimmer who won two gold medals in the 1964 Olympics. After a year's layoff, Burton is making a painful comeback at the age of 23.

He placed second in Saturday's 1,650-yard freestyle behind John Kinsella of Indiana, who had a time of 15:42.3. But the simple fact that Burton could place so highly was enough to get the fans up off the benches and cheering.

In other Saturday races, Sue Atwood of Lakewood, Calif., won her fourth race of the meet when she held off a fast-closing Cindy Palisted of Long Beach, Calif., in the 200 individual medley. Her winning time was 2:10.1.

Debbie Meyer coasted to an easy win in the women's 1,650 freestyle in 17:11.8, more than half a length ahead of second place Cathy Calhoun of El Monten Calif.



NOT EVEN CLOSE — Ron Hunt of the Montreal Expos slid into second with a stolen base as Philadelphia's Denny Doyle leaped for the throw yesterday in the third inning at Philadelphia. The play wasn't close, and neither was the score. The Phillies won, 11-4.

Swimmer Equals Her Best

I-J Special Report

PULLMAN, Wash. — A strong final-day performance by Denise Ham of the Marin Aquatic Club close out local action in the National AAU Swim Championships here on Saturday.

Miss Ham equalled her previous best 200 yard individual medley time of 2:16.5 to place 23rd in an impressive field that included the meet's quadruple winner, Susie Atwood of Lakewood, Calif.

Jo Hislop, also of the MAC, swam twice Saturday, recording a mediocre 56.6 in the 100 freestyle, and a 2:20.5 in the 200 individual medley.

The MAC's 400 freestyle relay narrowly missed placing, as Anne Engle, Kimi Fox, and Misses Hislop and Ham were timed in 3:47.4 for the distance.

Miss Ham achieved her best 100 free time of 55.7 leading off the relay, while Miss Hislop anchored the effort with a 55.5 split time.

According to MAC coach Don Swartz, the team improved its total point output by one over last summer's showing, but added that the overall team showing did not meet his best expectations.

The MAC's five points were tallied by Miss Ham in her 12th place breaststroke finish Friday night.

Walker's Spitball Charges

HOUSTON (UPI)—Manager Harry "The Hat" Walker of the Houston Astros left for St. Louis today, but he had a wary eye cocked on the Cubs' Phil Regan and the Giants' Gaylord Perry.

Walker said Regan was throwing a spitball Sunday which broke a foot and that plate umpire Mel Steiner refused even to check Regan or the ball. The Astros go to San Francisco Wednesday and Walker said Perry is another regular member of the spitball club.

"What makes me so mad is that I just got this letter from the league president and the rules against the spitter are tighter than they have been," Walker said. "But that umpire, what's his name, Steiner?, said he couldn't do anything about it unless Regan went to his mouth.

"Regan was getting the stuff off his forehead," Walker said. "He's got it so perfected now that he only needs a little bit of stuff and all he has to do is pull the ball. It'll drop a foot. He struck out (Doug) Rader with one and also got (Bob) Watson in a jam in the sixth."

Walker argued vehemently with Steiner in the seventh because he wouldn't do anything. Steiner said he did not have any authority, but Walker produced a letter later in the clubhouse dated April 2, 1971, from league President Charles Feeney.

Walker pointed to the 13th paragraph of the instructions to umpires which read:

"If you suspect the pitcher of applying his pitching hand to an area where he might be getting grease or other foreign substance on his hand, you shall direct the pitcher to clearly wipe the area you suspect he may be getting it from (wrist, back of neck, etc.)."

Walker said, "it doesn't make any difference where —hand, neck, brow, any place you think he's going.

"If he does it, stop him right there and make him wipe it off," Walker said. "Warn him and if you catch him again, throw him out of the game.

"It's the hardest pitch in baseball to hit if it's thrown right and Regan knows how to throw it," Walker said. "They said he wasn't throwing it in the exhibition games. He was afraid to. He was afraid to get caught with it down there.

"Now he's back where it counts," the Astro manager said. "The season has started and he makes a living out of it and he's cheating like hell to stay in the game.

"Sure I complained about it today even though we were ahead by a few runs. You got to keep pushing. Next time, he might come in with the bases loaded and the game tied and use it. And his cheating could cost us a game."

Walker also said he wanted to stop any wholesale move back toward the spitter.

PERRY HURLS OPENER

Fresh Paint, A New Look Field At Candlestick Park

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Righthander Gaylord Perry opened the 1971 home season of the San Francisco Giants today against a familiar enemy at refurbished Candlestick Park.

No more than 34,000 spectators were able to watch the festivities against the San Diego Padres because that's all the seats available due to construction.

But those who got in were treated to a freshly painted ballpark featuring colorful seats and a lush green artificial turf over the entire field with the exception of areas around home plate and the bases.

Opposing Perry will be Clay Kirby in a rematch of their game at San Diego last Wednesday won by Perry and Giants 7-3. San Francisco took two of three from the Padres and then won two of three from the Cardinals at St. Louis over the weekend to wind up with a 4-2 record.

San Diego, meanwhile, got some lusty long-ball hitting from Nate Colbert to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers a couple of times. The Padres sport a somewhat surprising 3-3 mark.

Today also marks the debut of flashy rookie shortstop Chris Speier before hometown fans and the beginning of the 21st home season in a Giants uniform for the venerable Willie Mays.

Mays, who will be 40 next month, is off to one of the fastest starts of his career with a .409 batting average, four home runs in his first four games and 11 runs driven home in five games.

Mays was rested in the first game of the doubleheader with the Cards Sunday and Bob Gibson cruised to a six-hit 4-2 win. Back-to-back home runs by pinchhitter George Foster and Bobby Bonds in the eighth inning ruined Gibson's shutout bid.

But Willie played the second game and drove in two runs with a double and triple to help Juan Marichal post his second straight victory 7-2 with a nine-hitter. Bonds rapped two doubles and a single in the nightcap to emerge with a 4-for-9 day.

The Giants may be without the services of Willie McCovey, their longball-hitting first baseman. He wrenched his knee in the first game against the Cards and didn't return to action.

If McCovey can't make it today, Frank Johnson will open at first.

Rookie righthander Steve Stone is expected to start against the Padres Tuesday night at Candlestick. The Houston Astros, Chicago Cubs and Cards follow the Padres into Candlestick during the upcoming 11-game homestand.

Marin Nine Wins Third In Tourney

A four-run rally that came after two were down in the bottom of the third inning carried the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats to a 4 — 2 victory over Carmel High Saturday in the final round of the Soquel Invitational baseball tournament.

The win was the second in three games for the Wildcats of Kentfield in this small town near Santa Cruz, and it gave them third place in the Easter holiday affair. Bellarmine of San Jose won as expected.

Don Bianchini, Marin's jack-of-all-positions, relieved starting pitcher Mickey Simmons in the second inning and kept the Padres at bay until the seventh, when Jim Lowe cam on to finish the job. Simmons suffered from his recurring shoulder trouble, and though effective, had to be taken out.

Wildcat shortstop Steve Sherry climaxed the third inning assault with a basehit that scored Bianchini and Vince Bormolini. Bianchini had singled home Tom Olson, who had driven in Rich Lopez with the first run. Olson was elected to the all-tourney team, while coach Gary Hughes had special praise for Lowe. He pitched in all three games, and was credited with a win and a save.

Novato Council Will Pick Member

A former candidate, a man who almost ran and a commissioner who planned to run next year are among the applicants seeking a seat on the Novato City Council.

There is a field of four for the seat to be vacated by resigning Mayor Douglas M. Merrill tomorrow and the council will pick his successor.

Applicants are: Betty J. Machado, a housewife; Lee C. Wise, manager of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s Novato Branch; Planning Commissioner John C. Schoonover; and attorney David Price Jones.

Jones, 36, declined to be interviewed on his views, saying he thought it inappropriate to make any statement to voters, since the voters won't be making the choice. He felt his communication should be directed to the council.

The council has scheduled a closed session at 7:45 p.m. today to consider any further applications for the council seat.

The only strong critic of the council has been Mrs. Machado, a former candidate, who believes there should be a woman on the council "to create balance."

Mrs. Machado said concern about Novato's planned "social action" program and increased authority granted City Mgr. Charles A. Brown prompted her to seek appointment.

She felt "the council needed to have some conservative thinking on behalf of the taxpayers."

Wise, 64, former member of the planning commission, said he is "generally very happy with the way the city is going."

He said he was seeking the council seat because he "would like to work for Novato," and almost ran three years ago. He has been attending council sessions since the city was incorporated, and would now "like to be on the other side of the fence."

Schoonover, 43, western area analyst for the Cyclone Fence Division of U.S. Steel, said he has reached the point of seeking the post gradually, starting with joining the Gnoss Estates Association, a homeowners' group and being assigned as their observer at council sessions.

He served as president of the association, and in January, 1970 was appointed to the planning commission. "I feel the planning commission is a natural intermediary step to the city council because of the city problems, many go through the planning commission." He said he had planned "to run in 1972."

On issues, Mrs. Machado has opposed the plan endorsed by the council to involve the city in social problems by starting what City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has described as a limited community action program.

"I felt it would be too costly on the tax rolls and will duplicate county services in a city area," she said.

The program calls for creating a citizens advisory committee on social problems, possibly a youth commission, and provision of office space for social service personnel who serve the Novato area.

"More than a need for social involvement by the city, there is a need for street improvement," Mrs. Machado said. There also is a need for parks, "but they have to be tailored to the needs of the community. We don't want parks all over town."

Mrs. Machado also contended the city manager has been given too much authority and "needs watching." She also protested hiring an administrative assistant saying: "I don't think we need an aide de camp to the city manager for the type of work being done in this town."

An outspoken critic of the council, Mrs. Machado has asked that it "consider what is 'best for the community' rather than letting petty viewpoints deny me the right to be appointed."

Wise stressed the time that a councilman must dedicate to the job. "If you're going to do a good job, you have to spend a lot of time doing homework," he said. Wise said he now has the time to devote to the job.

He backed the recently adopted downtown plan. "I think it is good and should be implemented and should have a chance to work," he said.

There is a need for parks in the city, but "the money the city has can only be stretched so far, and the people are going to have to help if we are going to have a large program," he said.

Schoonover said the streets were one of the city's major problems, and they have "really fallen into disrepair," but "the city has a money problem."

The city will "have to go to a system of priorities," he said.

The answer to the money problem is a broader tax base, and "I'm sure a lot can be done to get industry here," Schoonover said.

Schoonover, a backer of the downtown plan, said "we are concerned with determining the direction we want the city to go."

One of the key elements in the downtown plan is a regional shopping center, north of the present downtown, and Schoonover believes such a center would "keep Novato money in Novato."

The amount "of purchasing dollars going out of Novato now is fantastic," he said.

The downtown plan will "work out with time, gradually through the years, and isn't going to be all done, boom-boom," he said.

On parks, he said, "It's the same old problem, money."

I-J's Bockrath Wins National Press Photographers 1st Place

I-J Special Report

COLOMBIA, Mo. — Independent-Journal photographer Roger Bockrath has won first place in the National Press Photographers Association's "Spot News" category with a photo taken during the Aug. 7 shootout at the Civic Center.

Bockrath's prize-winning photo showed Judge Harold J. Haley and other hostages being led at gunpoint from the Marin County Hall of Justice.

Bockrath, 21, joined the Independent-Journal in 1968.

A total of 618 photographers from 38 states submitted 10,826 photos in this year's competition for top honors in the judging. The awards were announced at the University of Missouri by the co-sponsors of the event, the National Press Photographers Association-Association, the University of Missouri School of Journalism and Universal Science News, Inc.

The photo competition annually provides a forum where a jury of press and magazine photographers and editors can evaluate the best work of each year.

Bockrath's picture also earned him first place in the spot news category in the California Newspaper Publishers Association judging of the top 1970 picture. He received that award Feb. 6.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY
Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

THE WEEK'S SCHEDULE

Key Track, Tennis Meets

It may be 1971, but as far as Marin County Athletic League high school track and tennis goes, it sounds like 1970. In both sports, the same confrontations that decided the championship last year are on the schedule this week as the eight MCAL schools swing back into spring league action following the Easter week vacation.

Baseball, too, will have a watershed when Novato and Terra Linda meet Friday afternoon at Albert Park. The co-league leaders should get by their opponents tomorrow to bring identical undefeated records into that clash.

The defending champion San Rafael Bulldogs and the Tamalpais Indians, in a repeat performance from a year ago, place their perfect league records on the line against each other Thursday at Mill Valley in a track and field meet which could decide the MCAL title. Redwood is also 3-0 at this point, but doesn't figure to make a strong move for the championship.

In tennis, however, the Giants of Larkspur are, as usual, the team to beat. This week they have a chance to personally dispose of the two teams that are tied with them for first place at 2-0 — the same teams incidentally that finished second and third behind them last year. Tomorrow they face Marin Catholic, Friday they take on arch-rival Tamalpais. Tam's only two losses last year came at the hands of Redwood, so add revenge to the agenda for Friday's match.

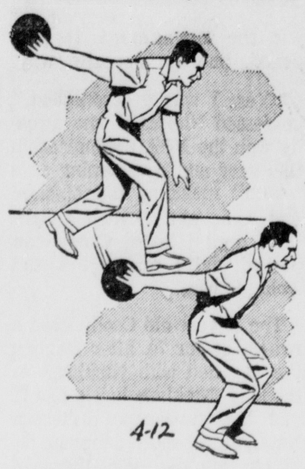
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



Although bowling stars come in all sizes, the stronger ones certainly have an advantage. If you are blessed with good size, you will find it easier to deliver a powerful ball. Don't feel, though, that because you are big you must charge to the line and blast the pins out of the pit. Let your power show itself naturally, giving a good lift to the ball as it slides off your fingers and getting the ball well past the foul line before it touches down.

Colonels Lead ABA Set, 3-2

By United Press International

The Kentucky Colonels need only a victory over the Floridians tonight at Miami to complete the pairings for the American Basketball Association's semifinal playoffs.

The Colonels took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven series Saturday night with a 118-101 victory while the Virginia Squires advanced to the Eastern Conference finals by defeating the New York Nets 118-114. Virginia's victory gave the Squires the series over the Nets 4-2.

Indiana and Utah easily advanced to the quarterfinal series in four straight games. The Pacers and Stars, who waged a season-long battle for first place in the West before Indiana finally prevailed in the closing days, open their best-of-seven series tonight at Indianapolis.

Romanians Triumph

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) —Ilie Nastase and fellow Romania Ion Tiriac won the Monte Carlo Open men's doubles tennis title Sunday, defeating Tom Okker of Holland and Britain's Roger Taylor, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 8-6.

Tam Relay Team Wins Two-Mile

Tamalpais High School's two mile relay team swept past all competition to first place and a new school record Saturday at the Sacramento State Relays. Paul Ringleman, Vian Colliar, Mike Arago, and Carlos Martinez covered the distance in 8:03.3, several seconds ahead of the second place team.

That event was the only one the Mill Valley school entered in the meet, which included college, junior college and high school divisions. The winning time broke the school record by almost half a minute.

HOCKEY PLAYOFFS

Hawks May Still Be Doubtful

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

If the Chicago Black Hawks have a nagging doubt that all is not right with their world despite a convincing four-game sweep of the Philadelphia Flyers, they need only go back one year to learn the reason behind their nightmare.

Chicago wound up its quarterfinal Stanley Cup series with minimum effort by winning a weekend pair of games at Philadelphia 3-2 and 6-2. Now the Hawks have the luxury of at least a week's rest while waiting for their semifinal opponent to emerge from the Toronto-New York series, which was thrown into a 2-2 deadlock when the Rangers beat the Maple Leafs 4-2 Sunday night.

Both other quarter-finals also are tied at two games apiece. Bobby Orr scored a hat trick as the Boston Bruins shook off the effects of a two-game losing streak by beating the Montreal Canadiens 5-2 and the Minnesota North Stars snapped out a long scoreless drought just in time to nip the St. Louis Blues, 2-1.

The best-of-seven sets resume Tuesday night at Boston, New York and St. Louis.

While the Black Hawks await their next competition, they can ponder the meaning of symbolic similarity. Last year they also swept their opening-round opponent —Detroit —only to be wiped out themselves in four games by Boston in the semifinals.

Tony Esposito was the Chicago goalie in all four games against Detroit and he allowed exactly two goals to the Wings in each game. Esposito also played in all four games against the Flyers and their output against him was the exact same two goals in each game.

"I don't think we'll have a letdown this year," Chicago Coach Billy Reay said in the jubilation following the Flyer sweep. "I relish the layoff now. We have three or four guys out there playing and hurting and it will do us some good."

Bobby Hull, who scored two goals in each of the first three victories, turned the hero's role in the finale over to Jim Pappin, who came through with a hat trick. Cliff Koroll scored two goals for Chicago and Pit Martin had the other.

Philadelphia outshot the Hawks 40-29 but Esposito was beaten only twice, by Serge Bernier and Simon Nolet.

Montreal, thirsting for a huge upset over the Bruins, who ran away with the East Division title in the National Hockey League, jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the opening minutes of play on Frank Mahovlich's fourth goal of the series.

But Orr tied the score with his first goal of the evening midway through the second session, followed with what proved to be the winner after 37 seconds of the final period and completed his hat trick by hitting an open net with only three seconds to play. Mike Walton, on a power play, and Fred Stanfield also scored for Boston.

Vic Hadfield, Dave Balon and Ron Stewart scored second-period goals to lift the Rangers to their first road victory in Stanley Cup play since 1958. They had lost 15 Cup road games in a row.

Darryl Sittler scored both goals for Toronto, which used Bernie Parent in the net for the third straight game.

Minnesota, after being shut out for 111 minutes and 46 seconds, stretching over five periods of play, got third-period goals from Bobby Rousseau and Charlie Burns to even its series with St. Louis. Burns' winner came with only 3:08 left in the game as he took a pass from Murray Oliver and beat goalie Glenn Hall from 20 feet.

Garry Unger scored the only St. Louis goal at 4:08 of the first period while the Blues were shorthanded.

3 School Marks In Marin Track

College of Marin's track team cracked three school records but settled for fourth place Saturday in the Marin-Santa Rosa Relays at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Alan Hancock of Santa Maria won the meet with 110 points, while the Tars of Kentfield collected 49. Marin's record efforts came in the sprint medley relay, the mile relay and the three mile.

Seamus O'Reilly ran the latter event in 15:42.8. He finished fifth. Ted Cain, Dick Tierney, Gary Agee and Todd Norris were clocked in 3:33.5 in the sprint relay good for second place, while Agee, Norris, Cain and John Lobdell covered the mile in 3:22.4 for third in that event.

Sohner Softballers Win Doubleheader

Sohner Tree Service of San Anselmo left little doubt about who is boss in Marin softball circles as the Treemen blanked arch-rival Suburban Auto of San Rafael in both games of a Golden Gate League doubleheader Saturday night at Albert Park.

The scores were 5-0 and 1-0 in eight innings.

Sohner combined the shutout hurling of Morey Swarm and Chuck Tyson with the clutch hitting of Ron Blum and an airtight defense highlighted by catcher Jess Munyon's two pickoff throws in the nightcap to hand Suburban its first losses of the year after eight victories.

Blum broke up the second game with one out in the bottom of the eighth when he drilled a shot between the outfielders to score Carlo Alioto from third with the game's only run.

Alioto and Ron McCamish had singled with one out and both advanced when McCamish's hit was bobbled in left field. With Munyon following Blum in the batting order, the Auto team decided to pitch to the Sohner shortstop, and Blum promptly ended it with his game-winning drive.

Swarm, the victor with a three-hit performance in the opener, also gained credit for the win in the second tilt when he relieved Tyson in the top of the eighth after Phil Gambucci walked to open the inning.

On Swarm's first pitch, Munyon picked off a pinch runner with a snap throw to first.

Suburban had loaded the bases in the first inning with no outs on two walks and a single by Ron Reagan, but Munyon picked the lead runner off third with a perfect toss to Milt Hain. The following hitter walked, but Tyson got out of trouble with a force play at the plate and another infield grounder.

Tyson, who was in trouble in five of the seven innings he hurled, and Swarm limited Suburban to five hits in the second tilt while tough-luck pitcher Joe Nystrom gave Sohner only six safeties.

The Treemen bunched four of their seven hits in the third inning of the opener to tally four times.

Blum added a little insurance in the fifth with a long home run.

Strange Advice From Masters Champ

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Charlie Coody, who got the Masters championship, a new green coat for the Easter parade, and "revenge" all in the same package, joined with the disappointed man he defeated, Jack Nicklaus, today to offer the duffers of America a strange bit of advice:

"If you want to play championship golf—be nervous.

"I never got over my first-tee jitters all day, and it helped me," said the new champion from Abilene, Tex. "It helped me to keep concentrating and keep thinking about getting done the things I had to get done."

"I was just too darned relaxed," said the crestfallen Nicklaus, who saw his hopes for golf's first pro grand slam go down the drain as he and young John Miller tied for second place, two strokes behind Coody's winning nine-under-par score of 279 for 72 holes.

"I birdied the first hole and I thought, 'ah, now everything is going according to plan,'" said Nicklaus. "It never did. But all the time I kept thinking that it was going to—I kept feeling sure that soon everything would start happening for me, that I would get birdies and I would win the tournament. It happened, but the opposite way.

"Yes, I was overconfident," confessed Nicklaus, who already won the PGA championship this year and was aiming at a "slam" including the Masters and U.S. and British Opens. "Not until I heard Coody had parred, did I realize I wasn't going to win."

The 33-year-old Coody fired a two-under-par 70, after starting the day tied with Nicklaus for the lead. Nicklaus had a par 72 and the 23-year-old Miller of Napa, Calif., shot a stunning 68. Miller actually held the lead after 15 holes, standing nine-under-par. But he bogeyed the 16th and 18th.

Coody knows how that feels, all right—until his triumph Sunday he was known in Masters history as the man who had the title in his hands in 1969 and blew it by bogeying the last three holes.

It was "revenge" that Coody mentioned the first thing in his hour of triumph.

"In 1969 I was one mighty disappointed fellow," the tall, slope-shouldered Texan said. "It ate at my insides for a long time. I got a little revenge for that today."

Coody twice blew big leads in this Masters, too—he led the first round by three strokes and had a four-stroke lead at one point in the third round before falling back into a tie. In the end he had to come from behind after young Miller stormed into the lead.

"There was pressure this time, but it was a different kind of pressure," he explained. "That time I was in front and other people were trying to catch me. This time someone else was in front and I was trying to catch him."

Miller opened the door for Coody when he bogeyed the 16th and Coody, playing behind him, came charging through with birdies on both the 15th with a nine-foot putt and the 16th with a 15-footer. But he pointed to a shot on the 17th that saved a par as "the shot that won the tournament."

Fearful of a tree that had caused him trouble on the 17th Saturday, Coody put his drive too far to the left and found himself in a bunker "without a clear shot at the green."

"I knew I was in a fair way to bogey or worse," he said. "I hit a seven-iron, aiming it to the right of the green and hoping to hook it back toward the green. It hooked, but not very much and was 15 feet off

SEASON'S FIRST PITCH

A trio of San Rafael's most distinguished officials officially opened the 1971 Terra Linda youth baseball season Saturday. Mayor Paul Bettini pitched, Supervisor John McInnis caught, and Police Chief Joseph Brusatori batted. Bettini had a lot of infielders behind him — more than 400 boys — but Brusatori hit the ball over everybody into left field. See story and more pictures, page 32. (Independent-Journal photo)

Bucks, Bullets Triumph In NBA

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Larry Costello issued a warning to the Los Angeles Lakers Sunday, following the Milwaukee Bucks 91-73 win over the Lakers.

"We're going out there ready to explode," Costello said. "We're way overdue and I can feel it coming."

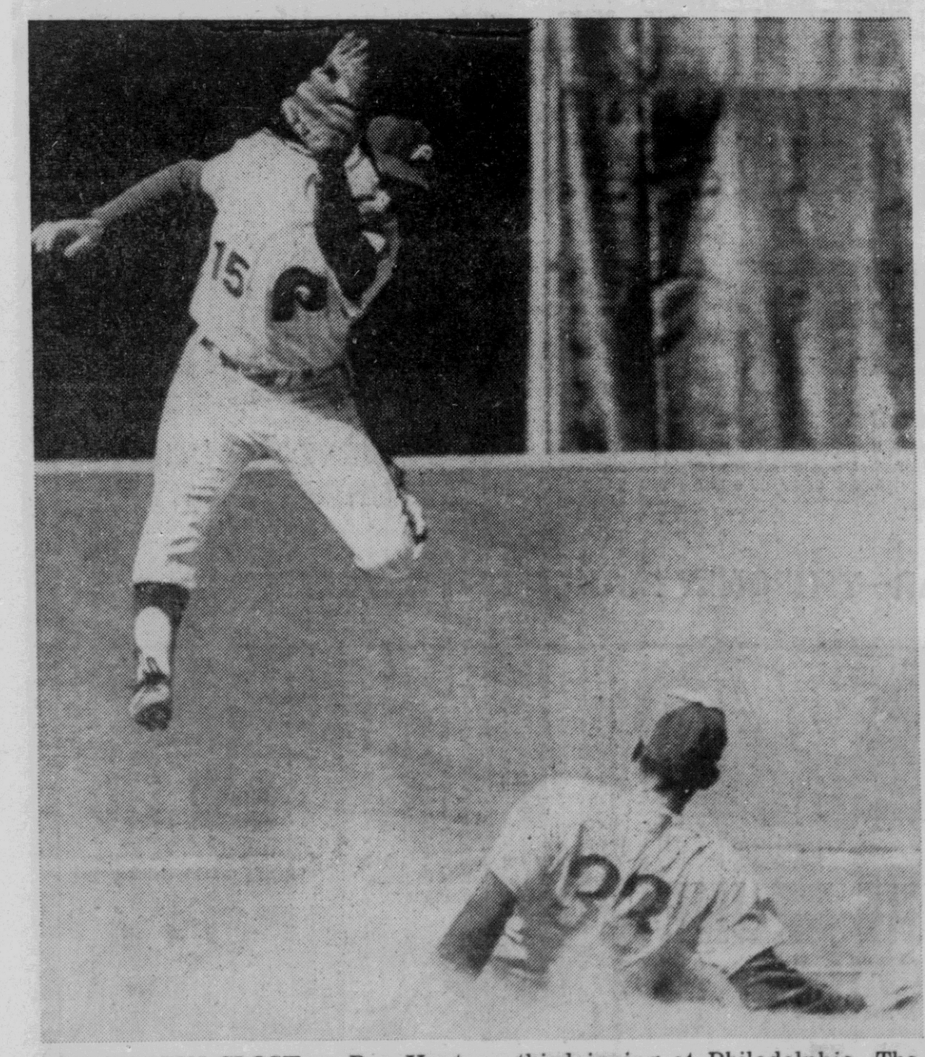
Costello was talking about the shoddy offensive performance by his Bucks, a performance which was good enough to win, but still way below the Bucks' standards.

Milwaukee shot 48 per cent from the floor, and the only reason they won was because the Lakers could only hit on 33 per cent of their shots.

The 73 points run up by the Lakers tied the record for the fewest points scored against the Bucks in their history, and Costello credited that to a defense by Milwaukee he called "superb."

"Our defense won the game for us,'' he said. "The guys were really hustling, forcing them (the Lakers) to take bad shots. We were superb."

In the other NBA game, the altimore Bullets stunned the championNew York nicks 114-88 in the third game of the East finals. New York leads the best-of-seven set, 2-1, with the fourth game scheduled Wednesday in Baltimore.



NOT EVEN CLOSE — Ron Hunt of the Montreal Expos slid into second with a stolen base as Philadelphia's Denny Doyle leaped for the throw yesterday in the third inning at Philadelphia. The play wasn't close, and neither was the score. The Phillies won, 11-4.

Swimmer Equals Her Best

I-J Special Report

PULLMAN, Wash. — A strong final-day performance by Denise Ham of the Marin Aquatic Club close out local action in the National AAU Swim Championships here on Saturday.

Miss Ham equalled her previous best 200 yard individual medley time of 2:16.5 to place 23rd in an impressive field that included the meet's quadruple winner, Susie Atwood of Lakewood, Calif.

Jo Hislop, also of the MAC, swam twice Saturday, recording a mediocre 56.6 in the 100 freestyle, and a 2:20.5 in the 200 individual medley.

The MAC's 400 freestyle relay narrowly missed placing, as Anne Engle, Kimi Fox, and Misses Hislop and Ham were timed in 3:47.4 for the distance.

Miss Ham achieved her best 100 free time of 55.7 leading off the relay, while Miss Hislop anchored the effort with a 55.5 split time.

According to MAC coach Don Swartz, the team improved its total point output by one over last summer's showing, but added that the overall team showing did not meet his best expectations.

The MAC's five points were tallied by Miss Ham in her 12th place breaststroke finish Friday night.

A'S NEED IT

Pitching Help Is On The Way

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Pitching help is on the way for the Oakland Athletics and it can't come too soon.

With the exception of young lefthander Vida Blue, the A's pitching staff thus far this season resembles a battery of batting practice buffoons. Jim Hunter, the A's ace last season with 18 wins, was shelled unmercifully in the first inning and a third Easter Sunday as the Kansas City Royals jumped to a quick 5-0 lead and coasted to a 10-5 victory before 5,238 fans at the Oakland Coliseum.

Oakland also appeared headed for a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Royals Saturday until pinchhitter Tommy Davis doubled with two out in the bottom of the ninth to drive in two runs for a 5-4 A's victory.

Today the A's, now 2-4 on the season, opened an 11-game, 11day road trip through the Midwest with an afternoon game against the red-hot Milwaukee Breewers who sport a 3-1 mark. Rollie Fingers is slated to throw against former A's hurler Lew Krausse.

Joining the A's today in Milwaukee were pitchers Ron Klimkowski and Rob Gardner who were obtained from the New York Yankees in a trade for hard-hitting outfielder Felipe Alou.

"And there's a chance Chuck Dobson also will join us in Milwaukee," said A's manager Dick Williams. "He's been taking cortisone shots for that sore elbow and threw several hard pitches last Friday at Rochester, Minn., without feeling any pain."

However, Williams says there's still a chance that Dobson will have to undergo surgery. A decision on that is expected from specialists at the Mayo Clinic this week. Dobson has been undergoing tests for five days at the famed clinic.

With the acquisition of Klimkowski and Gardner and the possibility Dobson might be available, Williams passed up a chance to sign former Cy Young Award winner Mike McCormick who is now a free agent.

McCormick, former San Francisco Giants lefthander who was cut loose by the Yankees this spring, was a press-box spectator at the Oakland Coliseum Sunday. He said he would accompany the Royals back to Kansas City and hopes to land a spot on their staff this week.

Upstart In AAU Upset

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)—The Atwoods, Meyers and Kinsellas were there and winning—but the loudest and longest applause of the National Amateur Athletic Union shortcourse swimming championships went to an "old man" making a comeback and an upstart sprint swimmer.

The sprint swimmer was Frank Heckl of Southern California who posted his third straight upset win in Saturday's final events.

Heckl shot from behind with a perfect move on the final turn in the Washington State University pool to edge Indiana's Mark Spitz in the 100 freestyle with a winning time of 45.56 seconds.

Spits was timed in 45.6 seconds to take a narrow second over Tennessee's Dave Edgar by two-tenths of a second.

The "old man" who provided some heroics was Mike Burton, a former UCLA swimmer who won two gold medals in the 1964 Olympics. After a year's layoff, Burton is making a painful comeback at the age of 23.

He placed second in Saturday's 1,650-yard freestyle behind John Kinsella of Indiana, who had a time of 15:42.3. But the simple fact that Burton could place so highly was enough to get the fans up off the benches and cheering.

In other Saturday races, Sue Atwood of Lakewood, Calif., won her fourth race of the meet when she held off a fast-closing Cindy Palisted of Long Beach, Calif., in the 200 individual medley. Her winning time was 2:10.1.

Debbie Meyer coasted to an easy win in the women's 1,650 freestyle in 17:11.8, more than half a length ahead of second place Cathy Calhoun of El Monten Calif.

Walker's Spitball Charges

HOUSTON (UPI)—Manager Harry "The Hat" Walker of the Houston Astros left for St. Louis today, but he had a wary eye cocked on the Cubs' Phil Regan and the Giants' Gaylord Perry.

Walker said Regan was throwing a spitball Sunday which broke a foot and that plate umpire Mel Steiner refused even to check Regan or the ball. The Astros go to San Francisco Wednesday and Walker said Perry is another regular member of the spitball club.

"What makes me so mad is that I just got this letter from the league president and the rules against the spitter are tighter than they have been," Walker said. "But that umpire, what's his name, Steiner?, said he couldn't do anything about it unless Regan went to his mouth.

"Regan was getting the stuff off his forehead," Walker said. "He's got it so perfected now that he only needs a little bit of stuff and all he has to do is pull the ball. It'll drop a foot. He struck out (Doug) Rader with one and also got (Bob) Watson in a jam in the sixth."

Walker argued vehemently with Steiner in the seventh because he wouldn't do anything. Steiner said he did not have any authority, but Walker produced a letter later in the clubhouse dated April 2, 1971, from league President Charles Feeney.

Walker pointed to the 13th paragraph of the instructions to umpires which read:

"If you suspect the pitcher of applying his pitching hand to an area where he might be getting grease or other foreign substance on his hand, you shall direct the pitcher to clearly wipe the area you suspect he may be getting it from (wrist, back of neck, etc.)."

Walker said, "it doesn't make any difference where —hand, neck, brow, any place you think he's going.

"If he does it, stop him right there and make him wipe it off," Walker said. "Warn him and if you catch him again, throw him out of the game.

"It's the hardest pitch in baseball to hit if it's thrown right and Regan knows how to throw it," Walker said. "They said he wasn't throwing it in the exhibition games. He was afraid to. He was afraid to get caught with it down there.

"Now he's back where it counts," the Astro manager said. "The season has started and he makes a living out of it and he's cheating like hell to stay in the game.

"Sure I complained about it today even though we were ahead by a few runs. You got to keep pushing. Next time, he might come in with the bases loaded and the game tied and use it. And his cheating could cost us a game."

Walker also said he wanted to stop any wholesale move back toward the spitter.

PERRY HURLS OPENER

Fresh Paint, A New Look Field At Candlestick Park

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Righthander Gaylord Perry opened the 1971 home season of the San Francisco Giants today against a familiar enemy at refurbished Candlestick Park.

No more than 34,000 spectators were able to watch the festivities against the San Diego Padres because that's all the seats available due to construction.

But those who got in were treated to a freshly painted ballpark featuring colorful seats and a lush green artificial turf over the entire field with the exception of areas around home plate and the bases.

Opposing Perry will be Clay Kirby in a rematch of their game at San Diego last Wednesday won by Perry and Giants 7-3. San Francisco took two of three from the Padres and then won two of three from the Cardinals at St. Louis over the weekend to wind up with a 4-2 record.

San Diego, meanwhile, got some lusty long-ball hitting from Nate Colbert to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers a couple of times. The Padres sport a somewhat surprising 3-3 mark.

Today also marks the debut of flashy rookie shortstop Chris Speier before hometown fans and the beginning of the 21st home season in a Giants uniform for the venerable Willie Mays.

Mays, who will be 40 next month, is off to one of the fastest starts of his career with a .409 batting average, four home runs in his first four games and 11 runs driven home in five games.

Mays was rested in the first game of the doubleheader with the Cards Sunday and Bob Gibson cruised to a six-hit 4-2 win. Back-to-back home runs by pinchhitter George Foster and Bobby Bonds in the eighth inning ruined Gibson's shutout bid.

But Willie played the second game and drove in two runs with a double and triple to help Juan Marichal post his second straight victory 7-2 with a nine-hitter. Bonds rapped two doubles and a single in the nightcap to emerge with a 4-for-9 day.

The Giants may be without the services of Willie McCovey, their longball-hitting first baseman. He wrenched his knee in the first game against the Cards and didn't return to action.

If McCovey can't make it today, Frank Johnson will open at first.

Rookie righthander Steve Stone is expected to start against the Padres Tuesday night at Candlestick. The Houston Astros, Chicago Cubs and Cards follow the Padres into Candlestick during the upcoming 11-game homestand.

Marin Nine Wins Third In Tourney

A four-run rally that came after two were down in the bottom of the third inning carried the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats to a 4 — 2 victory over Carmel High Saturday in the final round of the Soquel Invitational baseball tournament.

The win was the second in three games for the Wildcats of Kentfield in this small town near Santa Cruz, and it gave them third place in the Easter holiday affair. Bellarmine of San Jose won as expected.

Don Bianchini, Marin's jack-of-all-positions, relieved starting pitcher Mickey Simmons in the second inning and kept the Padres at bay until the seventh, when Jim Lowe cam on to finish the job. Simmons suffered from his recurring shoulder trouble, and though effective, had to be taken out.

Wildcat shortstop Steve Sherry climaxed the third inning assault with a basehit that scored Bianchini and Vince Bormolini. Bianchini had singled home Tom Olson, who had driven in Rich Lopez with the first run. Olson was elected to the all-tourney team, while coach Gary Hughes had special praise for Lowe. He pitched in all three games, and was credited with a win and a save.

Scenery Change Good For Foster

A change of scenery finally seems to be bringing out the best in Alan Foster.

Foster, billed for nearly five years as the second coming of Sandy Koufax, never quite made it with the Los Angeles Dodgers, compiling a 14-24 record in three seasons.

The Dodgers peddled Foster to Cleveland during the off-season and Foster made his American League debut a memorable one Sunday, allowing only three hits in his 8 1-3 innings and igniting a five-run eighth inning rally that carried the Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

With the score tied at 2-2 in the eighth, Foster doubled off Gary Peters and Larry Brown was hit by a pitch. Vada Pinson's single scored Foster with the go-ahead run and Brown scored on an infield out. Walks to Ken Harrelson and Ted Ford accounted for another run, Eddie Leon singled in another and rookie Gomer Hodge doubled for the fifth run of the inning.

The hit was the fourth in as many major league at-bats for Hodge and his fourth run batted in.

Foster was bothered by wildness in his first AL start, walking nine batters, but Cleveland Manager Alvin Dark is sufficiently impressed.

"This kid knows how to pitch," said Dark, "and I'm not worried about him. He'll do the job and I think he'll do it much better than I had hoped he would."

In other American League action, Baltimore beat Detroit 9-3 after losing the doubleheader opener 5-4, Washington nipped New York after bowing 1-0 in the first game, Milwaukee blanked California 3-0, Kansas City ripped Oakland 10-5 and Minnesota shut out Chicago 6-0.

Dave McNally pitched a seven-hitter for his second victory of the season to lead the Orioles to their second game decision after Bill Freehan's 11th-inning gave Detroit the triumph in the opener.

Don Buford had three hits and scored two runs in the second game to highlight an 11-hit Baltimore attack. Dave Johnson, Boog Powell and Andy Etchebarren drove in two runs each for the World Champion Orioles.

Freehan's homer in the opener came after Baltimore had rallied in the eighth and ninth innings to tie the game at 4-4.

Bernie Allen's bases-loaded, pinch-hit single tied the score and Curt Blefary's error on the hit allowed the winning run to cross the plate as the Senators earned a doubleheader split with the Yankees. The Senators trailed 3-0 in the sixth when Elliot Maddox singled and scored on Frank Howard's double. Walks to Mike Epstein and Richie Scheinblum filled the bases and Allen's single drove in Howard and Epstein. Scheinblum scored from first when Blefary bobbled the ball.

Marty Pattin pitched a three-hitter and Bernie Smith smashed a home run to lift Milwaukee past California. The victory was the third in four games for the Brewers and the second in a row for Pattin, who allowed only three singles.

AND UMPIRING BEHIND THE PLATE

Umpires Tony Venzon (left) and Stan Landes (center) and Chicago third baseman Ron Santo went over the lineups with the Easter Rabbit yesterday before the game at the Houston Astrodome. The furry creature didn't play or umpire, however, and Houston won, 7-4.

N.L. ROUNDUP

Colbert Powers Padres With Two More Homers

Nate Colbert is only one of three reasons why the San Diego Padres are flexing impressive muscles in their third year as an expansion team.

At the moment, however, the 6-foot, 2-inch, 210-pound first baseman is the hottest hitter in the National League and one of baseball's most under-publicized sluggers.

Colbert drove in six runs with two homers and an infield out to lead the Padres to a 9-7 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday and now has five homers and 14 runs batted in after six games. The Padres are 3-3 after their six games and feel they are far ahead of such previous expansion teams as the New York Mets and Houston Astros in development toward pennant contention.

In addition to Colbert, the sluggers the Padres are counting upon to make them contenders are Ollie Brown and Clarence Gaston, drafted by club president E.J. Bavasi along with Nate in the 1968 draft which formed the club. The trio combined for a total of 90 homers in 1970 —three more than were hit by the whole Dodger team.

The Mets nipped the Cincinnati Reds, 1-0, in 11 innings, the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs, 7-4, the Atlanta Braves topped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1, the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Montreal Expos, 11-4, and the San Francisco Giants downed the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-2, after a 4-2 loss, in other National League games.

Colbert homered with two on after Tommy Dean walked and Gaston singled in the first inning and connected again after Gaston walked in the third. Both shots were off Don Sutton and went deep into the left field stands. Tommy Phoebus, acquired from the Baltimore Orioles in a winter trade, went five innings for his first NL victory.

The loss was the fourth in six games for the Dodgers.

Jerry Grote led off the bottom of the 11th inning with a homer off Wayne Granger to give Met reliever Tug McGraw his first win of the year. Tom Seaver allowed five hits and struck out 10 in nine innings before giving way to McGraw, whose mediocre work out of the bullpen was considered one of the reasons for the Mets' failure to win the NL pennant in 1970. The loss was the fourth in a row for the Reds, who haven't won yet this season.

7 lbs., 6 oz. and a victim of syphilis

Since 1900 syphilis alone has killed 4 million Americans. 3 million of those victims were babies who never heard of the word sex. What makes this even more tragic is the fact that V.D. can be prevented.

This year V.D. will be contracted by over 2½ million Americans. It's the nation's number one epidemic—and unfortunately its chief victims are under 25 years of age. One victim gives it to two, two to five, five to fifteen . . . it grows by leaps and bounds. It must be stopped!

Information to combat V.D. is available from physicians, clinics and public health groups. And your local pharmacist is a professional source for medically recognized products to aid in the prevention of V.D.

the green. But that was just enough and I was able to chip up to within three feet and sink the putt for a par."

Coody also parred the 18th and left Nicklaus, playing behind him, needing an eagle two to tie. The tall Texan became the champion when Nicklaus' second came bouncing on the green some 30 feet from the cup.

Young Miller was six-under-par for the day and dreaming of victory when "the bubble burst."

"Everything was going like crazy through 14," said the blond Californian. "And there I was walking down the 15th fairway and thinking, 'Gee, my Dad will sure love it when I win this.' And I was thinking about how that green coat they give the champion would look on me.

"I should have remembered what happened to other guys on those last holes. I need more experience."

At 283, five strokes behind were Gene Littler and Don January, while tied at 284 were Ken Still, Gary Player, and Tom Weiskopf. At 286 were Roberto de Vicenzo, Frank Beard, and Dave Stockton, and the only other man to break par for four rounds was Bert Greene at 287.

Sonoma State Nine Splits Doubleheader

Jim Salm struck out 10 batters and went the distance Saturday night to hurl the Sonoma State Cossacks to a 4-3 win over the University of California at Davis, after the Aggies had romped in the first game of the Far Western Conference doubleheader, 13-1.

The win was the first for the Cossacks of Rohnert Park in League play this year. They have five losses.

TRACK AND FIELD

Bad Day For Bears; Bruins Whip Injuns

By United Press International

Two northern California track teams visited Los Angeles over the weekend and UCLA and USC both demonstrated that they're going to be powers to reckon with when it comes time to decide the Pacific-8 conference champion.

The Trojans walloped the Cal Bears 101-43 Saturday while the Bruins easily swept by the Stanford Indians 108-37 in the double dual meet.

In two other Pac-8 meets, Oregon beat Washington 85-60 at Eugene and Oregon State defeated Washington State 82 1-2-71 1-2 at Corvallis.

It was a bad day all the way around for the Bears, who won the NCAA championship in 1970 but were later stripped of the title because of an ineligible athlete.

First the Bears' Eddie Hart, the defending NCAA 100 dash champion, barely held off the Trojans' Willie Deckard with a 9.4 clocking as he pulled a hamstring muscle in the stretch.

In the same race, the Bears' No. 2 sprinter, Isaac Curtis, irritated an ankle that he had turned earlier in the week and caused it to swell. Both Hart and Curtis dropped out of the 220.

The Bears won only four events. To add insult to victory, the Trojans whipped them in their traditional strongholds—the 440 and mile relays.

The Bruins didn't have any problems with Stanford as they won the 100, 440, both relays and scored 1-2 victories in the triple jump, high jump, 880 and long jump.

The only bright spot for the Indians was Randy White, who upset the Bruins' Wayne Collett with a 51.2 time in the intermediate hurdles.

Freshman James McAlister made his last appearance for UCLA in the long jump before heading for spring football practice and won the event with a 26-0 leap.

Oregon's sophomore Steve Prefontaine ran the best distance double of his career in the Duck's win over Washington. He set a new meet record in the two-mile with an 8:36.1 and won the mile in 4:02.6.

Oregon State coach Bernie Wagner used a surprise entry in the 440 relay team to beat Washington State. Wagner inserted high jumper Neil Ericksen to run the anchor leg and OSU moved ahead in the meet to stay.

Athens Marathon

ATHENS, Ohio (UPI) — George Wetherbee won the fourth annual Athens Marathon Sunday, running the 26-mile distance in two hours, 34 minutes, 6.3 seconds. Wetherbee is a graduate student at the University of Akron.

THE WEEK'S SCHEDULE

Key Track, Tennis Meets

It may be 1971, but as far as Marin County Athletic League high school track and tennis goes, it sounds like 1970. In both sports, the same confrontations that decided the championship last year are on the schedule this week as the eight MCAL schools swing back into spring league action following the Easter week vacation.

Baseball, too, will have a watershed when Novato and Terra Linda meet Friday afternoon at Albert Park. The co-league leaders should get by their opponents tomorrow to bring identical undefeated records into that clash.

The defending champion San Rafael Bulldogs and the Tamalpais Indians, in a repeat performance from a year ago, place their perfect league records on the line against each other Thursday at Mill Valley in a track and field meet which could decide the MCAL title. Redwood is also 3-0 at this point, but doesn't figure to make a strong move for the championship.

In tennis, however, the Giants of Larkspur are, as usual, the team to beat. This week they have a chance to personally dispose of the two teams that are tied with them for first place at 2-0 — the same teams incidentally that finished second and third behind them last year. Tomorrow they face Marin Catholic, Friday they take on arch-rival Tamalpais. Tam's only two losses last year came at the hands of Redwood, so add revenge to the agenda for Friday's match.

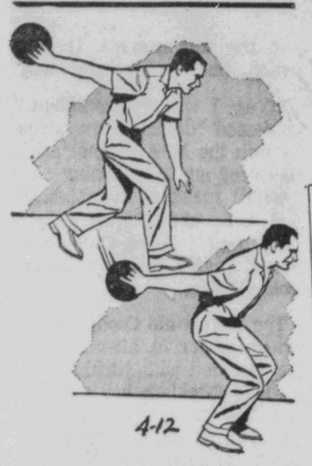
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



Although bowling stars come in all sizes, the stronger ones certainly have an advantage. If you are blessed with good size, you will find it easier to deliver a powerful ball. Don't feel, though, that because you are big you must charge to the line and blast the pins out of the pit. Let your power show itself naturally, giving a good lift to the ball as it slides off your fingers and getting the ball well past the foul line before it touches down.

Colonels Lead ABA Set, 3-2

By United Press International

The Kentucky Colonels need only a victory over the Floridians tonight at Miami to complete the pairings for the American Basketball Association's semifinal playoffs.

The Colonels took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven series Saturday night with a 118-101 victory while the Virginia Squires advanced to the Eastern Conference finals by defeating the New York Nets 118-114. Virginia's victory gave the Squires the series over the Nets 4-2.

Indiana and Utah easily advanced to the quarterfinal series in four straight games. The Pacers and Stars, who waged a season-long battle for first place in the West before Indiana finally prevailed in the closing days, open their best-of-seven series tonight at Indianapolis.

Romanians Triumph

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) —Ilie Nastase and fellow Romania Ion Tiriac won the Monte Carlo Open men's doubles tennis title Sunday, defeating Tom Okker of Holland and Britain's Roger Taylor, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 8-6.

Tam Relay Team Wins Two-Mile

Tamalpais High School's two mile relay team swept past all competition to first place and a new school record Saturday at the Sacramento State Relays. Paul Ringleman, Vian Colliar, Mike Arago, and Carlos Martinez covered the distance in 8:03.3, several seconds ahead of the second place team.

That event was the only one the Mill Valley school entered in the meet, which included college, junior college and high school divisions. The winning time broke the school record by almost half a minute.

HOCKEY PLAYOFFS

Hawks May Still Be Doubtful

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

If the Chicago Black Hawks have a nagging doubt that all is not right with their world despite a convincing four-game sweep of the Philadelphia Flyers, they need only go back one year to learn the reason behind their nightmare.

Chicago wound up its quarterfinal Stanley Cup series with minimum effort by winning a weekend pair of games at Philadelphia 3-2 and 6-2. Now the Hawks have the luxury of at least a week's rest while waiting for their semifinal opponent to emerge from the Toronto-New York series, which was thrown into a 2-2 deadlock when the Rangers beat the Maple Leafs 4-2 Sunday night.

Both other quarter-finals also are tied at two games apiece. Bobby Orr scored a hat trick as the Boston Bruins shook off the effects of a two-game losing streak by beating the Montreal Canadiens 5-2 and the Minnesota North Stars snapped out a long scoreless drought just in time to nip the St. Louis Blues, 2-1.

The best-of-seven sets resume Tuesday night at Boston, New York and St. Louis.

While the Black Hawks await their next competition, they can ponder the meaning of symbolic similarity. Last year they also swept their opening-round opponent —Detroit —only to be wiped out themselves in four games by Boston in the semifinals.

Tony Esposito was the Chicago goalie in all four games against Detroit and he allowed exactly two goals to the Wings in each game. Esposito also played in all four games against the Flyers and their output against him was the exact same two goals in each game.

"I don't think we'll have a letdown this year," Chicago Coach Billy Reay said in the jubilation following the Flyer sweep. "I relish the layoff now. We have three or four guys out there playing and hurting and it will do us some good."

Bobby Hull, who scored two goals in each of the first three victories, turned the hero's role in the finale over to Jim Pappin, who came through with a hat trick. Cliff Koroll scored two goals for Chicago and Pit Martin had the other.

Philadelphia outshot the Hawks 40-29 but Esposito was beaten only twice, by Serge Bernier and Simon Nolet.

Montreal, thirsting for a huge upset over the Bruins, who ran away with the East Division title in the National Hockey League, jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the opening minutes of play on Frank Mahovlich's fourth goal of the series.

But Orr tied the score with his first goal of the evening midway through the second session, followed with what proved to be the winner after 37 seconds of the final period and completed his hat trick by hitting an open net with only three seconds to play. Mike Walton, on a power play, and Fred Stanfield also scored for Boston.

Vic Hadfield, Dave Balon and Ron Stewart scored second-period goals to lift the Rangers to their first road victory in Stanley Cup play since 1958. They had lost 15 Cup road games in a row.

Darryl Sittler scored both goals for Toronto, which used Bernie Parent in the net for the third straight game.

Minnesota, after being shut out for 111 minutes and 46 seconds, stretching over five periods of play, got third-period goals from Bobby Rousseau and Charlie Burns to even its series with St. Louis. Burns' winner came with only 3:08 left in the game as he took a pass from Murray Oliver and beat goalie Glenn Hall from 20 feet.

Garry Unger scored the only St. Louis goal at 4:08 of the first period while the Blues were shorthanded.

3 School Marks In Marin Track

College of Marin's track team cracked three school records but settled for fourth place Saturday in the Marin-Santa Rosa Relays at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Alan Hancock of Santa Maria won the meet with 110 points, while the Tars of Kentfield collected 49. Marin's record efforts came in the sprint medley relay, the mile relay and the three mile.

Seamus O'Reilly ran the latter event in 15:42.8. He finished fifth. Ted Cain, Dick Tierney, Gary Agee and Todd Norris were clocked in 3:33.5 in the sprint relay good for second place, while Agee, Norris, Cain and John Lobdell covered the mile in 3:22.4 for third in that event.

Sohner Softballers Win Doubleheader

Sohner Tree Service of San Anselmo left little doubt about who is boss in Marin softball circles as the Treemen blanked arch-rival Suburban Auto of San Rafael in both games of a Golden Gate League doubleheader Saturday night at Albert Park.

The scores were 5-0 and 1-0 in eight innings.

Sohner combined the shutout hurling of Morey Swarm and Chuck Tyson with the clutch hitting of Ron Blum and an airtight defense highlighted by catcher Jess Munyon's two pickoff throws in the nightcap to hand Suburban its first losses of the year after eight victories.

Blum broke up the second game with one out in the bottom of the eighth when he drilled a shot between the outfielders to score Carlo Alioto from third with the game's only run.

Alioto and Ron McCamish had singled with one out and both advanced when McCamish's hit was bobbled in left field. With Munyon following Blum in the batting order, the Auto team decided to pitch to the Sohner shortstop, and Blum promptly ended it with his game-winning drive.

Swarm, the victor with a three-hit performance in the opener, also gained credit for the win in the second tilt when he relieved Tyson in the top of the eighth after Phil Gambucci walked to open the inning.

On Swarm's first pitch, Munyon picked off a pinch runner with a snap throw to first.

Suburban had loaded the bases in the first inning with no outs on two walks and a single by Ron Reagan, but Munyon picked the lead runner off third with a perfect toss to Milt Hain. The following hitter walked, but Tyson got out of trouble with a force play at the plate and another infield grounder.

Tyson, who was in trouble in five of the seven innings he hurled, and Swarm limited Suburban to five hits in the second tilt while tough-luck pitcher Joe Nystrom gave Sohner only six safeties.

The Treemen bunched four of their seven hits in the third inning of the opener to tally four times.

Blum added a little insurance in the fifth with a long home run.

OPENING GAME ACTION — The Twins met the Athletics in the first game of the junior league season at Vallecito School. Here an Athletic gets ready to belt his first hit of 1971.

EVERYBODY LOVES A PARADE — More than 450 boys representing 35 teams paraded through Terra Linda Saturday morning on opening day of the 1971 youth baseball season. An estimated 60-75 cars took part in the parade, from the fire house on Del Ganado Drive to Vallecito School.

It's Baseball Time For Terra Linda Youngsters

By DAVID EINSTEIN

A circus atmosphere came over Terra Linda Saturday morning as the sky cleared from the miserable rain of the previous night. It was the opening day of the community's youth baseball season, and there was, as there has been since the program first came into existence 14 years ago, a parade to celebrate the occasion.

Four hundred and fifty or so kids, taking on the names of bisons, bears, eagles, ravens, broncos, wolves, cougars, etc., rode, hero-style, in a car caravan from the fire station on Del Ganado Drive to Vallecito School, and there, after speeches by several San Rafael dignitaries, the 1971 season was inaugurated.

As a production, the parade rated an A plus. With police and fire vehicles providing an escort, the cars — estimates ran as high as 75 — made their way to the field quickly but with much pomp, and enough noise to make a couple of World War IIIs. Almost every car was decorated with banners, proclaiming the greatness of the team it was carrying, and some were dressed, like floats, to resemble the animals the teams were named after.

Adding to the color were balloons, thousands of them, and in a couple of cases, mascots. There was a lifesize man in a bear suit.

Every town in Marin County has some sort of youth baseball program. Most are linked with national institutions such as Little League, which claims 17 leagues and 1,400 players in Marin. A few communities operate their own programs, and Terra Linda is one of them.

The reason for independence, for proceeding apart from Little League, Babe Ruth League and Joe DiMaggio League — which together cater to boys from eight to 18 — is the desire to keep the programs on a local level, and thus to be able to exert influence concerning their modus operandi.

This local control is especially valuable in controlling the level of competition, and in the case of Terra Linda, in limiting it.

"We preferred to go our own non-competitive way," says Bill Kirby, secretary of the Terra Linda Athletic Association. "We wanted everybody to play the game. It's different from Little League in that everybody gets a chance to play. They all play a certain amount of time-nobody's relagated to a farm team."

Such a noble attitude isn't meant to berate Little League. In fact, many of the organization's rules and regulations, including those determining the size of the fields, are used by the Terra Linda program, and a spectator would be hard to put to judge whether or not he was watching real Little League.

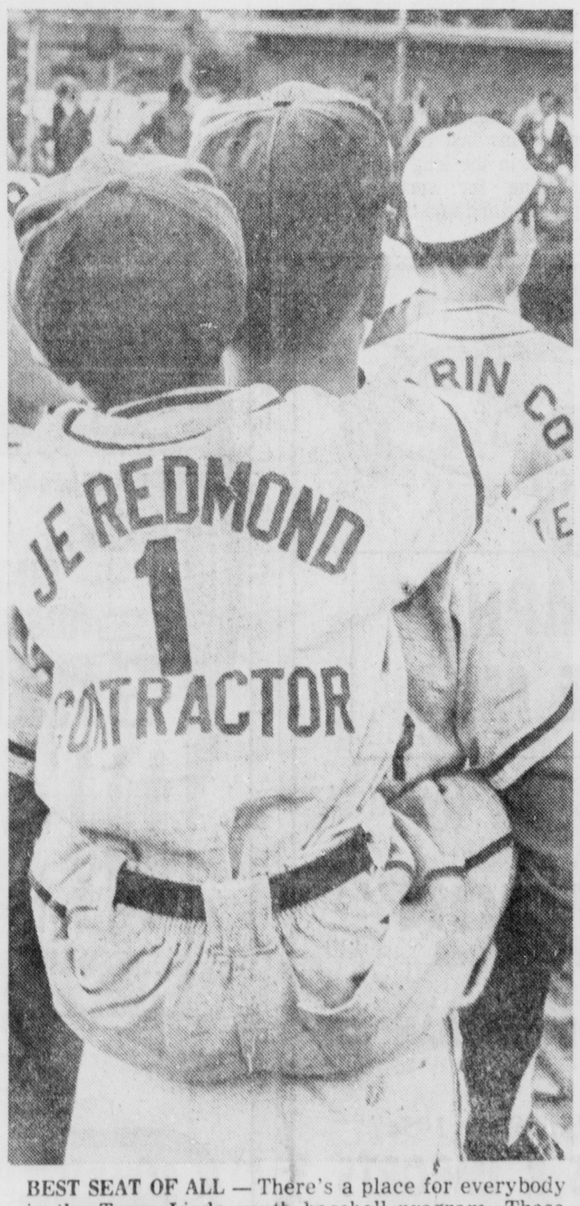
Once at Vallecito School, the teams poured out of the cars, and lined up in a prearranged pattern in the infield. From the home plate area, San Rafael Mayor Paul Bettini, Supervisor John McInnis, and Police Chief Joseph Brusatori each contributed a short speech; then they collarborated in the throwing out of the first ball. Bettini pitched, McInnis caught, and Brusatori wailed the ball into left field.

Then the teams were introduced — pee wees (ages 9 - 10), juniors (11 - 12) and the program's new Babe Ruth League entries. Altogether, Terra Linda has 35 teams this year.

Finally, while the players stood around impatiently waiting for the signal to begin their opening day games, awards were presented to winners of the annual fund raising raffle. One player, Scott LaCoste of the junior league, was most impatient of all as he waited for his name to be called as winner of a 10-speed bicycle and a new fielder's glove. He earned them by selling more books of raffle tickets, 37, than any other boy.

The ceremonies having been concluded, the season was officially blessed, and, sometime afterward, the first games got under way. It had been a marvelously efficient and well-organized undertaking (after 14 years, you get good at these things).

LAST STOP, ALL OUT — Snoopy, the dog, sitting astride his doghouse, seemed to be waving at the crowd as players on the Athletics team piled out of the car that carried them in the parade.



BEST SEAT OF ALL — There's a place for everybody in the Terra Linda youth baseball program. Those too young to play on a team, like No. 1 above, can be batboys. Of course being small has its disadvantages. But with a little help from a friend, even No. 1 got a good view.

PLAYERS AND FRIEND — Members of the Bears team tried to get a noisemaker working again while their mascot, a full size man in a bear suit, supervised and gave advice.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Scenery Change Good For Foster

A change of scenery finally seems to be bringing out the best in Alan Foster.

Foster, billed for nearly five years as the second coming of Sandy Koufax, never quite made it with the Los Angeles Dodgers, compiling a 14-24 record in three seasons.

The Dodgers peddled Foster to Cleveland during the off-season and Foster made his American League debut a memorable one Sunday, allowing only three hits in his 8 1-3 innings and igniting a five-run eighth inning rally that carried the Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

With the score tied at 2-2 in the eighth, Foster doubled off Gary Peters and Larry Brown was hit by a pitch. Vada Pinson's single scored Foster with the go-ahead run and Brown scored on an infield out. Walks to Ken Harrelson and Ted Ford accounted for another run, Eddie Leon singled in another and rookie Gomer Hodge doubled for the fifth run of the inning.

The hit was the fourth in as many major league at-bats for Hodge and his fourth run batted in.

Foster was bothered by wildness in his first AL start, walking nine batters, but Cleveland Manager Alvin Dark is sufficiently impressed.

"This kid knows how to pitch," said Dark, "and I'm not worried about him. He'll do the job and I think he'll do it much better than I had hoped he would."

In other American League action, Baltimore beat Detroit 9-3 after losing the doubleheader opener 5-4, Washington nipped New York after bowing 1-0 in the first game, Milwaukee blanked California 3-0, Kansas City ripped Oakland 10-5 and Minnesota shut out Chicago 6-0.

Dave McNally pitched a seven-hitter for his second victory of the season to lead the Orioles to their second game decision after Bill Freehan's 11th-inning gave Detroit the triumph in the opener.

Don Buford had three hits and scored two runs in the second game to highlight an 11-hit Baltimore attack. Dave Johnson, Boog Powell and Andy Etchebarren drove in two runs each for the World Champion Orioles.

Freehan's homer in the opener came after Baltimore had rallied in the eighth and ninth innings to tie the game at 4-4.

Bernie Allen's bases-loaded, pinch-hit single tied the score and Curt Blefary's error on the hit allowed the winning run to cross the plate as the Senators earned a doubleheader split with the Yankees. The Senators trailed 3-0 in the sixth when Elliot Maddox singled and scored on Frank Howard's double. Walks to Mike Epstein and Richie Scheinblum filled the bases and Allen's single drove in Howard and Epstein. Scheinblum scored from first when Blefary bobbled the ball.

Marty Pattin pitched a three-hitter and Bernie Smith smashed a home run to lift Milwaukee past California. The victory was the third in four games for the Brewers and the second in a row for Pattin, who allowed only three singles.

AND UMPIRING BEHIND THE PLATE

Umpires Tony Venzon (left) and Stan Landes (center) and Chicago third baseman Ron Santo went over the lineups with the Easter Rabbit yesterday before the game at the Houston Astrodome. The furry creature didn't play or umpire, however, and Houston won, 7-4.

N.L. ROUNDUP

Colbert Powers Padres With Two More Homers

Nate Colbert is only one of three reasons why the San Diego Padres are flexing impressive muscles in their third year as an expansion team.

At the moment, however, the 6-foot, 2-inch, 210-pound first baseman is the hottest hitter in the National League and one of baseball's most under-publicized sluggers.

Colbert drove in six runs with two homers and an infield out to lead the Padres to a 9-7 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday and now has five homers and 14 runs batted in after six games. The Padres are 3-3 after their six games and feel they are far ahead of such previous expansion teams as the New York Mets and Houston Astros in development toward pennant contention.

In addition to Colbert, the sluggers the Padres are counting upon to make them contenders are Ollie Brown and Clarence Gaston, drafted by club president E.J. Bavasi along with Nate in the 1968 draft which formed the club. The trio combined for a total of 90 homers in 1970 —three more than were hit by the whole Dodger team.

The Mets nipped the Cincinnati Reds, 1-0, in 11 innings, the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs, 7-4, the Atlanta Braves topped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1, the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Montreal Expos, 11-4, and the San Francisco Giants downed the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-2, after a 4-2 loss, in other National League games.

Colbert homered with two on after Tommy Dean walked and Gaston singled in the first inning and connected again after Gaston walked in the third. Both shots were off Don Sutton and went deep into the left field stands. Tommy Phoebus, acquired from the Baltimore Orioles in a winter trade, went five innings for his first NL victory.

The loss was the fourth in six games for the Dodgers.

Jerry Grote led off the bottom of the 11th inning with a homer off Wayne Granger to give Met reliever Tug McGraw his first win of the year. Tom Seaver allowed five hits and struck out 10 in nine innings before giving way to McGraw, whose mediocre work out of the bullpen was considered one of the reasons for the Mets' failure to win the NL pennant in 1970. The loss was the fourth in a row for the Reds, who haven't won yet this season.

7 lbs., 6 oz. and a victim of syphilis

Since 1900 syphilis alone has killed 4 million Americans. 3 million of those victims were babies who never heard of the word sex. What makes this even more tragic is the fact that V.D. can be prevented.

This year V.D. will be contracted by over 2½ million Americans. It's the nation's number one epidemic—and unfortunately its chief victims are under 25 years of age. One victim gives it to two, two to five, five to fifteen . . . it grows by leaps and bounds. It must be stopped!

Information to combat V.D. is available from physicians, clinics and public health groups. And your local pharmacist is a professional source for medically recognized products to aid in the prevention of V.D.

Coody also parred the 18th and left Nicklaus, playing behind him, needing an eagle two to tie. The tall Texan became the champion when Nicklaus' second came bouncing on the green some 30 feet from the cup.

Young Miller was six-under-par for the day and dreaming of victory when "the bubble burst."

"Everything was going like crazy through 14," said the blond Californian. "And there I was walking down the 15th fairway and thinking, 'Gee, my Dad will sure love it when I win this.' And I was thinking about how that green coat they give the champion would look on me.

"I should have remembered what happened to other guys on those last holes. I need more experience."

At 283, five strokes behind were Gene Littler and Don January, while tied at 284 were Ken Still, Gary Player, and Tom Weiskopf. At 286 were Roberto de Vicenzo, Frank Beard, and Dave Stockton, and the only other man to break par for four rounds was Bert Greene at 287.

TRACK AND FIELD

Bad Day For Bears; Bruins Whip Injuns

By United Press International

Two northern California track teams visited Los Angeles over the weekend and UCLA and USC both demonstrated that they're going to be powers to reckon with when it comes time to decide the Pacific-8 conference champion.

The Trojans walloped the Cal Bears 101-43 Saturday while the Bruins easily swept by the Stanford Indians 108-37 in the double dual meet.

In two other Pac-8 meets, Oregon beat Washington 85-60 at Eugene and Oregon State defeated Washington State 82 1-2-71 1-2 at Corvallis.

It was a bad day all the way around for the Bears, who won the NCAA championship in 1970 but were later stripped of the title because of an ineligible athlete.

First the Bears' Eddie Hart, the defending NCAA 100 dash champion, barely held off the Trojans' Willie Deckard with a 9.4 clocking as he pulled a hamstring muscle in the stretch.

In the same race, the Bears' No. 2 sprinter, Isaac Curtis, irritated an ankle that he had turned earlier in the week and caused it to swell. Both Hart and Curtis dropped out of the 220.

The Bears won only four events. To add insult to victory, the Trojans whipped them in their traditional strongholds—the 440 and mile relays.

The Bruins didn't have any problems with Stanford as they won the 100, 440, both relays and scored 1-2 victories in the triple jump, high jump, 880 and long jump.

The only bright spot for the Indians was Randy White, who upset the Bruins' Wayne Collett with a 51.2 time in the intermediate hurdles.

Freshman James McAlister made his last appearance for UCLA in the long jump before heading for spring football practice and won the event with a 26-0 leap.

Oregon's sophomore Steve Prefontaine ran the best distance double of his career in the Duck's win over Washington. He set a new meet record in the two-mile with an 8:36.1 and won the mile in 4:02.6.

Oregon State coach Bernie Wagner used a surprise entry in the 440 relay team to beat Washington State. Wagner inserted high jumper Neil Ericksen to run the anchor leg and OSU moved ahead in the meet to stay.

Athens Marathon

ATHENS, Ohio (UPI) — George Wetherbee won the fourth annual Athens Marathon Sunday, running the 26-mile distance in two hours, 34 minutes, 6.3 seconds. Wetherbee is a graduate student at the University of Akron.

Sonoma State Nine Splits Doubleheader

Jim Salm struck out 10 batters and went the distance Saturday night to hurl the Sonoma State Cossacks to a 4-3 win over the University of California at Davis, after the Aggies had romped in the first game of the Far Western Conference doubleheader, 13-1.

The win was the first for the Cossacks of Rohnert Park in League play this year. They have five losses.

Girl Brings Help To Crashed Family

Walks Half Of Night After Plane Gets Lost

By M. STREET BROOKS

"I wasn't scared. I was just thinking about my parents," 11-year-old Kelly Bryner said today, describing how she walked half the night Saturday to get help for her family after their plane crashed into a fog hidden hill near Orinda.

Recovering today at John Muir Hospital in Walnut Creek were: James Bryner, 34, of Ojai who suffered a broken jaw and broken right ankle; his wife, Bretta, 32, with two broken legs; Jennifer, 10, facial cuts; and Mark, 9, facial cuts and body bruises. All were listed in good condition.

Kelly helped younger brother Eric with a jigsaw puzzle in the living room of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert A. Williams of Larskpur as she told about the rescue between calls from young friends in Ojai.

Bryner explained the crash from his bed at the hospital to which the family was airlifted by Coast Guard helicopter. They were flying from their Southern California home late Friday to visit with the Williamses.

"I ran into a heavy fog bank north of the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge," Bryner said. "The last thing I could see on the Marin side was San Quentin. I decided to turn around and try to come south."

Scheduled to land at Gnoss Field in Novato, Bryner called Oakland Airport and was told there was seven miles visibility there. Flying at 8,000 feet he spotted a hole in the fog through which he could see the city lights below. At 4,000 feet, he said, the hole closed.

"I wasn't concerned though, because I thought we were near the Oakland Airport. I guess I underestimated."

Bryner said he didn't see the 1,100-foot-high hill until an instant before the four-seat Piper Tri-Pace plane crashed at 140-miles-per-hour.

Bryner, his wife, and Jennifer were knocked unconscious by the impact and when Bryner came to, he saw Eric, but not his brother, Mark, in the plane. Kelly and Jennifer, who had regained consciousness, left the fog shrouded plane and found him about 200 feet down the hill, miraculously not seriously injured.

The family could see lights far off in the distance and Bryner sent the girls out to get help. They wandered in circles for about an hour and came back to the plane shortly before midnight Friday.

"They were worried that they would get lost," their father explained. "I had to convince them that that didn't matter."

The girls did go out again. "We walked down the hill and followed a stream," Kelly said. It was cold and they wore only sweaters over their clothing.

"I walked a pretty long time," the sixth grader said. It was about 3 a.m. when they knocked on the door of the ranch house of Henry Boeger of Orinda and told what had happened.

"There stood those little girls, wet and cold," Boeger said. "They were a mess . . . one had a bad gash on her head." That was Jennifer.

"They were so serious about helping their family, they didn't let anything else bother them. They were brave kids."

Boeger rode a horse to the wreckage after calling sheriff's deputies. It didn't take long to locate the plane about three miles southeast of the Caldecott Tunnel.

Mercy Mission Ambushed

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist troops shot down a U.S. helicopter and then ambushed American ground forces that came to rescue the crewmen, the U.S. Command said today. One airman and 10 of the rescuers were killed.

The Army UH1 Huey helicopter was downed at noon Sunday just south of Quang Ngai, 305 miles northeast of Saigon on South Vietnam's upper coast. The Communists lay in wait until the ground forces approached the helicopter three hours later.

Helicopter gunships, artillery and jet fighter-bombers were called to the aid of the ambushed Americans, spokesmen said, but there were no known Communist casualties. In addition to the 11 dead, two of the helicopter crew were injured and six GIs were wounded.

The Easter Sunday ambush caused the heaviest U.S. casualties since an early-morning attack March 28 against Fire Base Mary Ann in nearby Quang Tin province killed 33 Americans and left 76 wounded.

U.S. military sources said today the U.S. Air Force was dropping 7.5-ton bombs on Communist troop concentrations around besieged Fire Base 6 in the first such tactical use of the weapons in the war. B52s also hit Communist positions there today with 500 tons of bombs.

UPI correspondent Robert E. Sullivan reported from the area that the North Vietnamese commander in charge of the attack on Fire Base 6 had moved his headquarters from Laos into South Vietnam to direct the fight. The base is near the intersection of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam in the Central Highlands.

Sullivan, quoting highly placed South Vietnamese military sources, said the headquarters of Hoang Minh Thoa, commander of the 13-day-old offensive against the base, was believed located about 14 miles southwest of the base, but that he moved his headquarters frequently to avoid bombing attacks. The headquarters is known as B3.

The 7.5-ton bombs have been used previously to blast out landing pads in the jungles for U.S. helicopters but military sources said they were effective against massed Communist troops. In some operations the big bombs are floated down by parachute and detonated a few yards off the ground to blast out an area the size of a football field.

Front dispatches said the bombs were used today six to eight miles southwest of the border ranger post of Ben Het, itself six miles northwest of Fire Base 6.

Sullivan, reporting from the central Highlands, said a North Vietnamese defector told interrogators he had seen 2,000 fresh North Vietnamese troops in a rear area awaiting orders to move into the battle area. He said the defector, Lt. Bui Ngoc Chieu, told questioners his battalion had been ordered to cut Highway 512 east of Ben Het, the base's only land link to the outside.

Ben Het withstood a 56-day Communist siege in the spring of 1969 when it was a Green Beret camp.

While the C130s unloaded their blockbusters, B52s returned to the area in strength. Military sources said the big eight-engine bombers have dropped nearly 2,500 tons of bombs on the Communists around Fire Base 6 since the post was overrun 13 days ago. It was recaptured later and is still in government hands.

"The enemy has decided to fight," a South Vietnamese official told Sullivan. "They are still here." He said in the first 12 days of the Communist offensive a total of 2,624 Communists had been killed, mostly by U.S. air power. Government losses were announced as 172 dead and 292 wounded.

U.S. helicopters managed to resupply the base today despite heavy ground fire. All were fired upon today but none was shot down. Sunday, only 5 of 10 helicopters managed to land at the base and one of these was shot down.

A sharp cutback in Army strength dropped the number of American soldiers in Vietnam to 296,500 last week, the lowest level since Aug. 13, 1966, the U.S. Command reported today.

Command figures showed a reduction of 5,400 GIs, 4,500 from the Army. President Nixon's Phase VI withdrawal program calls for a reduction to 284,000 by May 1.

Last week's reductions left 223,100 for the Army (down 4,500) 14,800 Navy (down 400), 18,000 Marines (down 500) with no change in the figure of 40,500 Air Force and 100 Coast Guard.

The Command figures do not include about 23,800 7th Fleet Navy men and 200 Coast Guard sailors aboard ships off the Vietnam coast.

The 1,800-member American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, which initiated the walkout March 24, approved the agreement by an overwhelming voice vote at a separate mass meeting Sunday night.

Mayor Joseph L. Alioto was instrumental in bringing about a settlement of the strike. He mediated the dispute in lengthy negotiating sessions and announced on Friday that a tentative settlement had been reached.

Ratification by the school board of the "memorandum of understanding" is expected to be routine, according to spokesmen for both unions and the mayor.

Principal sections of the agreement provided for a five per cent pay raise, a reduction in the size of elementary classes by hiring new teachers, retention in the size of elementary classes by hiring new teachers, retention of teacher preparation periods, binding arbitration as the final step in a revised grievance procedure and amnesty to all teachers and school district employes who supported the strike.

It was agreed that the size of secondary classes would be maintained at their present levels. However, the district will hire 80 new elementary teachers, including some from ethnic and racial minorities, in an effort to reduce the size of classes in grades one through six.

A total of 340 district positions will be allowed to expire by way of attrition as desired by School Superintendent Thomas A. Shaheen. However, any attrition exceeding 340 positions for the 1971-72 school year will be replaced on a one-to-one basis.

Teachers will receive a three per cent pay boost and a two per cent hike in fringe benefits.

Paraprofessional training will be maintained at the present level in addition to a dental plan, sabbatical leave rights, sick leave and reimbursement of teachers for losses due to vandalism.

Also retained was the in-service program which provides a minimum of eight days per school year for specialized ethnic studies, bilingual education, drug abuse seminars and remedial reading.

Big Promise Of Faster Mail Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton M. Blount said today the new postal system will provide next-day delivery of zip-coded airmail to principal cities within a 600 mile radius and second-day delivery of 95 per cent of airmail between most major U. S. cities.

"This is the first time the Postal Service has ever stuck its neck out like this," Blount told reporters. "It's a very important first step on the road to improving service to the American people."

He also said the new Postal Service has decided to keep the separate airmail concept. The Johnson administration in 1968 proposed eliminating airmail and charging 10 cents for first class mail which normally would be delivered by air in most instances.

Airmail deposited by 4 p. m. weekdays in some 3,500 airmail-only boxes in 500 selected cities will be delivered the next day within a 600-mile radius and within two days after deposit "in virtually all principal cities in the continental United States," Blount promised.

He pledged similar delivery standards soon would be announced for first class mail.

Airmail stamps will increase from 10 cents to 11 cents and the first class stamp will be raised from six to eight cents, beginning May 16.

Blount said there is "about a 25 per cent advantage today in airmail over first class. I think this will widen that difference."

Blount said the new program would take effect April 22. He predicted a 95 per cent successful performance rate by July for the 2.25 billion pieces of airmail moved annually within the nation.

Yanks Told Fate Of China's Liu

PEKING (UPI) —American table tennis players talked and played basketball today with Chinese Communist university students who told them that ousted President Liu Shao-chi was alive but "his thought is dead."

The 15-member U.S. contingent stopped off at Chinghua University on the way to see the Great Wall of China. They were delayed for about five hours as they talked with the students and toured the university grounds in Peking.

After eating a late lunch at the university, the Americans piled into cars and two buses and traveled to the Great Wall.

The American ping pong team has yet to play a formal match, but officials said the U.S. players, who arrived Saturday on an unprecedented visit, would play here Tuesday afternoon and then leave for Shanghai on Wednesday.

The highlight of the day for the Americans was the trip to the university.

They left their hotel about 9 a.m. and reached the university at 10 a.m. where they were greeted by the school's Revolutionary Committee members, teachers, students and school workers.

The Americans sat in a reception room around a table with a white table cloth, smoking cigarettes and sipping black Chinese tea. Included in the welcoming group was Prof. Chen Wei-chang, who worked in the jet propulsion laboratory at the California Institute of Technology from 1941 to 1946 before returning to mainland China.

Later, the Americans were taken on a tour of the school grounds and they chatted with a number of other teachers in their late 50's and 60's who had studied in the States.

When they stopped off at a "727 truck" factory, Graham Steenhoven of Detroit, president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, climbed up into the cab of one of the trucks and drove it around.

The "727" stands for July 7, 1968, when the first propaganda team came in to help run the school and unite two disputing factions during the Cultural Revolution.

On their way back from the factory, the Americans ambled into an open basketball class and paused to try a few shots.

After visiting a computer transistor circuit workshop, the Americans came across the school's indoor gym, where they spent 15 minutes trading ping pong shots with Chinese students.

Dick Miles, who was the American table tennis champion nine times, joined a Chinese student in a spontaneous doubles match against Errol Resek of New York City and another Chinese student.

The informal, rambling tour of the university continued, but the Americans came across another gym where the school basketball team was practicing. The Americans again joined the play and tossed a few balls into the net.

During a long lunch, which consisted of sweet and sour carp, meat dumplings, north China steamed bread, rice, fried prawns, cold meats, pork and vegetables, as well as soda pop, the Americans broke up into groups of four and five and sat among Chinese students and professors.

Asked about the fate of Liu Shao-chi, one member of the school Revolutionary Committee, Chih Chwun, 37, replied:

"His thought is dead, but he is alive. What we criticize are his revisionist ideas."

Asked if Liu was being "re-educated," Chih said:

"Yes, he must get some re-education. All this is common knowledge in China."

Another Chinese student was asked when the Chinese National Assembly will open—it has not been called even though the deadline for convening it has passed.

The student replied: "When the time is ripe."

OPENING GAME ACTION — The Twins met the Athletics in the first game of the junior league season at Vallecito School. Here an Athletic gets ready to belt his first hit of 1971.

EVERYBODY LOVES A PARADE — More than 450 boys representing 35 teams paraded through Terra Linda Saturday morning on opening day of the 1971 youth baseball season. An estimated 60-75 cars took part in the parade, from the fire house on Del Ganado Drive to Vallecito School.

It's Baseball Time For Terra Linda Youngsters

By DAVID EINSTEIN

A circus atmosphere came over Terra Linda Saturday morning as the sky cleared from the miserable rain of the previous night. It was the opening day of the community's youth baseball season, and there was, as there has been since the program first came into existence 14 years ago, a parade to celebrate the occasion.

Four hundred and fifty or so kids, taking on the names of bisons, bears, eagles, ravens, broncos, wolves, cougars, etc., rode, hero-style, in a car caravan from the fire station on Del Ganado Drive to Vallecito School, and there, after speeches by several San Rafael dignitaries, the 1971 season was inaugurated.

As a production, the parade rated an A plus. With police and fire vehicles providing an escort, the cars — estimates ran as high as 75 — made their way to the field quickly but with much pomp, and enough noise to make a couple of World War IIIs. Almost every car was decorated with banners, proclaiming the greatness of the team it was carrying, and some were dressed, like floats, to resemble the animals the teams were named after.

Adding to the color were balloons, thousands of them, and in a couple of cases, mascots. There was a lifesize man in a bear suit.

Every town in Marin County has some sort of youth baseball program. Most are linked with national institutions such as Little League, which claims 17 leagues and 1,400 players in Marin. A few communities operate their own programs, and Terra Linda is one of them.

The reason for independence, for proceeding apart from Little League, Babe Ruth League and Joe DiMaggio League — which together cater to boys from eight to 18 — is the desire to keep the programs on a local level, and thus to be able to exert influence concerning their modus operandi.

This local control is especially valuable in controlling the level of competition, and in the case of Terra Linda, in limiting it.

"We preferred to go our own non-competitive way," says Bill Kirby, secretary of the Terra Linda Athletic Association. "We wanted everybody to play the game. It's different from Little League in that everybody gets a chance to play. They all play a certain amount of time-nobody's relagated to a farm team."

Such a noble attitude isn't meant to berate Little League. In fact, many of the organization's rules and regulations, including those determining the size of the fields, are used by the Terra Linda program, and a spectator would be hard to put to judge whether or not he was watching real Little League.

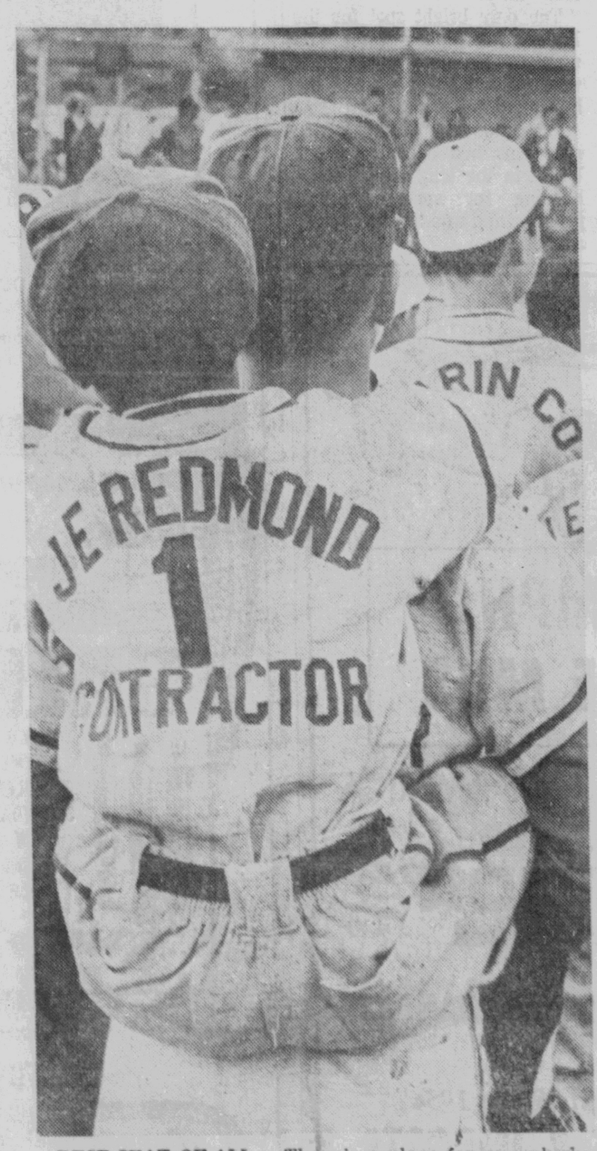
Once at Vallecito School, the teams poured out of the cars, and lined up in a prearranged pattern in the infield. From the home plate area, San Rafael Mayor Paul Bettini, Supervisor John McInnis, and Police Chief Joseph Brusatori each contributed a short speech; then they collarborated in the throwing out of the first ball. Bettini pitched, McInnis caught, and Brusatori wailed the ball into left field.

Then the teams were introduced — pee wees (ages 9 - 10), juniors (11 - 12) and the program's new Babe Ruth League entries. Altogether, Terra Linda has 35 teams this year.

Finally, while the players stood around impatiently waiting for the signal to begin their opening day games, awards were presented to winners of the annual fund raising raffle. One player, Scott LaCoste of the junior league, was most impatient of all as he waited for his name to be called as winner of a 10-speed bicycle and a new fielder's glove. He earned them by selling more books of raffle tickets, 37, than any other boy.

The ceremonies having been concluded, the season was officially blessed, and, sometime afterward, the first games got under way. It had been a marvelously efficient and well-organized undertaking (after 14 years, you get good at these things).

LAST STOP, ALL OUT — Snoopy, the dog, sitting astride his doghouse, seemed to be waving at the crowd as players on the Athletics team piled out of the car that carried them in the parade.



BEST SEAT OF ALL — There's a place for everybody in the Terra Linda youth baseball program. Those too young to play on a team, like No. 1 above, can be batboys. Of course being small has its disadvantages. But with a little help from a friend, even No. 1 got a good view.

PLAYERS AND FRIEND — Members of the Bears team tried to get a noisemaker working again while their mascot, a full size man in a bear suit, supervised and gave advice.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Ceylon Rebellion

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)—Combined military and police security forces using planes and helicopters supplied by India hace killed about 500 insurgents trying to seize control of the country, a government spokesman reported today.

The insurgents, mostly unemployed leftist youths, call themselves Che Guevarists after the late Cuban revolutionary. They struck against the government of Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike last week with a series of attacks on police stations and government offices.

A government spokesman reported earlier the situation was perilous and India agreed to send planes and helicopters to try to put down the rebellion. The government has imposed a curfew from 4 p.m. to 6 a.m. and troops were ordered to shoot curfew violators on sight.

Wiretap Success

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government has been able to seize about $14 million in illegal drugs since the Nixon administration began a more general use of telephone wiretaps, according to the director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

John Ingersoll said there have been 40 wiretaps during the last two years authorized under provisions of the 1968 Safe Streets Act.

In each case the wiretap requires authorization from Attorney General John N. Mitchell and then a court order. Ramsey Clark, Mitchell's predecessor in the Johnson administration, eschewed the wiretap authority and Ingersoll, who has served both administrations, began to use it only after Nixon took office.

Ingersoll, 41, said in an interview the wiretaps have "accounted for the arrest of about 190 persons up to the end of March, 1971. They've also accounted for the seizure of 50 pounds of heroin, 30 pounds of cocaine and 902 grams of LSD —that's $14 million worth."

Election Setback

TOKYO (UPI)—Tokyo voters handed conservative Prime Minister Eisaku Sato a sharp setback today when they overwhelmingly re-elected leftist Ryokichi Minobe as governor of the world's largest city.

Minobe, a Marxist, swamped Sato's handpicked candidate, Akira Hatano, by a two to one margin. Minobe received more than 3.5 million votes, the highest number ever given to a public figure in Japan. Hatano received 1.9 million.

Sato, who mounted an unprecedented campaign to oust Minobe, is not elected directly by the people, but became prime minister when members of the Liberal Democratic party (LDP) voted him party chief.

The prime minister also suffered a setback in Osaka, the country's second largest city, where another leftist, Ryoichi Kuroda, ousted the LDP incumbent, Gisen Sato, who had served as Osaka mayor for 12 years.

Nol Returns

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Prime Minister Lon Nol, still feeling the effects of a stroke suffered Feb. 8, returned to Cambodia today from Honolulu where he underwent two months of medical treatment.

Lon Nol arrived aboard a U.S. Navy DC6 at Pochentong Airport where he was greeted by acting Prime Minister Gen. Sirik Matak, U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank and about 1,000 other well-wishers.

The prime minister looked healthy but needed help in getting around and sat down in a wheelchair after taking a few halting steps.

Bomb In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A small bomb was thrown at troops on the outskirts of Londonderry's Catholic Bogside area early today. Security chiefs expressed the hope, however, that things would calm down now that Easter was over.

"We hope the worst moments are behind us and we are now over the hump," an army spokesman said.

There were no injuries in today's incident but stone-throwing Roman Catholics in Londonderry injured 14 British soldiers Sunday. Five had bones broken, including two men with broken legs and another with a factured jaw. Seven were back on duty today. Six policemen were injured at Lurgan.

Hoffa To Prison

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—James Hoffa, Teamsters Union official furloughed from a federal prison, spent Easter Sunday with his ailing wife whose condition appeared to be improving.

Doctors at the University of California Medical Center, where Mrs. Hoffa was taken last month after a heart attack, declared she was doing "quite well."

Attorney Morris Shenker said his client would return today to the penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., where he is serving a 13-year sentence for jury tampering. He was released Wednesday to come here.

Clash Feared

New Delhi (UPI) —Indian and West Pakistan troops stood within nine miles of each other along the East Pakistan border today, increasing fears of a confrontation between the two nations.

Official Pakistan Radio said Sunday Pakistani troops had "wiped out" two companies of Indian border security forces in the Benapole area two miles inside East Pakistan Saturday.

India denied the claim and accused Pakistan of kidnaping three of its border security guards who had been on a routine patrol in the Petrapole region on the Indian side of the border. The Indian government demanded the release of the men.

747 Jet Evacuated After Bomb Threat

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A telephoned bomb threat forced an Eastern Air Lines 747 jet to make an emergency landing at Dulles International Airport Sunday.

The plane's 283 passengers were evacuated and a search of the craft turned up nothing. The plane was en route from New York to Miami when the threat was telephoned to Eastern's office in Newark, N.J.

LEAVING WINTER'S MEMORIES BEHIND

A young girl in Omaha, Neb., hung her shoes from a stick over her shoulder and headed down the street barefoot as temperatures climbed toward the eighties, erasing memories of recent blizzards that paralyzed the state. The emergency snow route signs were left to testify to one of the bitterest winters in the last few years in the Midwest.

Gunmen Invade Commune, Kill Youth In Cold Blood

DETROIT (UPI) —Police are seeking four gunmen who invaded an inner city commune, ordered 19 young people to strip naked while they were robbed and fatally shot one of the youths when he moved to quiet a dog.

The bullet which fatally wounded Franklin Abramson, 23, of Mesick, also inflicted minor wounds on Lynn Hachey, 19, St. Clair Shores and Thomas Beaman, 20, Detroit.

The youths said four intruders, armed with a rifle, shotgun, revolver and what appeared to be a submachine-gun, invaded the near North Side home about 1 a.m. Sunday demanding money and drugs. The residents were ordered into a downstrais living room where a baby slept in a crib, ordered to disrobe and forced to sit in a circle under the guard of two of the gunmen while the other two ransacked the house.

Alan King, 20, one of the residents, said the shooting occured when Abramson reached over to quiet his German shepherd.

"The guy with the rifle kicked Frank in the shin and said, 'We don't want any heroes,'" Beaman said. "Frank rolled back and then leaned forward to get his balance and the guy fired.

"Everyone just sat there and watched him get it right in the head," King said. "We didn't dare say anything. They wouldn't even cover the body."

After collecting about $175 in cash and checks, the bandits herded the youths back to upstairs bedrooms and ordered them to lie on the floor and beds face down.

"We thought they were going to kill us all," King said. He said that after they heard the gunmen leave "a few people got up and started crawling around to check if it was safe" before calling police.

A friend said Abramson had lived in the commune for a year until the two of them moved to a farm near Mesick in Wexford County about three months ago. "Frank really disliked the city and that's why we moved up north," the friend, who was not identified said. "He was going to do truck farming and already had starting planting. He had a Jeep with a snowplow and did work with that. I got a horse."

The friend said he and Abramson drove to Detroit Friday. "It's ironic," he said. "When we were driving down here Friday, he said, 'I can't wait to get back and breathe some dirty city air for a change.'"

Seven Die In Chain Crash On Freeway

DETROIT (UPI)—A car reportedly traveling at 100 miles an hour jumped a freeway median and landed atop another automobile Sunday, setting off a chain-reaction collision in which seven persons died and 19 were injured.

A 5-year-old boy was the only survivor in a car in which his parents and two grandparents perished.

The victims were identified as John Giddens, about 20, Ecorse; Helen Hawkins, 25, no address; William Westphal, 28, Dearborn Heights; Dr. Jack Derderian, 40, Wayne; his wife, Margaret, 40; his father, Hagop Albert Derderian, 78; and the elder Derderian's wife, Dorothy, 75, Dearborn Heights.

Miss Hawkins and three other persons were passengers in Giddens' car, which police said was traveling eastbound at a high rate of speed, when it jumped the guard rail and landed on the Derderian auto in the westbound lanes. Westphal was killed when his auto slammed into the wreckage of the two cars.

The Derderian's son, Lance, 5, was hospitalized in critical condition.

New Soviet Aircraft Reported In Egypt

By United Press International

An Israeli source said today in Tel Aviv Egypt had received "new types of aircraft" from the Soviet Union and that they were manned by Soviet crews. He declined to specify the make of the new combat jets involved, but previous reports said they were MIG23s which can outperform American F4 Phantoms.

The disclosure came as political sources said Prime Minister Golda Meir may call a special meeting of her cabinet this weekend to discuss the final draft of Israel's counterplan for reopening the Suez Canal under and interim settlement of the Middle East conflict.

The Israeli source, commenting on newspaper reports Egypt has acquired MIG23s and possibly an advanced version of the Sukhoi-7 fighter-bomber, said "it constituted a qualitative contribution" to Egypt's military might.

The source said the Egyptians were preparing for the resumption of war although they were still pursuing diplomatic efforts to end the Middle East conflict. He said the latest Soviet arms shipments to Egypt also were meant to offset recent acquisition of modern weaponry by Israel.

Newsmen were not permitted to identify the Israeli source in any way. He declined to comment on a report in the Jerusalem Post that the latest acquisitions by Egypt of advanced weaponry "is likely to harden the military's stand against any pullback from occupied Arab territory."

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told a televised news conference Sunday night he "could not deny" reports MIG23s have reached Egypt.

FBI Checks Daughter Of Rep. Reuss

BOSTON (UPI)—The FBI checked into the activities of the daughter of Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., the Citizens Commission to Investigate the FBI said in the Boston Sunday Globe.

The commission, which claims responsibility for looting FBI files from the Media, Pa. office, mailed a third packet Saturday to Michael Kenney of the Globe. It contained eight documents, one a report on Jacqueline Reuss, 21, a student at Swarthmore College, Swarthmore. Pa.

(In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, where Reuss is attending an economic conference, the congressman issued a statement in which he said the FBI had informed him in mid-March about the theft from their Media office.

"The pieces of paper, according to the FBI representative," Reuss' statement said, "indicated that Swarthmore College, the local police, and the local credit bureau were being checked concerning certain information about Jackie given the FBI by an informer. The FBI representative informed me the investigation had been completed, and had developed that no information of a derogatory nature concerning Jackie had been uncovered.

"The FBI has an important responsibility to investigate crime. Its mission is not to compile dossiers on millions of Americans, Congressmen's daughters or not, who are accused of no wrong doing.

Airman Raises $30,000 To Help Stricken Pair

OAKLAND (UPI)—An Air Force sergeant says he raised $30,000 to aid a brother and sister stricken by a rare kidney disease in Texas in only 12 hours from servicemen in Vietnam.

Sgt. Robert L. Jones, 22, of Turlock, Calif., said he raised the money at Phanrang Air Force Base. He said one sergeant donated $1,000 from his reenlistment bonus and another soldier cancelled an order for a new car to give $450 to the cause.

Jones arrived from Vietnam Sunday and was met by his parents, his wife, Norma, and their 13-month-old son, Robert Jr., at Oakland International Airport.

"I was very surprised and proud when I heard what he had done," said Jones' pretty wife. He will have a 14-day leave with his family before returning to Vietnam.

Tired, but obviously happy, Jones flashed a $30,000 check made out to Paula Holt, 17, and her brother, Gary, 20, of Austin, Tex.

The two youths are victims of acute nephritis, an hereditary kidney disease which requires them to spend 15 hours a week channeling their blood through a machine to keep them alive.

The machine costs the H.V. Holt family at least $360 a month for each of the two youths. The family has been unable to meet the costs.

"I read about their situation in the newspaper," Jones said before leaving Saigon. "I kept thinking about them. I didn't exactly feel sorry for them, but I thought they needed help."

"I never expected the turnout we finally got," he told reporters in Oakland. "Everybody came through."

"I expected about $4,000. It just fireballed out and went overboard." He expects the fund to eventually reach $50,000.

Jones said he telephoned the Holt youths from Saigon before boarding a World Airways plane for a free flight to Oakland. He said he found them "grateful, choked up and stunned."

Jones said he plans to arrive in Austin tonight to present the check personally to the Holt family.

Reputed Underworld Figure Gets Reprieve

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joseph A. Colombo Sr., the reputed underworld leader who organized the Italian American Civil Rights League, won a fourth reprieve today from serving a 1-to-2 1-2-year prison term for perjury.

State Supreme Court Justice Sidney H. Asch granted Colomboa certificate of reasonable doubt allowing him to remain free while he appeals the conviction.

Help meet the demands of stress

New STRESS-B-VITE with Over 800 High-Potency Pellets in Each Capsule for Prolonged Release.

You may not know it, but right now at this very moment your body may be coping with a stressful situation. Stress can come in many forms. Your body is under stress when bacteria or viruses can overcome the normal body defenses to cause infection. Your body may be under stress when it is necessary to expend a great deal of physical energy such as running, bicycling, or otherwise working physically hard. At these times the cells and the tissues may require the need for additional vitamins—either for repair or because of increased metabolism. If you are an active and alive person on the go, Stress-B-Vite should be just what you are looking for to supply these additional vitamins when they are needed. Stress-B-Vite is a specially formulated capsule whose vitamins are released over a more prolonged period of time rather than all at once. Although medical opinion is divided, many nutritionists feel it may be better to get your vitamins over a longer period of the day. Since Stress-B-Vite is composed of hundreds and hundreds of tiny vitamin pellets that are released gradually over a longer period of time, it is, therefore, available to the body in a time-released fashion. If the body should require more vitamins for any reason, Stress-B-Vite Capsules are like a temporary warehouse that slowly releases these B Complex vitamins so that they can be absorbed. Remember, the vitamins of the B Complex are not stored in the body since they are water soluble, anything that is not used is pretty quickly eliminated. Universal Nutritions has developed Stress-B-Vite Capsules on the other hand which slows this process up so that if the body requires these vitamins, they may be ready, willing and able to be utilized. These prolonged release capsules are especially prepared vitamin packed pellets which contain Vitamins B1, B2, B6, B12, C, and other nutritional factors. Take Stress-B-Vite Capsules to help meet your nutritional requirements every day. Available at only $2.98 for 25 day supply.

OUT OF SORTS — The elephant Surus, property of Spanish surrealist painter Salvador Dali, frets in his cage at the Barcelona Zoo where keepers are having trouble with the pachyderm. It seems unhappy and ill-tempered, apparently dreaming of happier days in Africa. Dali once planned to ride Surus over the Pyrenees mountains in a Hannibal-style trek but aborted the journey and turned the animal over to the zoo, which is now awaiting Dali's return from an extended trip to the United States to settle the matter.

Showdown In Health Fuss Due Tomorrow

The big confrontation between Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer, and County Administrator Alan Bruce, who wants her fired, is expected tomorrow before the board of supervisors.

Dr. Albrecht, who has been health officer for 17 years, was accused on March 19 of being an inept administrator. Bruce recommended the dismissal of Dr. Albrecht and two of her aides, Natalie K. Posner, public health educator, and Philippa Denning-Kemp, investigator in the venereal disease clinic.

Mrs. Posner, however, was exonerated late last week of charges that she had been collecting pay from two counties by doctoring time sheets.

Dr. Albrecht, who conducted an investigation of her own department, categorically denied Bruce's charges of possible fraud, nepotism and of issuing misleading information.

The supervisors also will seek to save more than $100,000 per year by considering use of electronic devices, instead of stenographic reporters, to record court proceedings.

Bruce will recommend support of legislation that would permit use of the electronic devices.

These two items, plus a long agenda, are expected to keep the supervisors busy from 9 a.m. until evening at the Civic Center Administration Building.

Other items on the agenda include:

MOTORCYCLES — Appointment of an ad hoc committee to study areas that could be used for motorcycle riding and to suggest rules and standards to be observed by cyclists.

PROJECTS — The county Administrator will submit his annual recommendation on what road improvements and building construction are needed for the next five years.

INSURANCE — Marin Aviation Commission will ask for a delay before the county terminates its lease of airport space to Marin Aviation Inc., one of two fixed base operators at Gnoss Field. The county administrator contends that Marin Aviation has failed to comply with the agreement to carry certain insurance.

PARKS — Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission will discuss with the supervisors the future of park acquisition and development in Marin County. The informal discussion is set for 11 a.m.

HOUSING — A public hearing will be held at 2:30 p.m. on a proposed housing policy statement, drawn up by the county planning commission's housing subcommittee.

Painter Dali's Elephant Posing Big Problem At Barcelona's Zoo

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI)— Surrealist painter Salvador Dali has created a very real problem for the Barcelona Zoo by parking his pet elephant there and then more or less forgetting about it.

The elephant —once Dali's vehicle for a quickly aborted, Hannibal-style trek across the Pyrenees mountains —is unhappy, bad-humored and wants out. But he is Dali's property, and zoo director Antonio Fonch can do nothing about the problem until the master returns from an extended trip to the United States.

Fonch said that Surus, as the five-year-old animal is called, "has been a pain in the neck to us all".

Small wonder, Surus is the only bachelor elephant in the Barcelona zoo and in desperate need of a mate. The two-ton pachyderm has also outgrown his pen during the three years since Dali parked him in the zoo.

"If he were ours", Fonch sighed, "we would ship him to another zoo."

But Fonch cannot do anything without Dali's permission. The last time he appealed to the painter to, please, fetch your elephant, Dali suggested that Surus be given a permanent home at the Dali Museum at the nearby town of Figueras.

"Of course no elephant could live in a museum", said Figueras Mayor Ramon Guardiola "I call the idea totally impracticable."

But where else with Surus?

Dali, at one time, had tried to get rid of the elephant by donating it to the citizens of Figueras and suggesting that it be lodged in the town hall.

When the citizens balked, Dali lodged Surus in the town's bullring. Although Dali never said so it is possible that the 72-year-old gagman-artist was thinking of killing two flies with one stroke —reviving the dying Spanish bullfighting scene and getting rid of Surus.

But before the next big fiesta de toros was staged, the elephant was evicted from the bullring and shipped to the Barcelona zoo.

There he grudgingly munches his daily hay ration, and possibly reminiscences about the days in 1967 when—under the eyes of television cameras and countless excited onlookers —Dali tried to coax him across the mountains.

The painter had named the elephant after the only animal that survived Hannibal's Roman campaign, and in the pyrenees he tried to repeat the feat of the carthaginian general who crossed the mountains with an elephant-mounted army 2,185 years ago.

But in contrast to Dali, Surus proved to be camera-shy and extremely sensitive to crowds and publicity. He disliked the unfamiliar mountain scenery and threw a fit when Dali's entourage began to litter his path with rose petals.

The pachyderm added insult to injury by refusing to let Dali mount on his back. After a torturous four-day, 19-mile trek Dali abandoned his plan, and both he and the elephant limped home.

Or more or less home, as far as Surus is concerned.

OBITUARIES

Robert Timmer Killed

A 20-year-old San Rafael student on an Easter vacation trip to Mexico died last week of injuries suffered in a motorcycle spill along a remote stretch of highway.

Robert Timmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Timmer of 20 K Street, San Rafael, a sophomore at the College of Marin, was fatally injured Tuesday.

Robert and his brother Donald Jr., 21, a senior at the University of California at Santa Barbara, left Los Angeles Tuesday aboard their motorcycles headed for a vacation at Mazatlan, their father reported.

"They got into Mexico and apparently Bob's motorcycle hit soft gravel and threw him off. He complained of back pain, but they were 175 miles from nowhere so they decided to stay for the night, and see how he felt the next morning," Timmer said.

Donald Jr. woke up the next morning and discovered that his brother had died in his sleep, the father said. "He had a ruptured spleen."

Donald Jr. then had to ride three or four hours to reach the nearest town, and telephone the news of the tragedy home.

Robert, a graduate of San Rafael High School, was studying real estate, his father's business, and had worked summers for the Marin County Fire Department.

Surviving, besides his parents, are three brothers, Donald Jr., James, and Thomas, all of San Rafael.

CORTE MADERA STREET PLAN

An artist's rendering of proposed reconstruction of Tamalpais Drive in Corte Madera shows what the town's main street may look like in a year or two. Under discussion for more than a year by the town council, the project will be discussed by the planning commission today at 7:30 p.m. at town hall. If planning proceeds on schedule, the project could go to bid by late May.

Feud Looms On Flood Work Costs

Cost estimates for two flood control projects in Ross will be presented to the Ross Valley Flood Control Advisory board Friday amid indications the presentations may ignite a bitter feud.

Charles Murphy, county flood control engineer, said it will take about $350,000 to correct flooding on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and at the Ross Common, according to an outside consultant who recently completed his assessment of the two projects.

At least two of the advisory board members — Councilman Neil R. Brixon of Larkspur and Mayor Edward W. Colthurst of Corte Madera — have indicated they oppose authorizing the money for the two projects.

The opposition is certain to bring immediate reaction from Mayor Frederick S. Allen of Ross, another board member.

Five years ago, when the advisory board was created, Ross joined on condition that the two projects be included in the overall flood control program.

Colthurst, however, said Saturday he would "certainly raise some questions" about authorizing the money.

"I believe in local jurisdictions taking care of their own particular problems," Colthurst said. "I think the $350,000 they want is just about $350,000 more than I'm going to vote for."

Colthurst said Brixon has also voiced some reservations about the $350,000 figure.

The flood control zone's tax rate is now 5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, so authorization of the $350,000 would necessitate a major increase in that rate. The nickel rate raises about $50,000 a year, Murphy said.

Colthurst said the original estimate of completing the two projects, supplied five years ago, was $65,000.

The flood control board will meet at 8 a.m. in Ross Town Hall to receive the two reports.

Bill Would Ease Real Estate Aim

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Leon Ralph wants to make it easier for unemployed aerospace workers and others to find jobs in real estate, despite industry efforts to close top spots in the profession to anyone without a college degree.

The industry and the state Real Estate Department are working toward eventually limiting top broker licenses only to those individuals with a four-year college degree in real estate.

The aim is to increase "professionalism" but Ralph contends that qualified candidates for real estate broker license can be separated from the unqualified through use of a well-written examination.

The Democratic legislator, chairman of the Governmental Organization Committee, represents the Watts area of Los Angeles which has high unemployment.

He has proposed legislation, to be introduced this week, to relax the requirements on formal education. He said they will block persons such as a college-educated but unemployed aerospace engineer from top jobs in real estate.

Current law provides that starting next January, most applicants for a broker's license must have two years of experience as a salesman and pass four courses from an accredited college. This is in addition to a six-hour test administered by the state.

Joseph Hofmann, senior deputy in charge of examination for the state Real Estate Department, explained, "Our plan is that eight or nine years from now a college degree with an emphasis in real estate will be required for our top broker."

"Eventually, there will be no other alternative except the four-year degree with a major in real estate," he said, adding that a related degree in law or business with an emphasis on real estate "will be about the only kinds of exceptions."

But Ralph's bill would eliminate the requirement for two of the four courses. A license candidate still would be required to pass the state examination.

"This bill is not going to turn loose on the public any unqualified salesmen or brokers," Ralph insisted. "It will make it a little easier for people to enter the field."

Ralph's bill would leave unchanged the current requirements for college courses in real estate practices and real estate law. But it would revoke the requirement that applicants also complete college courses in real estate finance and real estate appraisal.

He argues that qualified individuals who have served as salesmen can learn the business and become competent brokers without stringent formal educational requirements.

If a broker's examination is written correctly, he contends only the qualified could pass it regardless of where they obtained their education.

Hoffman said the four-year college course requirement is a "move toward a professionalization plan" that was devised in 1966.

"Realtors of the future will be much more sophisticated and concerned about the quality of life," he said.

Presently, there are two real estate employment classifications, salesman and broker. A broker can own an office and hire salesmen but a salesman cannot hire other salesmen.

Hofmann said the industry plan would create three classifications, salesman, broker and "super" or master broker. The four-year degree would be required for master broker.

Additional minor educational requirements would be imposed on the lesser jobs.

Family Dinner On Decline?

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The family dinner hour fast is becoming a "thing of the past," a Michigan State University nutrition expert says.

"It's part of the pressure under which we're living," said Dr. Dena C. Cederquist of MSU's Department of Food Science.

About the only time parents and children sit down together at the table anymore is on Sundays, holidays and other special occasions, she said.

"I personally think that much is lost when families don't sit down together to eat," Dr. Cederquist said. "More than food is consumed."

Authorities said Lynche was wanted for the $1,300 robbery of a United California Bank branch last week. He was identified from a photograph taken by a hidden automatic camera.

20 YEARS AGO

The Great Truman, MacArthur Feud

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The general said, "There is no substitute for victory." The President said, "We do not want to widen the conflict."

Thus was the stage set, 20 years ago this week, for President Harry S. Truman to fire Gen. Douglas MacArthur, precipitating a controversy that raged through the nation until long after the Korean War, which brought it on, had subsided.

MacArthur, supreme allied commander in the Pacific during World War II and subsequently chief executive of the occupation forces in Japan, was put in charge of United Nations troops when, on June 25, 1950, a total of 10 North Korean divisions invaded South Korea.

In the narrowest sense, the invasion was a civil war in a divided nation. But it also was a major crisis involving the two power blocs that emerged from World War II. In Some measure the conflict paralleled the present Vietnamese War.

Despite heavy odds, MacArthur's forces stopped the Communist advance, made a surprise landing at Inchon far to the enemy rear and broke out of the Pusan perimeter. Within the next two months the North Korean army was routed and almost destroyed.

Then, in November, the Chinese Communists intervened, touching off what MacArthur called a "new war," forcing U.N. troops to withdraw south of the 38th parallel. Shortly thereafter MacArthur, by implication, threatened to bomb and blockade Red China. He also called for Chinese commanders to discuss armistice terms.

Truman took strong exception to what he considered a soldier's intervention into diplomatic affairs. On Jan. 31 he informed MacArthur that Asia was not the only problem facing the nation as Russia was threatening Europe and the Middle East.

MacArthur held out for what his critics termed "all-out war," which MacArthur supporters said would bring victory in Korea and lasting peace throughout Asia.

With U.N. troops, mostly American, facing upwards of 400,000 Red Chinese, in addition to Soviet-equipped North Korean divisions, Truman put MacArthur under orders to quit issuing public statements.

But on April 5 Rep. Joseph Martin, R-Mass., made public a letter he received from MacArthur that expressed the general's disapproval of the administration's goals. The President considered this the last straw. He replaced MacArthur with Lt. Gen. Matthew Ridgway and in a broadcast to the nation said, "So far we have prevented World War III. We do not want to widen the conflict." Then the President braced for reaction.

MacArthur's removal produced an instant emotional and political uproar. The general had many supporters, some in high political position. There was talk of running him for president.

The general's return to America brought mass frenzy. There were wild receptions for him in Honolulu, San Francisco, Chicago, New York and, finally, Washington. Television, new then, carried the tumultuous scenes and the general's words to millions across the land.

On April 19 the general's homecoming culminated in an address before a joint session of Congress. "Once war is forced upon us," MacArthur said, "there is no other alternative than to apply every available means to bring it to a swift end. War's very object is victory — not prolonged indecision. n war, indeed, there can be no substitute for victory."

Then, remarking that he was closing 52 years of Army service, the general quoted from a barracks ballad: "Old soldiers never die; they just fade away."

MacArthur's ouster was investigated by a Senate committee but this evolved into an inconclusive debate over far eastern policy. The general, meanwhile, delivered a series of speeches criticizing "internal subversion, corruption and detailed regimentation" among the federal agencies.

MacArthur lived on for 12 years. He died at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, April 5, 1964, and was buried at Norfolk, Va.

EASTER SAMARITANS

Indians Welcome Teen Task Force

By JEFF GREER

Two dozen Marin County teen-agers and four adults spent four days of their Easter vacation happily doing humble chores at the Round Valley Indian reservation in Mendocino County.

When it was over, "we hated to come back," declared Nancy Crawford, a Terra Linda High School co-ed.

Nancy and the other teen-agers from throughout Marin County made a sort of exploratory "service caravan" to the valley — which holds California's largest Indian reservation — to see what tasks they could perform to help the 600 Indian residents.

The trip was sponsored by the Marin YMCA. During the previous five years the YMCA had organized annual service caravans to the Monument Valley Indian reservation near the Four Corners where New Mexico, Arizona, Utah and Colorado boundaries meet.

"The teens felt they were working for the mission there, instead of for the Indians," explained Carl Jensen, program director for the Marin Y. He said the trip to the Eel River country was both to perform services and to establish lines of communication with the Indians. It was necessary to convince the reserved tribesmen to accept manpower offered by the teen-agers, Jensen said.

During much of the outing the Indians "were watching us" while the teen-agers picked up roadside litter, swept out the old Round Valley schoolhouse which has become the Indian's community center, and sought out other helpful tasks, according to Lyn Jensen, Y counselor and wife of the program director.

The Indians "kept telling us to just enjoy ourselves. They didn't realize we wanted to work," added Randy Harris, a teen-ager from Greenbrae. "We must have picked up a thousand beer cans" along the road. "We wanted to fix windows and do repairs in the old school."

The teen-agers obviously made a good impression among the tribesmen; they were invited to return to help modernize the old schoolhouse for a Head Start preschool center the Indian council plans to establish.

"When we talked to the Indians, they were very warm and friendly," young Harris and Miss Crawford agreed.

The "big" issue among youth in Round Valley and in nearby Covelo was whether the boys should wear long hair and the girls should break down the rule requiring skirts in school.The young Indians disapproved of three local youths who were letting their tresses grow, the Marin teen-agers found.

The young volunteers and their adult counselors found the reservation close-knit but clannish. Few teen-age Indians wanted to leave their community to try living elsewhere. The half-dozen tribes on the reservation lived separately, in small clusters of two or three houses "with lots of breathing room in between."

All the families prided themselves on having many children. The Indian students were active in team sports and Future Farmers of America projects in the Covelo school, but returned to their families for social activities in the evening.

"When we walked around after supper, they'd be out playing baseball with their families," the Marinites recalled.

The young YMCA volunteers did all their own household chores, living in the community center. After completing whatever volunteer tasks they could find, they split up into groups to hike in the reservation's forests, watch the Indians fish for salmon, or explore the Eel River's swimming potential.

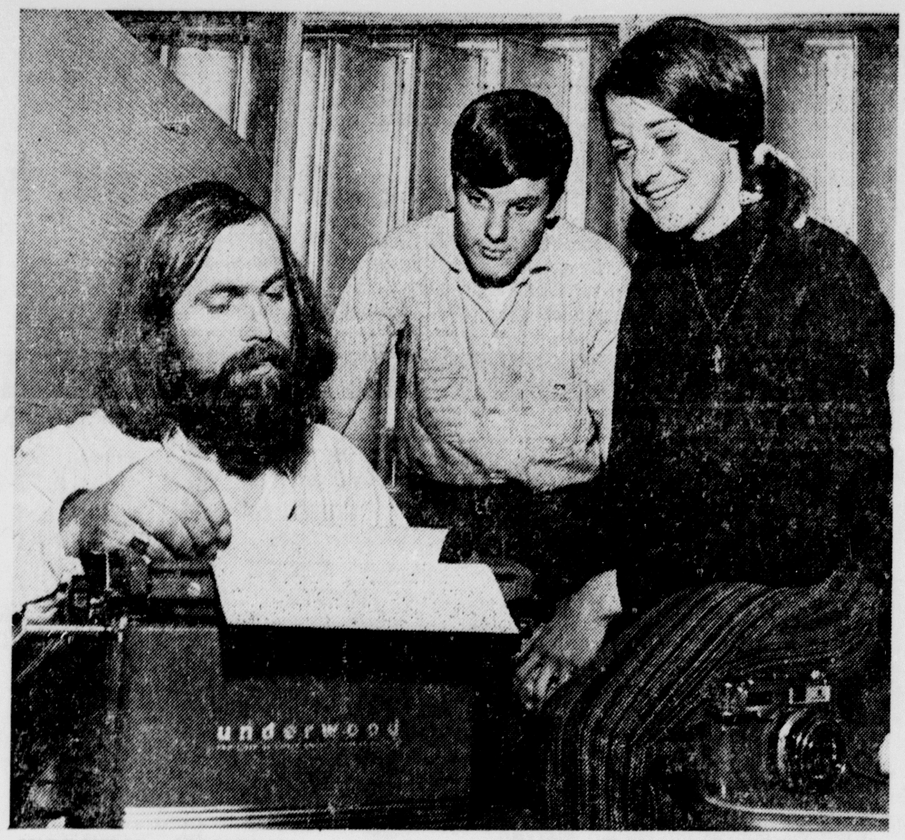
Major social events in the mountain-girt valley are the Indian's annual rodeo in the grounds behind the old schoolhouse, and the women's annual bazaar which attracts throngs of buyers for the beadwork and other craftwork produced by the families.

Although the Indians seldom invite each other to dinner or overnight visits, the Marin teen-agers were given a party by one member of the reservation council, at which he handed out beads as souvenirs.

Council members travel often, pressing Washington and Sacramento for the Indian's self-betterment projects or on matters involving expansion of the reservation, Jensen reported.

"There's an airstrip there; I was surprised the council didn't have its own plane," he said.

The Indians strive for self-sufficiency, with each wage-earner contributing monthly "dues" for maintenance work, Indian council office staff and other projects. They have accumulated some $300,000 toward a much-needed medical center for the reservation, the Marin visitors found, and take care of impoverished or illness-stricken families out of council funds.



WORKING HOLIDAY — Carl Jensen (left) of the YMCA typed up a few notes Saturday when he and Randy Harris and Nancy Crawford visited the Independent-Journal to report on their visit to an Indian Reservation. They and other Marin youths devoted their Easter holidays to finding out what they might do for the Indians.

Blue Cross Head Sees Need For Government Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Walter J. McNerney, president of Blue Cross associations, says the federal government must exercise a significantly stronger leadership in the field of health care if America is to meet expanding demands for doctors and hospitals.

"The apparatus we've used for years is now outdated," McNerney said Sunday. "The field does not operate well when left alone."

He was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

McNerney said the private sector must share responsibility with government and "neither can do it alone."

There should be more emphasis on area-wide planning, McNerney said, with state agencies determining which hospitals should expand and where new ones should be built on the basis of population.

Library Talks

History Repeats Self: 'Snooping By FBI'

Skeletons must be rattling since Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., has called for the ouster of Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for spying on congressmen.

When Atty. Gen. Charles Joseph Bonaparte (a grandson of Napoleon's brother Jerome) asked in 1907 for creation of "a small permanent detective force" in the Justice Department, he was turned down by congressmen suspicious of the political uses to which such a force might be put.

They had reason. Strange things had been done by the Secret Service created by President Abraham Lincoln under Lafayette C. Baker during the Civil War. Political spying was one of them.

When Bonaparte renewed his request in 1908, congressmen were disturbed by rumors that President Theodore Roosevelt was getting information to force unwilling congressmen to vote his programs by using the Secret Service "to obtain interesting date when the gentlemen of Congress trod, heavily and rashly, the Primrose Path." During the debate, Rep. Walter I. Smith declared: "Nothing is more opposed to our race than a belief that a general system of espionage is being conducted by the federal government."

Nevertheless, Bonaparte was given funds to hire a few agents, and what later became the FBI was born. (Its total personnel in 1909 was 23)

WHAT THE CONGRESSMEN feared in 1907 came true during the Harding administration of 1921-24. Atty. Gen. Harry M. Daugherty used his Bureau of Investigation, then headed by famed detective William J. Burns, to compile personal files on enemies of the "Ohio gang."

That became one of the stenches that Calvin Coolidge, when he inherited the presidency on Harding's death, sought to eradicate. To do so, he brought in as attorney general the high-principled Harlan Fiske Stone, who later became chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stone cast about for a new head for the Bureau of Investigation who was untainted by the Daugherty-Burns scandals. He chose a young assistant attorney general named John Edgar Hoover. In addition to his rectitude, Hoover's qualifications included having prepared the case by which a former attorney general, A. Mitchell Palmer, had tried to deport hundreds of alien Communists in the "big Red scare" that followed World War I.

HISTORY REPEATS itself.

Hoover, installed in office to rid the FBI of the stench of political snooping, now is accused of the same offense himself.

The FBI under Hoover has grown since 1925 from a small, inept, politics-dominated bureau with few federal crimes within its jurisdiction to an immense organization with a wide assortment of powers and duties. But in doing so, it inevitably has grown closer to what Rep. Walter I. Smith feared in 1907: "a general system of espionage . . . conducted by the federal government." Too close, according to Congressman Boggs.

J. Edgar Hoover is 75. It is sad to see his long record of devoted service becoming more and more tarnished as his years accumulate. But perhaps even J. Edgar Hoover is not exempt from the truth that "power corrupts."

"Of course Mr. Hoover knows I have every confidence in him . . . he just heard me say so on the wiretap."

Bridge District Transit Plan Not Really Mini-Priced

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Golden Gate Bridge District consultants so numbed the public with findings that rail rapid transit would cost $1 billion that spending only $331 million seems like peanuts.

That piddling figure is the price tag on the district's ferry and bus operation and expansion to bus rapid transit for the next decade..

But how much is $331 million?

It's two and one-half times the amount President Richard M. Nixon unsuccessfully requested to keep the supersonic transport project alive until June 30. And it's only $69 million short of the total estimated for completing development of the SST prototype.

Not that the district's transit facilities may not be worth more than the SST, but $331 million turns out to be a lot of money. Any time someone pushes for a rail system, keep in .ind that it would cost three times more than the mere $331 million.

ONE LINE from the district's plan especially caught our eye. The strongest opposition to construction of the bridge back in the '30s was by "ferryboat interests." Just like today — when private ferryboat interests are the main source of opposition to the district's pending entry into the ferry business.

The consultants' reports that led to the plan for the next decade, incidentally, had contrasting bindings. The engineers' report was bound in black. The urban planners, who arranged the binding of both, bound their report in white.

YOU RECALL Gov. Ronald Reagan's dictum to "squeeze, cut and trim" the budget? Add "squash," and credit it to Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

While the governor never has been seen to physically apply his dictum, Bagley actually carried his out by putting the budget under the edge of his mammoth capitol desk. (He really did it to make room under his desk for a telephone cable, but that would spoil the item.)

Despite the tremendous pressure, incidentally, not a drop was seen to ooze from the budget under Bagley's desk.

WE WONDERED why the Marin County Health Department limited its anti-rubella campaign to children 11 years old or younger. The answer was that the cutoff age was to avoid the chance of giving rubella to pregnant girls.

The shots, of course, could have been given to boys over 11, but think of the administrative nightmare — given today's hair and dress — of sorting them out!

TWO NEW LIGHTS are being tested on the Golden Gate Bridge, and the public has a chance to register its reaction before one is selected to replace the existing lights, which no longer are made. One is an ugly bulbous affair offered by giant General Electric, the other a handsome modern design by a little San Francisco firm. Both are south of the south tower on the east sidewalk.

Justice Doubted In Driving Case

Justice in the courts?

Every few days read in the I.J. the names and addresses of drivers picked up on drunken driving charges (502.)

Drunken driving is bad, no matter what the circumstances, and stiff penalties are certainly in order.

Eighty per cent of those drunks arrested were caught by the police or the highway patrol through erratic driving, obvious to spot by an alert patrolman, but without a crash or injuring anyone.

How come when a prominent Marin County attorney is arrested on a felony drunken driving charge, after crashing into a taxi and injuring a passenger in San Anselmo, he gets off with a misdemeanor and a fine?

This is justice? Marin County style?

Federal Subsidy Of Arts Needed

It has become clearly apparent that the cultural activities of this nation can no longer rely solely on funds contributed by private individuals, philanthropic or business corporations for support.

The realization that federal assistance is necessary has been obvious to the leadership of the art movements of the country, who are concerned with the future of our symphony, opera, ballet and drama companies and of our museums.

The time has come when all citizens who share this concern about the cultural well-being of our nation should express this by writing to the members of the House Appropriations Committee asking for full funding for the National Endowment for the Arts.

The amount currently under consideration is $30 million. This is equivalent to the cost of one mile of super-highway.

Traditionally, European subsidy for the arts dates back to the 15th century. The entire art tradition of the western world, which this nation has admired, emulated and drawn upon in our own cultural development, was underwritten by a system of state subsidy from the time of the royal courts to the present . . .

Full funding of the National Endowment for the Arts is essential to the quality of our cultural environment!

Parents Endorse Work Of Toliver

As the parents of a child who attended Martin Luther King School for four years, we feel constrained to remark on the attacks by the Sausalito School Board on special assistant James Toliver.

We and our daughter have the highest regard for Toliver and his work. That he could be accused of incompetence seems a total contradiction of facts.

We note that he is charged with failing to bring about "a solution to problems that appear to be explosive." Problems in the district are indeed explosive, but to put the blame on one of the persons who has been working hardest to solve those problems is dangerously foolish. It isn't Toliver's doing that so-called adult persons refuse to listen to one another or to work together for the good of the students. It isn't his doing that school board meetings end in childish rows while the schools' problems remain unsolved.

His concern is, rightly, with the children. Through our daughter and other MLK students we have learned of many situations where Toliver saved the day. Racial incidents decreased sharply in the last school years, and a good deal of the credit goes to this man. He not only calmed potential disturbances, he also influenced the students so that by the end of the year they were very effectively doing their own policing. His methods were rational and the results were remarkable . . .

My Lai Blame Spread Widely

I wouldn't be presumptuous enough to pass judgement on Lieutenant Calley but there is one aspect which I think should be mentioned: uninformed combatants in war have always been subject to execution as "spies." Unfortunately the civilians who have sent our people to war, and the bulk of the mass media, have not seen fit to provide our boys with some standard and basis for protection in this vein. Thus we see frustrated young Americans seeing their comrades being picked off by an invisible adversary who is immune to reprisal or even detention if caught. The result has been excessive over-reaction in the field. Our men surely had to do something! . . .

Blame, in my view, must devolve on civilians. First in line is Eisenhower for his myopic SEATO ideas. Second is Kennedy for his infantile meddling. Third and foremost is LBJ and the Democratic Congress of 1964 for their autumn panic in the heat of a presidential campaign. Fourth and equally foremost is the national mass media for its lack of candor in all correlated events.

Naturally, one cannot expect any of the above agents to police themselves. So what will the result be? I say a drift into some new form of militancy which no one can now clearly visualize. And who will provide the wind in the sails for this starboard tack? Why, the liberals, "of course" . . . In another commercial pun, "the chicks are back" (to roost).

Divert Space Program Scientists To Correcting Air Pollution

WASHINGTON — If we can roam outer space and go to the moon, why can't we find a way to stop polluting the atmosphere on earth? In answer, the experts usually look at you patronizingly and say: "No, the problems are quiet different; there is no relationship."

We ought to keep on asking this question — and demand a better answer.

Right now, with sharp cuts in federal funds for the space program, with the abandonment of the SST, and with the aerospace industro laying off many skilled technologists, we face a painful problem of unemployment — and a great opportunity.

The problem is the mounting unemployment of scientists, engineers and technicians.

The opportunity is that these are the very people uniquely qualified to create the new technological breakthrough to enable industry and government to end perilous pollution.

WHAT A MOMENT to combine the managerial skills demonstrated by NASA with the technicians' skills of the aerospace unemployed mobilized to help produce the new technology to keep us from destroying our environment!

What an opportunity to turn the national liability of aerospace unemployment into a national asset for environmental progress!

How?

By asking a question: "If we can go to the moon, can't we end pollution?" And by finding that the answer is yes.

How? By taking the central lesson learned from NASA and applying it to the problem of pollution.

By creating a dedicated team of managerial, scientific and technical talent to find ways to protect the environment as NASA created a dedicated team to find ways to explore outer space.

CALL IT ANYTHING you want, perhaps the National Environmental Corp. Make it a public corporation like Comsat or Railpax. Don't start it on a shoestring. Give it a minimum of $100 million, the funds to be provided by government and industry because the fruit of its work will be ultimately benefiting both government and industry.

Give it skilled, experienced, dynamic leadership at the top. It deserves nothing less. No doubt there are many qualified managerial administrators but the one who, I believe, could do the most to make this enterprise come alive and burgeon into reality is the man who built NASA and put together the team that enabled us to orbit the earth and visit the moon, and who resigned only after Congress began to deplete his funds — James E. Webb. If Webb could be lured out of retirement, the project would soon be in orbit.

GOVERNMENT AND private industries need technological innovations which will enable them to end pollution of air and water and to do it at costs tolerable to both.

The proposed National Envoronmental Corp. would take contracts from business and from local, city, state and federal governments to come up with practical solutions to environmental problems. Private enterprise is already working in this field but the need is so urgent and vast that government and industry must work together. Delay is dangerous because we're polluting more than we are reducing pollution.

At this point 75,000 to 100,000 engineers, scientists and technicians are unemployed and the number is rising.

It is crucial to protect the nation's investment in the unemployed brainpower developed by the aerospace community.

What better way to use all we can of it than to create a team to work on pollution as NASA did to get to the moon?

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

High Confidence In Nader: A Lesson For Politicians

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Imagine how envious that most responsive of American poll-watchers, Richard M. Nixon, must be! Not only him, but all those who would like to replace him — Muskie, McGovern, Hughes, Bayh, Jackson, Wallace. Every one of them has been the subject of public opinion polls, and on occasion they have found encouragement in the results. But none of them has ever come close to the approval margins registered now for a non-politician, from a breed of citizen which seldom is even listed on the poll-takers' charts.

It is Ralph Nader, according to a Louis Harris Survey, who draws the endorsement of 53 per cent of Americans for doing "more good than harm," and about whom only 9 per cent draw the opposite conclusion. In the suburbs, where the votes increasingly are, he is approved by 63 per cent; among college graduates, the most influential voters, by 72 per cent; among independents, that crucial swing-group in any election, by 62 percent, and among those earning above $10,000, where much of the money to finance campaigns comes from, by 67 per cent. In none of those groups does the skepticism about him run higher than 11 per cent.

Yet he's not running for anything. That, to the politicians who covet such acceptance among the public, is the most amazing part of it.

ASIDE FROM THAT political self-denial, which is so straight in line with his well-publicized avoidance of personal publicity and his frugal life style, what Washingtonians remark on most is the assumption that he is riding for an eventual fall.

When he first rode into town as a rumpled young crusader for auto safety, nobody took him very seriously. But then he beat General Motors and people paid attention. Obviously if GM was not too big for him, nobody else was. And since then he has made life uncomfortable for nearly every other kind of corporation, including the only one that is bigger than GM, the U.S. government itself.

But in doing so he himself has become a form of corporation. He has spread out from auto safety to nursing homes, local property taxes, government subsidies to industry, industrial domination of government advisory committees, birth control pills, bureaucratic secrecy, television censorship, in-flight smoking, the medical profession, consumer and mortgage loan practices, supermarket prices and product dating, mine safety, the Food and Drug Administration, and pollution at Waikiki Beach . . . that is just a sampling. Merely listing them would take the rest of this column.

IT MAY NOT OCCUR to everybody who has heard of Nader that no one man, no matter how he stays up all night working, doesn't smoke or drink, prefers hot chocolate to coffee, doesn't bother to get his suits pressed, and avoids all but a few phone calls — no one superman could do all this crusading by himself.

Most of it is delegated to young lawyers or other professionals working out of the four Nader headquarters (the Center for Study of Responsive Law, the Public Interest Research Group, the Center for Auto Safety, and the project on corporate responsibility). Another sign of summer in Washington, expected now every year after the cherry blossoms fall, is the influx of white and fashionably upper-class undergraduates and law students to provide supplementary manpower to the year-round Nader's Raiders.

Nader himself can give only the roughest guidance to these eager volunteers. He is aloft most of the time going and coming to speaking engagements to raise money to continue and expand these modern crusades, and occasionally lending his name and telegenic face to the cause locally when a congressional hearing or other sufficiently prestigious forum is offered.

In effect, the investigations and publishing are done under a Nader franchise. The fat, passionate books entitled "The Nader Report on ——"(fill in blank) have about as much of his personal authorship as Kentucky Fried Chicken has of Colonel Sanders' culinary touch.

THAT IS WHY so many think he must someday slip up, that one of those zealous youngsters is going to make an outrageous charge that is proven wrong, and the Nader credibility which contrasts so with that of his corporate and governmental victims is going to be shattered.

But, despite a few lapses, it has not happened yet. The polls show where he stands among the many, but cannot measure the devotion of those who work for him, to whom he is the nearest substitute for Christ Himself. True, a few others think that is how he looks on himself. But the most audible outcries against him are from those whose corporate or bureaucratic ox has been gored.

When Sen. Thomas Dodd was headed for defeat in Connecticut, it was suggested seriously that Nader run to replace him. He probably could have won easily. But to him, and more so to his worshipers, that would have been a form of treason, of going over to the enemy.

So he will go on shaking up, but not trying to replace, the System. And his influence on it is not merely through his franchised exposes, but alos in the example he sets for practicing politicians. He and the polls suporting him are a daily reminder to them that the consumer is the most common American of all.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By C. P. McCarthy

Reporter Takes Blank Look At A Nameless Controversy

There is, or was, a saying that the three times a girl gets her name in the paper when she's born, when she marries, and when she dies.

A fourth landmark occasion may well be added, and that is the occasion of her home — being burglarized.

The Independent-Journal, in its ceaseless effort to inform its readers, each Monday runs a list of burglaries reported around the county the previous week.

The listing usually contains about 30 burglaries a week, which isn't a very promising figure if your're waiting to see your name in the paper.

However, there have been recent indications that some Marin citizens may have been cheated of their moment in the spotlight by a police department who, for some reason, has failed to tell the I-J about a burglary.

SOME CITY COUNCILMEN agree with the no-tell policy, while others feel that it is all right for burglaries to be reported, but names and addresses of victims should be deleted.

Councilman Benton A. Sifford of Larkspur goes along with the latter line, suggesting that publication of names and addresses might cause burglars to make "second calls."

I, of course, agree wholeheartedly with that theory, and will go so far as to suggest that names and addresses be left out of press reports entirely.

It might not lead to a better informed public, but at least all parties in the news would be protected.

We could have news stories about how President ... announced today that American troops had invaded ... Vice President ... two days later would announce the invasion of ... was not a flop as it had been called in reports in the ... Times and ... Post.

Councilman ... of ... would call for the firing of ... Police would report that ... of ... was arrested for pushing dope; ..., a student at ... High School, would win a scholarship to ... University, and her parents would announce the marriage of ... to ...

UNFORTUNATELY, many people, including I-J editors, don't see the wisdom and benevolence of this no-name policy. Some Marinites even wonder if the I-J is printing enough.

For instance, the paper received a letter last week from some folks in Ross wondering if all the crime in the peaceful little town is being reported.

They clipped an article from a recent I-J relating how Mayor Edwin J. Drechsel of Belvedere remarked that, at least from I-J reports, "Belvedere was somewhat noteworthy for not having burglaries." As it turned out, the burglaries just weren't reported to the I-J prior to the advent of new Police Chief John W. Jaeger.

The letter writers from Ross wondered if that might not be true in their town as well.

Please check and reveal the truth," they wrote. "We have a right to know what danger exists, but Ross Town Council sure won't tell us. We've asked!"

Too bad the letter writers didn't sign their names or addresses.

Chou's Hard Line Dashes Nixon Hopes

By STEWART HENSLEY
UPI Diplomatic Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon's efforts to improve relations with Peking are doomed to failure, at least for the immediate future, judging from recent statements attributed to Premier Chou en Lai.

And if Chou meant what he said, it will make little difference whether the United Nations votes to admit Red China to the world organization next fall since his conditions for joining are not likely to be met.

Chou's position was made known in two recent interviews with an American author, Edgar Snow. The statements to Snow were put together in an article published in the magazine New Republic. Snow is a long time friend of Chou, having known him and Mao Tse Tung since 1936 when the Communists pulled back to northwestern China to build their strength for the ultimate takeover of the country, which they accomplished in 1949.

Nixon's moves to try to improve relations with Peking during the past 18 months have consisted of removal of some of the restrictions on trade and removal of all restrictions against travel to the mainland by U.S. citizens.

These steps were designed to persuade the communists that the United States wanted to move toward a less acrimonious relationship, but there is no evidence whatever that they have softened at all the tough attitude of Chou on the big issue separating the two nations: the future of the nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan.

The United States is committed to defend the Nationalists against attack from the mainland. This commitment is embodied in a mutual security treaty concluded in 1954, and President Nixon has stressed repeatedly that he will honor that pledge.

Chou made it clear, in his talks with Snow, that the United States must end its "armed protectorate" over Taiwan before there could be any real diplomatic communication between Washington and Peking.

The United States, faced with mounting U. N. sentiment for the admission of Red China, is moving toward the adoption of what is called a "two-China" policy. Under such a policy the United States would not oppose admission of Peking, but would insist that Nationalist China also retain its seat.

Chou was asked by Snow how his country would respond if the United States voted to admit Peking and if his government were given a seat in the Security Council now held by the Nationalist Government. Chou replied that if the Chiang Kai Shek "clique" —as he describes the Nationalist government on Taiwan —were thrown out of the United Nations altogether, then Peking "would consider" joining.

The United States is firmly opposed to this. It could block expulsion of the Nationalists by using its veto power —and undoubtedly would do so.

The Chinese premier's attitude also appeared to rule out any resumption of sporadic meetings between the U. S. and Chinese ambassadors in Poland. The Chinese broke off these talks last spring as a gesture of protest against the U. S. move into Cambodia.

Minor Injuries To Passengers

Three passengers have suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident on Highway 101, south of Sierra Avenue, Cotati, and were treated at Hillcrest Hospital. Petaluma, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers said a car driven by Louis O. Bonomi of 399 Sierra Avenue, Cotati, struck the rear of a car driven by James Beacker, 18, of Santa Rosa, which had stopped at 12:35 a.m. Saturday.

James Ellison, 22, and Ronald Neal, 22, both of Oakland, suffered bruises, and Steven Petilla, 18, of Santa Rosa, suffered a facial cut. All were passengers in the Beacker car.

Pot Suspect Is Arrested

Corte Madera police have arrested Thomas F. Dillon, 23, of San Francisco, on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Police said Dillon was spotted "passed out" in his car along Madera Boulevard near the entrance to the Rafters restaurant at 3:05 a.m.

A search turned up two vials of what appeared to be marijuana and a hashish pipe, police said. Dillon was booked at Marin County Jail with bail set at $625.

He was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Two Eagle Scouts For One Troop

It isn't every day that a Boy Scout troop gains an Eagle Scout in its ranks, but Troop 42 of Novato recently gained two at one Court of Honor.

Scouts Scott Lilly, 15, a sophomore at San Marin High School, and Jerry Hendel, 16, a junior at San Marin High, received the awards at West Novato School.

Hendel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence P. Hendel of 6 Nogales Court, Novato, has been an instructor with the troop since September. For his Eagle Scout project, he wrote an orientation booklet for new scouts.

Hendel was a patrol leader and assistant patrol leader with Troop 104 at Kadena Air Force Base, Okinawa, before joining the Novato troop.

He entered scouting as a Cub Scout at Hamilton Air Force Base in 1962 and became a Boy Scout in Okinawa in 1966.

Lilly, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Lilly of 30 San Benito Way, has been the troop's senior patrol leader for the past six months. For his Eagle Scout project, he surveyed the Novato area for potential equestrian and hiking trails.

He entered scouting as a tenderfoot in Troop 42 in October 1966, and has served as leader of the Eagle patrol for two years. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow, and has taken two 50-mile hikes in the Sierra, a 50-mile canoe trip down the American River and has participated in survival campouts on islands in Tomales Bay.

Lilly is an Independent-Journal carrier in Novato. Troop 42 is sponsored by the Novato Kiwanis Club.

Car Accidents Bring Four Minor Injuries

Four persons received minor injuries in accidents during the weekend, California Highway Patrol reported.

William Fredrick Morris, 16, of 3 Geneva Way, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and bruises.

He was northbound on Mabry Way, at Rafael Way, Santa Venetia at 6:15 p.m. Saturday when his car collided with one driven east on San Rafael Way by Cheryl Ann Bosch, 24, of 135 Vendola Drive, San Rafael, patrolmen reported.

Julio Cesar Valdes, 41, of Daly City was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruised ribs. His northbound car hit the divider on Highway 101 at the Tiburon overpass at 6:50 a.m. yesterday, patrolmen reported.

Howard A. James, 60, of 523 D Street, San Rafael, was to see his own doctor for minor injuries received in an accident at 1:05 p.m. Saturday on Shoreline Highway 800 feet north of Highway 101.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Floyd Leo James, 53, of 815 Fourth Street, San Rafael. It collided with one driven by John Wadsworth Everts, 15, of 410 Hillside Avenue, Mill Valley. Both were northbound on Shoreline Highway, according to patrol.

LaVoyle Marie Chewning, 46, of Richmond was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts on her arm and face, received in an accident at 8 p.m. Friday on Highway 17 west of the Richmond-San Rafael bridge.

Her westbound car collided with another westbound car driven by Jordan Lee Varner, 45, of Vallejo, according to the patrol.

Weapons Count In Petaluma

Russell John Mancebo, 28, of 220 Fair Street, Petaluma, has been arrested on suspicion of possession of a deadly weapon.

Officers said Mancebo's car was stopped Friday at 11:10 p.m. on a traffic violation in American Alley at the rear of Kentucky Street. They said a sawed off shotgun rigged to fire while still in its case was seen in the backseat.

As officers reached for the weapon, they said Mancebo attempted to flee, but was caught between buildings a few yards away. He was booked into Sonoma County Jail for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Condominium Application Due A Hearing Tomorrow

San Rafael Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on a proposal to convert a 40-unit apartment house at 237 Picnic Avenue to condominium ownership, at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the city hall council chamber.

The condominum subdivision sought by Picnic Hill, would provide air space division, with surrounding land being "common area."

The commission also is scheduled to resume its discussion on the proposed ordinance governing tidelands and waterways within the city.

Also on the agenda is adoption of a resolution instructing the city planning director to process sign permit applications in accordance with the recently adopted sign ordinance, even though the ordinance has not yet legally taken effect.

Use permits will be discussed for a children's reading center school at 35 Mitchell Boulevard, a grooming and modelling school for young women at 926 Irwin Street, a medical office at 1634 Fifth Avenue, and an auto repair shop at 50 Tiburon Street.

Valley Players Set Play Dates

The San Geronimo Valley Art Center's Valley Players will present the two-act play "Thurber Carnival" Friday and Satudday and April 23 and 24.

The play, first presented on Broadway in 1960, is a series of short sketches by famous author James Thurber. It opens and closes with a series of "one-liners" from which the Rowan and Martin "Laugh-in" television show borrowed so successfully.

The play is directed by Barbara Jeppesen of San Geronimo. It will be performed at 8:30 p.m. at the art center on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in San Geronimo.

Adding A Warm Touch To Men's Farm

A NEW building housing 40 residents of St. Anthony Farm on Valley Ford Highway between Bodega Bay and Petaluma, is being decorated with curtains by members of the new St. Anthony Auxiliary. The small group of women gathering material to be used for curtains like the finished ones up in the room of Gary Randles, right. At the window is Mrs. Earl Dolcini of Petaluma, vice president of the Auxiliary and inspecting the fabric are Mrs. Lucien Libarle of Petaluma, first vice president, and Rev. Alfred Boeddeker, executive director and founder of the St. Anthony Dining Room in San Francisco.

By DYANNE FORTNER

Nestled atop a knoll along Valley Ford Highway, midway between Bodega Bay and Petaluma, is a rambling, new structure which seems out of place in an area of weather beaten barns and fences. made of ston,e wood and glass, this 11,000 square foot building houses 40 men associated with St. Anthony Farms.

The farm is part of the well known St. Anthony Dining Room on Market Street in San Francisco and was founded in 1953 primarily to raise meat for the free dinners in the city. Both are owned by the Catholic Church and operated by Franciscan Fathers. The Rev. Alfred Boeddeker, O.F.M., whose office is in San Francisco, commutes each Tuesday to the ranch to carry out his supervisorial duties.

Farm residents are men who previously used the services of the dining room and requested a place at the ranch. Free to stay as long as he wishes, each man is expected to work at his optimum in performing ranch chores. Showers, well-balanced meals and clothing are offered in return.

A year ago the new housing facility was constructed from donations of all types of building materials. Currently a lumber firm is donating wood, with which residents will make nightstands.

Upon the building's completion Father Boeddecker approached the farm's board of directors and asked for assistance in putting together an auxiliary. Naturally, these men went home and asked their wives to help, and a few weeks later Mrs. Lucien Libarle of Petaluma was elected first president of the auxiliary.

Millie Libarle says that her organization was asked to give the new ranch house "a woman's touch." Its first endeavors were new wardrobe purchases for each man during the Christmas holidays.

"We took these packages out to the men just a few days before Christmas. Each auxiliary member had baked dozens and dozens of cookies so there would be plenty throughout the holidays. One member's child encouraged his 4-H club to donate a table-tennis table and equipment for the men. When the children arrived with this gift they also came with a tree and ornaments," Millie remembers.

"Those men were so touched by the presence of these young people who really cared. Everyone trimmed the tree, sang carols and enjoyed a pinata. For most of the men it had been years since they had enjoyed the pleasures of this particular holiday. We had a wonderful time," she recalled.

Many of the 20 auxiliary members are Santa Rosa women, but Mrs. Libarle is now actively seeking Marin County support. "St. Anthony's population is not just Catholic; it's absolutely non-denominational. These men come from all over." Any woman in the area is invited to help, says Mrs. Libarle.

"We're a very informal but effective group. Meetings are not important to us," she stated. "There is a board of directors and when we work on a project the bulk of work is done by telephone. Our treasury is our own; we spend the funds as the auxiliary pleases."

St. Anthony's Auxiliary assisted also in the formal dedication of the new ranch house last August when more than 500 persons attended.

Presently auxiliary members have a campaign to drape each window of the dormitory. Titled "windows to the world" individuals and organizations have been approached to donate a small amount sufficient for one window's fabric. Residents will make the rods and brackets with which to install the finished draperies.

A continuing project of the auxiliary has been to gather used blankets and pillows for each room. Another feminine touch has been to place seasonal decorations on each of the dining room tables.

"The men seem to appreciate what we are doing and are eager to help in any way they can," she said.

Serving with Mrs. Libarle on the board of directors are Mmes. Earl Dolcini of Petaluma, vice president; E. L. Davis of Penngrove, recording secretary; August Sebastiani of Sonoma, corresponding secretary; Louis Foppiano of Healdsburg, treasurer; Carlton Spridgen, Charles Toohey and Edward Healey, Santa Rosa board members.

IN THE spacious dining room of the farm for men overlooking the Valley Ford area Mrs. Dolcini places Easter decorations on the tables. St. Anthony Farm Auxiliary members create seasonal centerpieces. In the rear are Father Boeddeker, Mrs. Libarle and Frank Schepergerdes, farm manager.

How To Shop For Colleges During Summer Vacations

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—For those heading for college, summertime is only part easy-living. For it can be a time also for shopping for a college, even though enrollment is two or three years away.

"College Prospecting" is the term the University of Rochester (N. Y.) uses in a spring roundup of what the campus tourist should look for and what to expect from the perusal.

There's a trend to making the whole family vacation one of college-hunting, says the university's admissions office. But before deciding on an itinerary, the office suggests that the student consult the guidance counselor. His recommendations will help to guide to the college that best fits the needs and interests of the student.

Some further hints for campus prospecting:

Summer is a busy season at admissions offices. If you want to talk with an admissions counselor, make an appointment ahead if possible.

Dress comfortably. Admissions offices recognize that it's hard to look spic and span after a long auto trip with the family but you'll find it pays to stop off at a service station to freshen up before arriving on campus.

Don't be afraid to ask the admissions counselor whether he thinks your qualifications are such as to make it worthwhile to file a formal application. It's important of course that you provide accurate information on your high school performance to date and any aptitude or achievement test scores your school can provide. The more information you bring, the more realistic the admissions office can be about your chances of enrollment.

If you're still a high school freshman or sophomore, you may find it helpful to tour campuses and pick up general admissions and financial aid information this summer. Then wait until later in high school years to schedule a formal admissions interview.

Remember that on many campuses the summertime student body is not the same composition as the wintertime roster. Many schools run summer workshops, institutes and special summer programs for students, teachers and other professional people.

Don't try to cover too many colleges in one trip. You'll be too rushed to get more than a fuzzy idea of each—and you and the family certainly will not have much of a vacation.

If you have time, take in some of the special events on campus. You'll find many colleges offer summer theater, library and art exhibits, concerts, special lectures and sports events. Attending these will be fun for the campus tourists—and a reflection of the character of the school.

After each visit, make some notes on your reactions. These will refresh your memory next fall when you talk over college plans with your guidance counselor.

Follow up your trip by talking with students in your area who attend the colleges you visited. Summer is a good time to find some of them at home to give first-hand reactions to campus life. Also consult alumni in your area.

If your tour raises some additional questions, don't hesitate to write for further information...unless it's already detailed in the catalogs and other literature you received at the admissions office during your visit.

18 Million Americans Suffer From Some Type Of Allergy

Most people are allergic to something — and sometimes to someone.

As defined by the Allergy Foundation of America, "an allergy is a sensitivity which some people develop to substances which are harmless to non-allergic persons." These substances, called allergens, are inhaled, swallowed, touched or injected into the body. Why an individual may suddenly become allergic to something, or why one person sneezes and another breaks out with hives when exposed to the same protein remain, for the most part, unanswered questions.

Although hay fever, the most common allergic disease is primarily due to the inhalation of pollens, other allergens that aggravate symptoms are dust, molds, and animal dander.

Hay fever is more likely to occur in families where hay fever or other allergic diseases exist. Self-diagnosis and self-treatment can prove hazardous.

It is usually necessary for the physician to become a medical detective, and to deputize his patient. Together they investigate the patient's diet, his living habits and occupation. The physician may perform skin tests, and a number of laboratory procedures before the offending allergen can be identified.

Once discovered, it may be possible to avoid. If not, there are a number of measures the physician may suggest to alleviate the distressing symptoms.

Air conditioners and air purifiers help. Desensitization through injections of allergenic extracts do, too, for many.

It has been estimated that there are over 18 million persons in the U.S. suffering from some form of allergic disease making allergies a major health problem.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

How To Put Down A Know It All Who Always Has The Solution

DEAR HELEN:

How do you put down a stupid know-it-all? This guy is dumb. But he thinks he is an authority on everything. No matter what you start discussing, he has "the solution" and it's not only wrong but so prejudiced and hateful that you can't just ignore him. He's dangerous, too, for the loud ones get heard, and sometimes believed.

He was the one who tried to get our block organized against a new white family that had an adopted black baby. He started all kinds of rumors, none true, as I proved, but these really great people were made miserable for a while.

I wish there was a law against verbal littering. How do you neutralize a big mouth? — M.A.D.

DEAR M.

When he starts "illiterating in public places" show up his ignorance with pointed questions — and a gentle needle: great for sewing up big mouths. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

We don't have a place to put our fireplace wood under locks, so we stack it out in back.

Each night when we come home from work, our wood pile has dwindled.

We don't point fingers, but our neighbor's chimney belches smoke, and he hasn't bought wood all winter.

To catch the thief, would it be all right to bore holes in a few top chunks of wood, insert small firecrackers or maybe pouches of sulphur? An explosion or a house full of fumes would at least discourage him. — BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED:

Definitely not.

Firecrackers exploding under pressure are dangerous, and sulphur fumes might almost stifle small children or animals. Even though you could prove theft, you might have a big law suit on your hands. And what if you used the wrong piece of wood in your own fireplace?

Better to alert your friendly neighborhood policeman — and let your neighbor know about it. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A recent letter in your column reminded me of my own "wonderful, strong, handsome husband" who "isn't normal." He too has sky-dived, but he prefers mountain climbing or shooting rapids in a kayak.

No, my husband isn't normal. He's something very special, not a parasite who is satisfied with watching life via television. Bob must experience the pain, the hardship and the exhilaration for himself, and I am proud of him.

I'm afraid this worried writer is in for much heartache. She has a lion on her hands whereas all she wanted was a big, cozy, overweight hamster. Surely she knew she was marrying a sports nut. If she tries to change him now she will either smother him, drive him crazy, or away. xy advice to her is:

1. Accept what your husband does and try to understand why he enjoys it. I am neither strong nor brave enough to climb mountains, but I can see why he likes to.

2. Do not make him feel guilty. He'll begin to resent you.

3. Listen with interest as he relates his adventures.

4. Pray you will live as long as he does, though he may be healthier, having enjoyed a fuller life.

5. Love him now and always for the man he is, and not as a reflection of what you wish he were. — KAREN

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

SMART SHOPPER

An Increase In Tasteless Fruit

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — What ever happened to apples, peaches, tomatoes, grapes and strawberries that used to really taste like apples, peaches, tomatoes, grapes and strawberries?

While government researchers and professional growers have succeeded in developing new breeds that look prettier, have fewer bruises and can be transported longer distances without damage, there is one thing they have increasingly overlooked:

Taste.

All fresh fruits and vegetables are beginning to taste more and more alike. If present trends continue, it may not be long before there will be no way to tell them apart except by appearance.

A few eyars ago, Betty Furness voiced a plaintive plea about this:

"MY OFFICE," she said, "has received complaints from women who have bought food that looked superb — and turned out to be tasteless. Grapes, peaches, strawberries and tomatoes. Consumers are almost tearful about tomatoes.

"Does the consumer really want it?" she asked. "Does he want fruit and vegetables that look as though they were ready to be photographed for a women's magazine — or does he want flavor."

It must be admitted that many people either have dull taste buds or don't know what some fruit and vegetable products should taste like. But many others are becoming disgusted.

A typical comment came recently from a California consumer.

"SOON," HE wrote, "the cantaloupes from the Imperial Valley will begin to be harvested. Now, this is a sort of disgrace to the Nation and to the consumer, that the growers of the Imperial Valley pick these fine cantaloupes before they are ripe, with the result that they reach market hard as a rock.

"Often, the grocer holds them several days in order to ripen them, but you can't ripen a cantaloupe by merely picking it green and holding it. The banana will ripen itself, but the cantaloupe merely shrivels up and the meats inside get like rubber."

The reasons for such practices are obvious. Growers and marketers want to increase their profits by cutting down on damage to fruit and vegetables caused by shipment over long distances and storage for long periods of time. They also want to cut down the number of rejects at the farm or orchard.

The result has been a greater variety of fruits and vegetables for buyers to choose from across the nation. Seasons are no longer important. One restaurant in Washington, D.C., features strawberries all year long. A bowl of them with cream is listed on the menu for $1.95.

BUT THE greater efficiency in marketing produce has submerged some things that should be still improtant to buyers: flavor and nutrition.

Most fruits and vegetables are at the peak of their nutritional quality when they are at the point of maturity. Harvesting them before that point means fewer vitamins, minerals, sugar and other elements of nutrition.

This is not the way many food processors operate, however. It is to their advantage to get fruit and vegetables as close as possible to their point of maturity. As a result, there is a growing gap between the taste and nutrition of fresh and processed food products.

Of course, food processing brings some loss of flavor and nutrition. But it is ironic that as the marketing of fresh produce reaches peak efficiency, the ultimate consumer finds it necessary to turn more and more to cans, bottles and frozen packages to find the best qualities of fresh produce.

CYNTHIA SCHENONE became the bride of Harry A. Weiss at St. Vincent's Church in San Rafael. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Schenone of Ignacio and the bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Harry Weiss of Vista. The couple are living in San Diego.

Peanut butter, an excellent source of food energy, protein, and B vitamins, blends smoothly into cooked dishes while adding tasty variety to common foods, such as potatoes. Either white or sweet ones are zestier when crunchy peanut butter is mashed with them. Meatloaf takes on unusual nutty goodness with peanut butter as an ingredient.

ONE FOR THE ROAD — Car designer Bruce Weeks checks off another glass fiber auto shell for shipment. The youthful designer decided about a year ago that anything Detroit could do, he could do better. The result is a flourishing business.

(Independent-Journal photo)

They Shell Out For His Design

By ERIK M. INGRAM

At 20, auto designer Bruce Weeks may well be on his way to fame and fortune, for he appears to have found yet another soft spot in America's auto-buying appetite.

Weeks's product is a sporty fiberglass car body that can be fitted easily to the frame of a Volkswagen "bug." The result is dramatic.

So dramatic, the College of Marin sophomore says, that his Invader GT isn't for everyone.

It's designed for the man with a youthful yen for one of those sleek Italian racing jobs, but with finances only for a German economy model.

A Weeks sales brochure teases: "If you're a man satisfied with the sluggish handling and box-like styling found in the Detroit monsters, then don't order an Invader."

Weeks said the other day he's sold more than 20 of the special auto bodies "and the letters are pouring in."

The rise from college student to business executive began about a year ago when he and a companion decided they could build an auto body shell better — and cheaper —than those already on the market.

They built a wooden shape over a VW chassis, built it up with clay and refined the clay to the contours they wanted. A mold was then cast over the clay and now serves to mold fiberglass bodies.

Sitting four inches off the ground in the driver's seat of his Invader, which serves both as a demonstrator model and an office, the lanky Woodacre youth said he has since bought out his partner, is now the company's lone executive, and business is good.

And as the lone executive, Weeks said with a smile, he receives all profits from the sleek-nosed product. The Invader body costs $595 for the standard kit, including mounts, and $795 for the deluxe, which features a pair of plexiglass, gullwing doors and tailored upholstery for deep-fitted bucket seats.

The subject of profits was skirted by Weeks, who mumbled something about "trade secrets."

The youth said he is selling dealerships around the country at a price ranging from $500 to $5,000, depending on territory. Three already have been sold — in Connecticut, Colorado and Indiana, Weeks said.

San Rafael sales are located at the company garage at 180 Paul Drive in Northgate Industrial Park. However, says Weeks, he's interested in selling a dealership in the San Rafael area, since school studies limit the garage's operation to Saturdays.

Weeks — who says he has no intention of remaining solely in the auto business and is looking to a law career —predicted the Invader body style "will be good until 1975 because of its futuristic design."

Week's personal Invader was built for less than $2,000. He said the added cost included purchase of an early vintage VW and converstion to Chevrolet wheels.

"It really gets the looks — and 35 miles to the gallon," he said.

Abortion Laws' Revision Urged In Legislation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation making major changes in the state's abortion law, including repealing a portion of the provision which allows abortions to preserve the mental health of the mother, was proposed today by Assemblyman Robert Burke, R-Huntington Beach.

Burke said introduction of the five bills and one resolution "in no way was to imply that I condone or accept abortions as means toward effecting birth control, or as a way of skirting one's responsibility for their actions."

"The purpose of these bills is a step toward preventing the flagrant abuses and toward closing some of the loopholes which some people have used to side-step the law for their own gain," said Burke.

Three Held In Shooting Spree

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Police arrested three young men Sunday in what they described as a series of senseless shootings that left three persons wounded.

Officers, who followed a trail of blood, took into custody men they identified as Henry phillips, 20; James C. Taylor, 21; and Charles Hill, 19.

Those hurt are Charles Young, 15, who was robbed of a cigarette lighter and then shot in the elbow; Michael Allen, who was robbed of $15 and shot in the stomach; and Martha Mitchell, 15, who police say was struck in the head by a random shot.

None are in serious condition, doctors say.

The arrested men were held for investigations into attempted murder, assault and robbery.

Charity Fund Plans Campaign

Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of San Francisco, which serves San Francisco, Marin, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, will have its annual appeal May 16.

Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken announced the goal is $450,000, and the appeal will be directed to every church and parish in the archdiocese.

"The annual collection for archidiocesan charities is a continuing expression of charity," he said. "Each wage earner is urged to pledge a regular monthly gift to help others less fortunate than himself."

Soviets Urge Global Effort For Second Decade In Space

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union marked man's first decade in space today by seeking more cooperation with American astronauts and saying orbital stations and robot explorers are its chief goals in the 1970s.

Soviet cosmonaut Yuri A. Gagarin 10 years ago today made man's first flight in space, orbiting the earth once in Vostok 1.

"The road to the planets is hope," Moscow Radio said in announcing Gagarin's feat. It was Gagarin's only space flight. He died in an airplane crash in 1968.

In a letter to the Communist party newspaper Pravda today, 19 Soviet cosmonauts said:

"We think that in the interest of peace and friendship between the peoples of our planet, business cooperation between space explorers of different countries, including the Soviet Union and the United States, should develop and grow stronger."

Writing in the same edition of Pravda, top space scientist Boris N. Petrov said orbital stations and a more sophisticated generation of robot explorers are the chief Soviet goals in the second space decade.

"The second decade could be called an epoch of orbital stations, planned research work of men in conditions of space laboratories, a decade of wide use of automatic stations," Petrov wrote.

"Space exploration would go along the way of gradually setting up simple—in the beginning — orbital stations which would be followed by more complicated and bigger orbital stations for exploration, scientific and technical experiments."

Writing Sunday in the weekly magazine Ogonyok, Petrov called for "fruitful international cooperation" in space exploration.

"The task of constructing space exploration facilities and the usage of outer space for peaceful purposes is the favorable basis for fruitful international cooperation wherein both big and small countries can effectively participate."

Apparently referring to the United States, the scientist added:

"The broadness and the versatility of the tasks of the exploration of outer space cannot be covered by one country no matter how high a level of scientific and technical prowess the country has achieved."

Volcano Viewers Off Mt. Etna During Eruption

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI) — Authorities ordered tourists today back from the upper slopes of Mt. Etna, where for more than a week Europe's tallest volcano has been rumbling and bubbling lava.

Police said hundreds of tourists climbed the sides of the 10,902 foot high Etna to see a fireworks display unmatched since 1949.

But authorities also emphasized there was no immediate danger to villages and farms dotting the lower slopes of the volcano.

Rivers of lava, which scientists said were as hot as 3,630 degrees fahrenheit inched down the slopes at a measured speed of between 7 and 10 feet per hour.

MIDGET SMASHES GIANT IN HEAD-ON CRASH

Patrolman Jess Wiles examines the damage done to a 1963 Oldsmobile 88 by a 1971 Volkswagen in a head-on crash at 7:15 p.m. yesterday on Third Street at E Street, San Rafael. The driver of the wrong-way Volkswagen was Frank Javier Lopez, 23, C Battery, 51st Artillery U.S. Army, Smith Ranch Road, San Rafael. He was treated at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for cuts and bruises and then booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of felony drunk driving. He was held in lieu of $1,200 bail, to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court. Mary Elizabeth Bruhn, 19, of 35 Van Tassel Court, San Anselmo, driver of the Oldsmobile, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut forehead. Lobobico Montez, 20, a passenger in the Lopez car, same address as Lopez, was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts and scrapes of the face.

Hawkins Modifies Principal Plans

Principalships at Redwood and Tamalpais high schools will survive — at least for one more year — under yet another recommendation to be heard tonight by the district board.

Dr. Wilber D. Hawkins, district superintendent, said today that "to ease anxieties on the part of the staff and community," he has modified his earlier proposal to terminate the post of principal at all three district high schools.

He will instead recommend a course of action suggested by Dr. Surjit Singh, chairman of the Ad Hoc Congress studying the plan, that only Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo undergo change.

Hawkins's controversial reorganization plan would replace principals with assistant superintendents. They would assume the principals' duties plus those of four district office administrative posts being eliminated.

Singh's proposal calls for a test of Hawkins's plan by hiring only one assistant superintendent to lake the place of Principal Harold Allison of Drake High School who will step down at the end of the school year.

The alternate proposal suggested by Singh also calls for retention of the four district office administrators to act as liaisons between schools thus keeping lines of communication open.

However, a district spokesman said today Hawkins still plans to modify these positions once it is determined to what extent their responsibilities can be absorbed by personnel at the three schools.

Hawkins said his decision to change tonight's recommendation came with realization that his proposal had become confused with "some issues" never intended.

He said those issues included a staff and community misunderstanding that his reorganization plan was intended to split the district, was a means of ridding the district of two principals, and a dehumanizing of students.

"By demonstrating the effectiveness of the plan at one school," Hawkins said, "it will show the opposition the plan can work."

He said the two principals, Raymond J. Bell of Tamalpais and Donald Kreps of Redwood, would spend next year in "a training program to demonstrate their ability" to handle the tasks assigned assistant superintendents under his plan.

The board will consider the Singh proposal tonight at 8 o'clock at the Redwood High School gymnasium in Larkspur.

2 Cycle Riders Hurt In Mishaps

Two men stationed on the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Coral Sea, berthed at Hunter's Point, San Francisco, were injured yesterday in separate motorcycle accidents on Shoreline Highway, the California Highway Patrol has reported.

Officers said Leonard C. Smith, 21, was injured when his vehicle skidded on a curve of Shoreline Highway two miles north of Stinson Beach at 5:20 p.m.

He was treated at Marin General Hospital for multiple facial cuts and shoulder separation and transferred to Oak Knoll Naval Hospital, Oakland.

In the second accident, the patrol said, Patrick J. Cervantez, 23, lost control of his motorcycle on a curve of Shoreline Highway 1.5 miles north of Panoramic Highway near Stinson Beach at 6:10 p.m.

He was reported in good condition today at Letterman General Hospital at the Presidio of San Francisco with broken ribs.

Court Rules Blagborne Police Dismissal Valid

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The reinstatement bid of former Petaluma police officer Robert C. Blagborne was rejected today in Sonoma County Superior Court.

Judge Kenneth M. Eymann ruled that Blagborne's dismissal was valid and that he had not shown that it was caused by his participation in wage negotiations last summer.

Blagborne and his attorney, Paul E. Neuer of San Francisco, had attempted to show that Blagborne was considered a fine police officer until he participated in wage negotiations as a member of the Petaluma Police Officers Association.

The wage negotiations nearly led to a police strike last August.

Judge Eymann noted that efficiency reports prepared on Blagborne by his watch commanders had shown him to be a competent officer until the August 1970 report when personality and temperament problems were reported.

In September, when Blagborne's one-year probationary period was to have ended, it was extended by three months. His superiors said it was hoped he could resolve some of his problems in that time period.

Blagborne was dismissed at the end of that period on Dec. 10.

Judge Eymann found the city was acting within its personnel rules and regulations in extending the probation and Blagborne's dismissal.

Colorado contains six times as much mountainous area as Switzerland.

Man Found Hanged To Death

A 25-year-old San Rafael man was discovered dead yesterday in the backyard of his sister's home at 18 Cermenho Court, San Rafael.

The Marin County Coroner's Office said Larry A. McNeal, of 41 Corrillo Drive, was discovered about 6 p.m., hanging from a tree in the yard of the Joseph Tallariti residence.

His sister, Anita Tallariti, told the coroner's office her brother had been depressed for the past six years, since he was the driver of a car involved in an accident in which two persons died. She reported the young man had quarreled with his girlfriend shortly before his death.

A native of St. Cloud, Minn., McNeal had lived 23 years in California and two years in Marin County. His last job was as a machinist for an engineering firm.

In addition tohis sister, McNeal is survived by his father, Adrian McNeal of San Rafael.

Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Lucas Valley Community Church, 2000 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Friends may call until noon tomorrow at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley.

Man Arrested In Drugs Case

A 25-year-old man caught breaking into an apartment, was arrested on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs and narcotics paraphernalia.

Michael Thomas Martin, 25, of 78 El Camino, San Rafael, was held in lieu of $658 bail in Marin County Jail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

Police were called to 100 Bayo Vista Drive on a report that someone was breaking into an apartment. When they apprehended Martin, he had some red capsules thought to be a dangerous drug and narcotics paraphernalia in his possession.

Coalition Is Backing Bay Government Plan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A coalition of business, environmental and other civic groups today promised a "muscular campaign" to back legislation to create a regional government in the Bay Area.

Banded together as Action for a Regional Environmental Agency (AREA) were the Bay Area Council, League of Women Voters of the Bay Area, Sierra Club, Save San Francisco Bay Association, People for Open Space, American Association of Universtiy Women and San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association.

The aim of their "Save the Bay Area" campaign will be passage of legislation by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond, to create a 40-member Conservation and Development Agency of the Bay Area. The agency, whose directors would be elected directly, would have the power to enforce its regional plan on all other agencies except the federal government.

William D. Evers of San Francisco, chairman of AREA and vice chairman of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission, said the new group would run the same sort of campaign that won passage of the BCDC law. "We'll have buses going to Sacramento, bumper strips and all that kind of activity," he said at a news conference in the Ferry Building.

Evers, citing the members of AREA, said it was "the first time such a broad-based effort has been made for a bill."

Noting that a similar measure by Knox was killed last year by the Senate Governmental Organization Committee, Evers said AREA was working to have the rules committee assign it this year to the local government committee, which is chaired by Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, co-author of the Knox measure.

Evers said that the measure also had been amended to avoid going to the Senate Finance Committee, also considered hostile to regional government measures.

Knox said that the only opposition to his measure again would be from the Association of Bay Area Governments, which he noted had hired a lobbyist to help kill it.

The assemblyman said that ABAG, run by city councilmen and county supervisors, was opposed especially to his bill because they would not run the same agency. The association's general plans, he commented, were "totally meaningless" because ABAG was a voluntary organization with no power of enforcement.

Three Hurt In One-Car Crash

Three men were injured in a one-car accident yesterday at 6:20 p.m. on Bodega Avenue, west of Petaluma.

The driver, Steven Popko, 24, of 312 Sixth Street, Petaluma, was reported in good condition with back injuries at Community Hospital of Sonoma County. His passengers, Robert F. Krusen, 24, of 8910 Cypress Avenue, Cotati, and Timothy Andersen, 24, of the same address, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for cuts.

The California Highway Patrol said Popko had been driving on the wrong side of the road and went into a creekbed while trying to avoid an oncoming car.

Surf Claims Mother, Daughter

A 47-year-old Sacramento mother and her four-year-old daughter were drowned off the South Beach of the Point Reyes National Seashore yesterday after they were swept into the surf.

Drowned were Barbara Short, wife of Herbert Short, and their daughter Denise Lynn. Their bodies were not recovered.

Constable Michael McLean of Point Reyes Station said the Shorts, and another couple were walking along the beach at about 3 p.m. when a tremendous surge brought the sea upon the beach and waves swept away the two women and the child. The two husbands managed to rescue the unidentified woman, McLean said.

Seashore rangers and a sheriff's deputy responded but rescue of the mother and child was impossible, he said. The beach where the two drowned is a "dangerous area where many previous drownings have taken place," McLean said.

Sheriff's deputies reported the area is heavily posted with signs "No swimming . . . dangerous surf."

American statesman Henry Clay was born April 12, 1777.

On this day in history:

In 1861 the Civil War began when Confederate troops opened fire on Fort Sumter, S.C.

In 1945 President Franklin D. Roosevelt died at Warm Springs, Ga. Roughly three hours later Vice President Harry Truman was sworn in as chief executive.

In 1954 Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, referred to as the "father of the atomic bomb," was suspended by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission as a possible security risk.

In 1961 Russia launched a man into space. He became the first human to orbit the earth and return safely.

A thought for today: American writer George Curtis said, "Imagination is as good as many voyages . . . and how much cheaper."

Cattle Complaint

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some dairy cattle will just as soon eat the baling wire as the hay it bales. When they do, it's possible they'll become victims of Hardware Disease, resulting in reduced milk production and even death to the animal. Most recent solution to the problem is wire replacement by a twine made from plastic.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Shifting In the Cards Is Quite Out of Line For Play

"Please settle a big dispute that had disrupted my wife's bridge group. Some of my wife's friends say that I am not fit to play bridge with hyenas; the rest of them say that I am. Since you have written about hyenas in one of your bridge books, perhaps you will decide this point for them and get me off the hook." Thus begins a plaintive letter from a West Coast reader, who encloses the hand that got him into the hyena cage.

HEART LEAD

"The opening lead was the king of hearts, and I saw at once that I would lose two hearts and might lose two trump tricks. The best chance to make the hand was to persuade the opening leader to switch to a different suit at the second trick.

"I dropped the queen of hearts from my hand on the first trick, and then shifted some of the cards in my hand. Many of the players in this game shift cards when they're out of a suit in order to continue to alternate red and black suits; and I hoped that my little act would make the opening leader think I was out of hearts.

"The lady at my left looked at me suspiciously but decided to believe me, as she later remarked. She switched to the eight of clubs, and of course I got rid of the deuce of hearts on a high diamond.

UNFINISHED HAND

"My contract was now unbeatable, but we never finished the hand. The opponents screeched like a pair of bilked baboons. The printable portion of their remarks was that I had no right to shift the cards in my hand when I dropped the queen of hearts. I said I could shift my cards whenever I pleased. Who is right?"

I'm happy to report that those who say my correspondent is not fit to play bridge with hyenas are wrong. I know several hyenas who shift their cards and stage other acts when they play bridge. They would gladly accept my correspondent into their game.

A FINE PLAY

Dropping the queen of hearts is a fine play, but shifting the cards is quite out of line. In an ethical game you must try to win by the card you play, not by your manner of playing the card.

The hand is not quite worth an opening bid of one spade, and you have far too much outside strength to consider a shutout bid of any kind.

Task Force Reports On Pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Industrial polluters and the federal government itself have combined to turn the nation's rivers and lakes into a "water wasteland," a task force sponsored by Ralph Nader charged today.

The graduate students who compiled the massive 700-page report also said the government's campaign to clean up water pollution has been a "miserable failure."

"Because water belongs to no one —except the people — special interests, including government polluters, use it as their private sewers," Nader said in a forward to the study.

When government has moved to stop the fouling of water systems by industry, the polluters "have consistently attempted to excuse the activities by pointing an accusatory finger back at the government," Nader said.

Not only does the government, through the environmental protection agency, fail to effectively administer existing antipollution laws, it is itself the nation's largest polluter, the report said.

For example, the study said in 1968 the Defense Department dumped over 100 million gallons of "inadequately treated" sewage into waterways.

But disease-bearing wastes from sewers are not the chief danger to water supplies, according to the report. A bigger threat comes from the 500 sophisticated new chemicals which industry dumps each year. The public then becomes an unwitting guinea pig to test chemicals the report said.

The task force, which labored 21 months on the study, said under existing laws, industry can secure a virtual license to pollute through "political sabotage." The group urged that:

—Government pollution control officials not be permitted discretion to decide whether they will or will not enforce the pollution laws against industry violators.

—Public officials who are found to "knowingly have acquiesced in pollution" be subect to the same penalties as those who caused the pollution.

—Employers who inform on corporate polluters be given a reward by the government and legal protection from reprisals by employers.

—Individual citizens be given the right to sue industrial polluters who fail to meet federal or state standards.

Poindexter Attorney Calls Case A 'Zero'

NEW YORK (UPI)—A defense attorney said today in his summation that the government's case against Chicagoan David R. Poindexter, charged with harboring fugitive black revolutionary Angela Davis, "comes to a big fat zero."

Stanley Arkin, counsel for the 37-year-old black defendant, told a jury of seven men and five women that the government had failed to provide any evidence Poindexter and Miss Davis attempted to avoid public attention during eight weeks of travel together last fall.

"They were in plain sight all the time," Arkin said, pointing out that they always entered motels together to register. "Would you call that harboring and concealing?"

Poindexter was arrested at a motel here last October with Miss Davis, who was returned to California to face trial on kidnap-murder charges growing out of a San Rafael courtroom shootout. He faces five years in prison and a fine of $10,000 if convicted.

The prosecution presented evidence that newspapers, television and radio were carrying news of Miss Davis' indictment, her disappearance, and the issurance of a federal fugitive warrant for her arrest during a period the couple travelled together last August.

However, said Arkin, none of 44 prosecution witnesses were able to testify they found a newspaper in rooms the couple occupied or that Poindexter saw or heard anything on radio or television "that gave him one inkling of the warrant out for Miss Davis' arrest."

Rate Hike For Coach Flights

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Civil Aeronautics Board today approved a two step fare increase on airline coach flights ranging up to 9 per cent.

CAB Chairman Secour Browne said the increase would cost the consumer from $115 million to $400 million depending on the volume of airline traffic.

Under the board order the airlines got an immediate 6 per cent fare hike. The board also gave tentative approval to another 3 per cent hike in 50 days.

But the 3 per cent hike could not go into effect then if objections were filed.

The airlines had filed for increases ranging from 12 to 27 per cent.

Under the board's decision, some individual airline coach fares could be rolled back because of selected increases granted Oct. 15, 1970, which increased fares by more than 9 per cent.

The fare increase would mean for example that the present Detroit to Miami coach fare would go from $81 to $86, but the Boston to New York fare, which benefited from the earlier increase, would be cut from $26 to $24.

New Pumping Plant To Combat Flooding

Construction has begun on a new sewage pumping plant designed to keep downtown and southern San Rafael dry during storms and to meet pollution control demands of the Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The new plant near the Highway 101 overpass will replace the smaller pump station at Grand Avenue and East Francisco Boulevard, which lies in the path of freeway expansion, according to Norris M. Rawles, city public works director and administrator of the San Rafael Sanitation District.

Clearwater Hydromech Co. is building the station under a $496,800 contract; Coast Pump Co. will install pumps worth another $62,530 before the station begins operation in the fall.

The santitation district project will be coordinated with an estimated $1,380,602 modernization of the city's sanitary sewers, Rawles said yesterday. The city has requested $289,000 is federal funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development; the balance will be financed by bond sales already approved by San Rafael's voters.

The sewer line bids are to be opened in May, Rawles said, under the antipollution timetable demanded by the regional water quality board.

ELCON SECURITY SYSTEMS

First Police TV Watch On Streets Is Tested

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (BW) — The nation's first police-operated low light level television system designed for round-the-clock crime detection has been placed in operation by GTE Sylvania Inc., Mountain View, Calif.

The system consists of two all-weather cameras mounted 22 feet above the ground on utility poles. The cameras are connected to two monitors at police headquarters via underground cables. When completed the system will include a 24-hour video tape unit that will record all incidents "seen" by the cameras.

Each camera, mounted on a motor-driven turret, is remotely controlled from police headquarters. They can rotate nearly 360 degrees, tilt vertically 120 degrees, and zoom in on objects almost one-half mile away.

Under the pilot program, the cameras will concentrate on the city's principal business area. From the camera locations, police can scan roof tops, storefronts, doorways and traffic. When desired, the area covered by each camera can be expanded two blocks in each direction, and the camera can "look" into adjacent side streets.

When a suspicious incident is detected on the monitor, foot patrolmen or radio cars are alerted from headquarters.

"As crime increases each year, police departments are seeking new, effective means of deterring it," Thomas J. Delaney, commissioner of public safety of the Mount Vernon Police Department stated. "We are investigating low light level television cameras because they permit completely automatic day and night operation and because police officers can easily be trained in their use.

"Fewer patrolmen should be required in the area covered by the cameras and the presence of the camera may be a psychological deterrent," he added.

The heart of the closed circuit system is a new camera that can easily detect and record a man one-half mile away in extreme darkness. The unit contains a powerful sensor that reacts to light levels too low for normal human vision. If the scene is illuminated by a bright light, such as sunlight, an automatic control adjusts the 29-pound camera to maintain a clear picture and protect the sensor.

California Bank Reports Income

SAN FRANCISCO — (BW) — The Bank of California has reported first quarter income before security losses of $2,137,000, or 74 cents per share, up from $1,612,000 and 55 cents a share in the first quarter of 1970.

Net income after security losses for the first quarter of 1971 of $2,114,000, or 73 cents per share, also was up from $1,016,000, or 35 cents per share, for the first quarter of 1970.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Calls Represent Options To Buy

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have noticed advertisements in newspapers for calls. Would you explain what they are and how they work? — F.T.

A. Calls are options to purchase a given stock within a specified time limit and at a stated price. In order for a call buyer to profit, the stock must go up in price. A typical call contract is written for 100 shares to be purchased within six months and 10 days. The buyer pays a premium usually about 15 per cent of the current total cost for 100 shares. For shares trading at 30 a call would cost approximately $450.

The "striking price" — buy level specified by the call — is usually close to current trading price. In our example striking price would be around 30, thus in order to make a profit shares would have to rise above 34½, not including commissions. This would cover the cost of 100 shares at 30 plus the $450 call premium.

This call would be exercised simply by buying the 100 shares at 30 any time through the expiration date. Profit, of course, would not be realized until shares are sold.

The advantages of a call are: a proportionally smaller initial investment which increases leverage and a known, limited risk. Regardless of how far shares may plunge, the loss is limited to the cost of the call which is then allowed to expire.

The call, which is in bearer form and therefore negotiable, is held by the broker. Not only do the terms of the option appear on the contract, but also an endorsement by a New York Stock Exchange member firm guaranteeing delivery of the shares within the time limit and at the striking price.

As a general rule, dealers write options on request from potential buyers. Terms vary; thus it pays to have your broker shop around for the most advantageous contract. The advertisements you mention represent a minor portion of a dealer's business, inventory which he has built up through writing other types of option contracts.

Market In Good Start For Week

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market was higher in active trading near noon today.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index posted a gain of 0.41 at 102.51.

Harry Laubscher, analyst for Walston & Co., said "Economic recovery will be slow, but we will probably notice a definite pickup starting about the third quarter."

Among the encouraging economic items last week were a Commerce Department report that retail sales in March ran 7 per cent ahead of the year ago period, and a 24 per cent rise in late March automobile sales.

Prices also were firm in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Active Amex issues included Certron fractionally higher on 46,000 shares, and TWA warrants also up slightly on a volume of around 25,000.

On the Big Board, Bausch & Lomb rose more than 4, while Walt Disney and Xerox climbed 3 3-8 and 2 1-8, respectively. Natomas rose 2 1-2.

Steels and motors generally added fractions. So did most airlines, and aircrafts.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Incomprehensible Tax Form? Reach For Your Crystal Ball!

If you receive a letter from IRS in reference to any tax return that you have filed or not filed, payments that you have made or not made, don't give up if it looks incomprehensible at first. The IRS has 1,306 forms that are machine prepared and shipped out to the taxpayer.

That's right. The IRS has issued Publication 676 (1-70), "Catalog of Forms, Form Letters, Notices", which lists 1,306 forms that might affect you, (not counting all the various tax return forms and schedules).

These forms are preprinted and the machine only prints in a little bit of information such as your name and address and the tax form and some clue as to what portion of the form letter may apply to you.

Always read carefully the machine printed portion of the form and see if you can figure out what tax return and what year they are talking about and then see if you can tie in this to any part of the preprinted form.

The IRS has so much correspondence with taxpayers that it is physically impossible for them to do this on an individual basis. Therefore, they have these forms and they cover practically every situation. However, sometimes it helps to have a crystal ball to figure out what they are talking about.

Also, the IRS believes that they allow plenty of time for you to answer their notices if you answer promptly. However, sometimes they do not process your answer promptly and you may get several notices from them about the same thing. The best thing you can do is answer each notice promptly and in full immediately after you get it. Also, it is a good idea to send each answer by certified mail. Then you can prove that you really did answer.

When you write to the IRS, be sure to include the following information:

Name and address as shown on the most recent return and on the return in question, if different; taxpayer identification number (Social Security Number or Employer Identification Number); type of return; taxable period in question; telephone number of the taxpayer or accountant.

Always use the piggy-back labesl and pre-addressed, precoded envelopes as these expedite the processing of returns and correspondence.

Whenever a taxpayer changes his or her name, the IRS Service Center at Ogden Utah should be notified at the same time the Social Security Administration is notified of the name change.

Aerospace Head Hits 'Irrational' SST Opposition

PALO ALTO — (BW) — Science and technology have given Americans more individual freedom than any other nation has ever enjoyed, but today a blind emotional reaction to technological advance is killing off projects such as research into supersonic flight, an aerospace spokesman has warned.

In an SST post-mortem before the Stanford University Graduate School of Business, Dr. Karl G. Harr Jr., president of the Aerospace Industries Association, said the anti-SST movement was only a symptom of a broader and irrational antiscience, anti-technology mood in the country.

As president of the Aerospace Industries Association, which includes the major manufacturers of America's spacecraft, aircraft, missiles and related components, Dr. Harr played a leading role in championing the SST before Congress.

"Without hesitation," Dr. Harr said, "I will say that in my years in Washington, I have never heard seriously advanced arguments as grossly over-simplified and irrational as some of those by the opponents of the SST."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

The Pill May Be Abused For Sex, But Alternative May Be Worse

D. C. writes: "Several days ago I heard that a local doctor prescribed birth control pills for a teen-age girl. I understand she asked for the prescription and told the doctor that if he did not give it to her, she would find a physician who would. In my opinion, this is sanctioning unrestrained sexual freedom." I agree, even tho the lack of contraceptive devices, including the pill, never discouraged illicit sex — if the time was right.

CONSIDER THE alternative, in that unplanned pregnancies are hazardous. Nothing is more pitiful than a 15, 16, or 18 year old unwed pregnant girl. She is desperate and has a dim future even tho many get married. Under these circumstances, the young father must quit school and find a job. Ninety per cent are divorced by the time they are 20. This is a stiff price to pay for a single mistake. Even first offenders in a criminal court are given better treatment by the judge.

What do other doctors think about this controversial issue? At the University of Chicago, teen-agers can obtain advice on medically supervised contraception. In the Journal of Reproductive Medicine for Obstreticians and Gynecologists, two-thirds of 1,763 physicians said they would provide birth control information if requested by an unwed minor without parental permission. And 130 medicos said they would do so with reservations.

OF 597 PHYSICIANS who would not provide this information, 105 feared legal reprisals and 43 declined for moral reasons. Medical Tribune asked three physicians whether contraceptives should be given to all who ask. All said that they did prescribe, but one wanted parental consent if the request came from an unwed minor. The second, an obstetrician and gynecologist, concerned about the increasing number of illegitimate births, was interested in motivating those who should, but do not use contraceptives. In his opinion, we must be realistic about sex. Furthermore, parents and teen-agers should understand the difference between physical sex and sexuality.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

INWARD GOITER

P. B. writes: When an inward goiter is removed, is the thyroid gland taken out at the same time?

REPLY

A goiter is an enlarged thyroid gland. On enlarging, it may grow in a downward direction under the breastbone (inward) instead of bulging out in the front of the neck or on the sides. When this enlargement is causing symptoms by pressing on neighboring structures, surgical removal of most of the gland is recommended.

ORGAN RECITALS

A. L. writes: My mother-in-law who lives with us is ill. It seems that people who visit her insist upon dwelling on their own ailments. We feel this is not good for her or the family. Do you agree?

REPLY

Yes. Tell your visitors not to discuss illnesses with grandma because it is upsetting to her. But people are funny and you may not be successful in stopping these boring organ recitals.

THE DIABETIC TRAVELER

B. D. writes: Is it better for a diabetic who wants to go to Europe to fly or go by ship?

REPLY

Take your choice. There will be no problem if you are on a diet and take insulin or antidiabetic tablets. Insulin injections are easily given provided you have the proper kit.

STARS ABOVE

Big Dipper Now At Top Of Swing

By SHERMAN WALKER

The Big Dipper, the best known of all the figures in the sky, is at the top of its swing around the north pole of the sky and is at its best position for our 9 p.m. viewing. The dipper is close enough to the celestial north pole that it never sets in the northern half of the United States.

If the axis of the earth were extended northward until it apparently touched the sky, that point would represent the celestial north pole. All stars seem to revolve around that point because their apparent motion is due to the rotation of the earth around its axis.

If directions are necessary to find the Big Dipper, face northward at 9 p.m. and look at the region of the sky that is north of the overhead point. Also, look at the region between the North Star and the overhead point.

This constellation is more correctly called Ursa Major, meaning the Greater Bear. It was designated a bear by American Indians before Columbus as well as by Europeans. It is a large figure and contains many more stars than those in the dipper, which represent only the tail and part of the body of the bear.

The two stars at the end of the bowl of the dipper are called the Pointers because a line drawn through them points in the general direction of the North Star, and aids the eye in finding it. All seven stars of the dipper are close to magnitude 2 in brightness, except Megrez, where the handle joins the bowl, which is magnitude 3.

Driver Injured As Cars Collide

David H. Monser, 35, of Martinez, and Susan Heltman, 30, of Pleasant Hill, were treated at Hillcrest Hospital for bruises suffered in an accident at noon yesterday on Old Adobe Road, north of Tunzi Lane, Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said the car driven by Monser collided with a car driven by Edward T. Hobbs, 28, of 3678 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma.

There will be more than usual air activity from Hamilton Air Force Base today through Wednesday with the 84th Fighter Intercepter Squadron engaged in defense training exercises to prevent simulated enemy aircraft from reaching the Bay Area, the base public information office reported today.

Father Reports Son Wounded

Navy Lt. Charles (Chuck) S. Hardeman Jr. of 140 Legend Road, Sleepy Hollow, has been reported wounded in Cat Lo, South Vietnam, according to his father, Charles S. Hardeman Sr.

Hardeman, on his second tour as salvage adviser to the Vietnamese Navy, was reported in fair condition in an Australian-based hospital in Vietnam with shrapnel wounds of the back. His father said he was wounded last Wednesday when a Viet Cong rocket exploded near salvaging operations in U Minh.

He graduated from Marin Catholic High School and the University of Oregon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hardeman of Sleepy Hollow.

Adam Powell To Resign Church

NEW YORK (UPI)—Former Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. told 2,500 members of his congregation Sunday he is going to resign as pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church which he has headed for 34 years and go into self-exile in Bimini.

Powell, who took the church over from his father in 1937, said he wanted to resign the post effective Friday, but said he would stay on, if requested, until a new pastor is found.

Powell, 62, who was ousted from his Harlem congressional seat last fall by Charles Rangel Jr., said the "time has come for a change." He said he would preach from time to time at a small church in Bimini.

Easter Egg Roll At White House Draws Hundreds

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The usually secure White House gates were flung open today to hundreds of eager, squealing children pitching into the traditional Easter Monday egg roll.

But in the early hours the host and hostess, President and Mrs. Nixon, were busy with official chores and were unable to greet the youngsters, all below the age of 8, accompanied by their parents. A half hour after the annual event began, some 200 kiddies had poured into the Nixons' back yard.

It was warm and sunny, and veteran egg roll observers said there never had been a more "beautiful" day for the event.

As the southwest gate opened, the visitors walked through a huge carved out egg with a greeting overhead; "Welcome to the White House." The Army band struck up "Easter Parade."

Symphony To Perform On Sunday

Soprano Marni Nixon will be recitalist in the seldom-performed "Facade" by William Walton when the Marin Symphony closes its current season Sunday at 8 p.m. in the College of Marin gymnasium.

Miss Nixon has been heard in several movie sound tracks, dubbing for Audrey Hepburn in "My Fair Lady," Deborah Kerr in "The King and I" and Natalie Wood in "West Side Story."

Bay-Area educated, the soprano studied under Dr. Jan Popper at Stanford and has previously worked with Sandor Salgo, conductor of the Marin Symphony, in opera productions. She also has performed with the San Francisco Spring Opera and throughout the country in concerts and operas.

Other works to be performed Sunday are "Afternoon of a Faun" by Debussy and Prokofiev's Symphony No. 5.

This will be the orchestra's last concert in the College of Marin gymnasium before moving in September to permanent facilities in the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Marin County Civic Center.

The course is open only to high school graduates and there is a fee, reported James Looney, executive director of the Marin YMCA.

Novato Council Will Pick Member

A former candidate, a man who almost ran and a commissioner who planned to run next year are among the applicants seeking a seat on the Novato City Council.

There is a field of four for the seat to be vacated by resigning Mayor Douglas M. Merrill tomorrow and the council will pick his successor.

Applicants are: Betty J. Machado, a housewife; Lee C. Wise, manager of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s Novato Branch; Planning Commissioner John C. Schoonover; and attorney David Price Jones.

Jones, 36, declined to be interviewed on his views, saying he thought it inappropriate to make any statement to voters, since the voters won't be making the choice. He felt his communication should be directed to the council.

The council has scheduled a closed session at 7:45 p.m. today to consider any further applications for the council seat.

The only strong critic of the council has been Mrs. Machado, a former candidate, who believes there should be a woman on the council "to create balance."

Mrs. Machado said concern about Novato's planned "social action" program and increased authority granted City Mgr. Charles A. Brown prompted her to seek appointment.

She felt "the council needed to have some conservative thinking on behalf of the taxpayers."

Wise, 64, former member of the planning commission, said he is "generally very happy with the way the city is going."

He said he was seeking the council seat because he "would like to work for Novato," and almost ran three years ago. He has been attending council sessions since the city was incorporated, and would now "like to be on the other side of the fence."

Schoonover, 43, western area analyst for the Cyclone Fence Division of U.S. Steel, said he has reached the point of seeking the post gradually, starting with joining the Gnoss Estates Association, a homeowners' group and being assigned as their observer at council sessions.

He served as president of the association, and in January, 1970 was appointed to the planning commission. "I feel the planning commission is a natural intermediary step to the city council because of the city problems, many go through the planning commission." He said he had planned "to run in 1972."

On issues, Mrs. Machado has opposed the plan endorsed by the council to involve the city in social problems by starting what City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has described as a limited community action program.

"I felt it would be too costly on the tax rolls and will duplicate county services in a city area," she said.

The program calls for creating a citizens advisory committee on social problems, possibly a youth commission, and provision of office space for social service personnel who serve the Novato area.

"More than a need for social involvement by the city, there is a need for street improvement," Mrs. Machado said. There also is a need for parks, "but they have to be tailored to the needs of the community. We don't want parks all over town."

Mrs. Machado also contended the city manager has been given too much authority and "needs watching." She also protested hiring an administrative assistant saying: "I don't think we need an aide de camp to the city manager for the type of work being done in this town."

An outspoken critic of the council, Mrs. Machado has asked that it "consider what is 'best for the community' rather than letting petty viewpoints deny me the right to be appointed."

Wise stressed the time that a councilman must dedicate to the job. "If you're going to do a good job, you have to spend a lot of time doing homework," he said. Wise said he now has the time to devote to the job.

He backed the recently adopted downtown plan. "I think it is good and should be implemented and should have a chance to work," he said.

There is a need for parks in the city, but "the money the city has can only be stretched so far, and the people are going to have to help if we are going to have a large program," he said.

Schoonover said the streets were one of the city's major problems, and they have "really fallen into disrepair," but "the city has a money problem."

The city will "have to go to a system of priorities," he said.

The answer to the money problem is a broader tax base, and "I'm sure a lot can be done to get industry here," Schoonover said.

Schoonover, a backer of the downtown plan, said "we are concerned with determining the direction we want the city to go."

One of the key elements in the downtown plan is a regional shopping center, north of the present downtown, and Schoonover believes such a center would "keep Novato money in Novato."

The amount "of purchasing dollars going out of Novato now is fantastic," he said.

The downtown plan will "work out with time, gradually through the years, and isn't going to be all done, boom-boom," he said.

On parks, he said, "It's the same old problem, money."

I-J's Bockrath Wins National Press Photographers 1st Place

I-J Special Report

COLOMBIA, Mo. — Independent-Journal photographer Roger Bockrath has won first place in the National Press Photographers Association's "Spot News" category with a photo taken during the Aug. 7 shootout at the Civic Center.

Bockrath's prize-winning photo showed Judge Harold J. Haley and other hostages being led at gunpoint from the Marin County Hall of Justice.

Bockrath, 21, joined the Independent-Journal in 1968.

A total of 618 photographers from 38 states submitted 10,826 photos in this year's competition for top honors in the judging. The awards were announced at the University of Missouri by the co-sponsors of the event, the National Press Photographers Association-Association, the University of Missouri School of Journalism and Universal Science News, Inc.

The photo competition annually provides a forum where a jury of press and magazine photographers and editors can evaluate the best work of each year.

Bockrath's picture also earned him first place in the spot news category in the California Newspaper Publishers Association judging of the top 1970 picture. He received that award Feb. 6.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

Strange Advice From Masters Champ

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Charlie Coody, who got the Masters championship, a new green coat for the Easter parade, and "revenge" all in the same package, joined with the disappointed man he defeated, Jack Nicklaus, today to offer the duffers of America a strange bit of advice:

"If you want to play championship golf—be nervous.

"I never got over my first-tee jitters all day, and it helped me," said the new champion from Abilene, Tex. "It helped me to keep concentrating and keep thinking about getting done the things I had to get done."

"I was just too darned relaxed," said the crestfallen Nicklaus, who saw his hopes for golf's first pro grand slam go down the drain as he and young John Miller tied for second place, two strokes behind Coody's winning nine-under-par score of 279 for 72 holes.

"I birdied the first hole and I thought, 'ah, now everything is going according to plan,'" said Nicklaus. "It never did. But all the time I kept thinking that it was going to—I kept feeling sure that soon everything would start happening for me, that I would get birdies and I would win the tournament. It happened, but the opposite way.

"Yes, I was overconfident," confessed Nicklaus, who already won the PGA championship this year and was aiming at a "slam" including the Masters and U.S. and British Opens. "Not until I heard Coody had parred, did I realize I wasn't going to win."

The 33-year-old Coody fired a two-under-par 70, after starting the day tied with Nicklaus for the lead. Nicklaus had a par 72 and the 23-year-old Miller of Napa, Calif., shot a stunning 68. Miller actually held the lead after 15 holes, standing nine-under-par. But he bogeyed the 16th and 18th.

Coody knows how that feels, all right—until his triumph Sunday he was known in Masters history as the man who had the title in his hands in 1969 and blew it by bogeying the last three holes.

It was "revenge" that Coody mentioned the first thing in his hour of triumph.

"In 1969 I was one mighty disappointed fellow," the tall, slope-shouldered Texan said. "It ate at my insides for a long time. I got a little revenge for that today."

Coody twice blew big leads in this Masters, too—he led the first round by three strokes and had a four-stroke lead at one point in the third round before falling back into a tie. In the end he had to come from behind after young Miller stormed into the lead.

"There was pressure this time, but it was a different kind of pressure," he explained. "That time I was in front and other people were trying to catch me. This time someone else was in front and I was trying to catch him."

Miller opened the door for Coody when he bogeyed the 16th and Coody, playing behind him, came charging through with birdies on both the 15th with a nine-foot putt and the 16th with a 15-footer. But he pointed to a shot on the 17th that saved a par as "the shot that won the tournament."

Fearful of a tree that had caused him trouble on the 17th Saturday, Coody put his drive too far to the left and found himself in a bunker "without a clear shot at the green."

"I knew I was in a fair way to bogey or worse," he said. "I hit a seven-iron, aiming it to the right of the green and hoping to hook it back toward the green. It hooked, but not very much and was 15 feet off

SEASON'S FIRST PITCH

Bucks, Bullets Triumph In NBA

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Larry Costello issued a warning to the Los Angeles Lakers Sunday following the Milwaukee Bucks 91-73 win over the Lakers.

"We're going out there ready to explode," Costello said. "We're way overdue and I can feel it coming."

Costello was talking about the shoddy offensive performance by his Bucks, a performance which was good enough to win, but still way below the Bucks' standards.

Milwaukee shot 48 per cent from the floor, and the only reason they won was because the Lakers could only hit on 33 per cent of their shots.

The 73 points run up by the Lakers tied the record for the fewest points scored against the Bucks in their history, and Costello credited that to a defense by Milwaukee he called "superb."

"Our defense won the game for u s , ' ' he said. "The guys were really hustling, forcing them (the Lakers) to take bad shots. We were superb."

In the other NBA game, the altimore Buliets stunned the championNew York nicks 114-88 in the third game of the East finals. New York leads the best-of-seven set, 2-1, with the fourth game scheduled Wednesday in Baltimore.

A'S NEED IT

Pitching Help Is On The Way

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —Pitching help is on the way for the Oakland Athletics and it can't come too soon.

With the exception of young lefthander Vida Blue, the A's pitching staff thus far this season resembles a battery of batting practice buffoons. Jim Hunter, the A's ace last season with 18 wins, was shelled unmercifully in the first inning and a third Easter Sunday as the Kansas City Royals jumped to a quick 5-0 lead and coasted to a 10-5 victory before 5,238 fans at the Oakland Coliseum.

Oakland also appeared headed for a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Royals Saturday until pinchhitter Tommy Davis doubled with two out in the bottom of the ninth to drive in two runs for a 5-4 A's victory.

Today the A's, now 2-4 on the season, opened an 11-game, 11day road trip through the Midwest with an afternoon game against the red-hot Milwaukee Breewers who sport a 3-1 mark. Rollie Fingers is slated to throw against former A's hurler Lew Krausse.

Joining the A's today in Milwaukee were pitchers Ron Klimkowski and Rob Gardner who were obtained from the New York Yankees in a trade for hard-hitting outfielder Felipe Alou.

"And there's a chance Chuck Dobson also will join us in Milwaukee," said A's manager Dick Williams. "He's been taking cortisone shots for that sore elbow and threw several hard pitches last Friday at Rochester, Minn., without feeling any pain."

However, Williams says there's still a chance that Dobson will have to undergo surgery. A decision on that is expected from specialists at the Mayo Clinic this week. Dobson has been undergoing tests for five days at the famed clinic.

With the acquisition of Klimkowski and Gardner and the possibility Dobson might be available, Williams passed up a c h a n c e to sign former Cy Young Award winner Mike McC o r m i c k who is now a free agent.

McCormick, former San Francisco Giants lefthander who was cut loose by the Yankees this spring, was a press-box spectator at the Oakland Coliseum Sunday. He said he would accompany the Royals back to Kansas City and hopes to land a spot on their staff this week.

Walker's Spitball Charges

HOUSTON (UPI)—Manager Harry "The Hat" Walker of the Houston Astros left for St. Louis today, but he had a wary eye cocked on the Cubs' Phil Regan and the Giants' Gaylord Perry.

Walker said Regan was throwing a spitball Sunday which broke a foot and that plate u m p i r e Mel Steiner refused even to check Regan or the ball. The Astros go to San Francisco Wednesday and Walker said Perry is another regular member of the spitball club.

"What makes me so mad is that I just got this letter from the league president and the rules against the spitter are tighter than they have been," Walker said. "But that umpire, what's his name, Steiner?, said he couldn't do anything about it unless Regan went to his mouth.

"Regan was getting the stuff off his forehead," Walker said. "He's got it so perfected now that he only needs a little bit of stuff and all he has to do is pull the ball. It'll drop a foot. He struck out (Doug) Rader with one and also got (Bob) Watson in a jam in the sixth."

Walker argued vehemently with Steiner in the seventh because he wouldn't do anything. Steiner said he did not have any authority, but Walker produced a letter later in the clubhouse dated April 2, 1971, from league President Charles Feeney.

Walker pointed to the 13th paragraph of the instructions to umpires which read:

"If you suspect the pitcher of applying his pitching hand to an area where he might be getting grease or other foreign substance on his hand, you shall direct the pitcher to clearly wipe the area you suspect he may be getting it from (wrist, back of neck, etc.)."

Walker said, "it doesn't make any difference where —hand, neck, brow, any place you think he's going.

"If he does it, stop him right there and make him wipe it off," Walker said. "Warn him and if you catch him again, throw him out of the game.

"It's the hardest pitch in baseball to hit if it's thrown right and Regan knows how to throw it," Walker said. "They said he wasn't throwing it in the exhibition games. He was afraid to. He was afraid to get caught with it down there.

"Now he's back where it counts," the Astro manager said. "The season has started and he makes a living out of it and he's cheating like hell to stay in the game.

"Sure I complained about it today even though we were ahead by a few runs. You got to keep pushing. Next time, he might come in with the bases loaded and the game tied and use it. And his cheating could cost us a game."

Walker also said he wanted to stop any wholesale move back toward the spitter.

Fresh Paint, A New Look Field At Candlestick Park

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Righthander Gaylord Perry opened the 1971 home season of the San Francisco Giants today against a familiar enemy at refurbished Candlestick Park.

No more than 34,000 spectators were able to w a t c h the festivities against the San Diego Padres because that's all the seats available due to construction.

But those who got in were treated to a freshly painted ballpark featuring colorful seats and a lush green artificial turf over the entire field with the exception of areas around home plate and the bases.

Opposing Perry will be Clay Kirby in a rematch of their game at San D i e g o last Wednesday won by Perry and Giants 7-3. San Francisco took two of three from the Padres and then won two of three from the Cardinals at St. Louis over the weekend to wind up with a 4-2 record.

San Diego, meanwhile, got some lusty long-ball hitting from Nate Colbert to beat the Los Angeles Dodgers a couple of times. The Padres sport a somewhat surprising 3-3 mark.

Today also marks the debut of flashy rookie shortstop Chris Speier before hometown fans and the beginning of the 21st home season in a Giants uniform for the venerable Willie Mays.

Mays, who will be 40 next month, is off to one of the fastest starts of his career with a .409 batting average, four home runs in his first four games and 11 runs d r i v e n home in five games.

Mays was rested in the first game of the doubleheader with the Cards Sunday and Bob Gibson cruised to a six-hit 4-2 win. Back-to-back home runs by pinchhitter George Foster and Bobby Bonds in the eighth inning ruined Gibson's shutout bid.

But Willie played the second game and drove in two runs with a double and triple to help Juan Marichal post his second straight victory 7-2 with a nine-hitter. Bonds rapped two doubles and a s i n g l e in the nightcap to emerge with a 4-for-9 day.

The Giants may be without the services of Willie McCovey, their longball-hitting first baseman. He wrenched his knee in the first game a g a i n s t the Cards and didn't return to action.

If McCovey can't make it today, Frank Johnson will open at first.

Rookie righthander Steve Stone is e x p e c t e d to start against the Padres Tuesday night at Candlestick. The Houston Astros, Chicago Cubs and Cards follow the Padres into Candlestick during the upcoming 11-game homestand.

Upstart In AAU Upset

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)—The Atwoods, Meyers and Kinsellas were there and winning—but the loudest and longest applause of the National Amateur Athletic Union shortcourse swimming championships went to an "old man" m a k i n g a comeback and an upstart sprint swimmer.

The sprint swimmer was Frank Heckl of Southern Cali f o r n i a who posted his third straight upset win in Saturday's final events.

Heckl shot from behind with a perfect move on the final turn in the Washington State University pool to edge Indiana's Mark Spitz in the 100 freestyle with a winning time of 45.56 seconds.

Spits was timed in 45.6 seconds to take a narrow second over Tennessee's Dave Edgar by two-tenths of a second.

The "old man" who provided some heroics was Mike Burton, a former UCLA swimmer who won two gold medals in the 1964 Olympics. After a year's layoff, Burton is making a painful comeback at the age of 23.

He placed second in Saturday's 1,650-yard freestyle behind John Kinsella of Indiana, who had a time of 15:42.3. But the s i m p l e fact that Burton could place so highly was enough to get the fans up off the benches and cheering.

In other Saturday races, Sue Atwood of Lakewood, Calif., won her fourth race of the meet when she held off a fast-closing Cindy Palisted of Long Beach, Calif., in the 200 individual medley. Her winning time was 2:10.1.

Debbie Meyer coasted to an easy win in the women's 1,650 freestyle in 17:11.8, more than half a length ahead of second place Cathy Calhoun of El Monten Calif.

Marin Nine Wins Third In Tourney

A four-run rally that came after two were down in the bottom of the third inning carried the Marin Catholic High School Wildcats to a 4 — 2 victory over Carmel High Saturday in the final round of the Soquel Invitational baseball tournament.

The win was the second in three games for the Wildcats of Kentfield in this small town near Santa Cruz, and it gave them third place in the Easter holiday affair. Bellarmine of San Jose won as expected.

Don Bianchini, Marin's jack-of-all-positions, relieved starting pitcher Mickey Simmons in the second inning and kept the Padres at bay until the seventh, w h e n Jim Lowe cam on to finish the job. Simmons suffered from his r e c u r r i n g shoulder trouble, and though effective, had to be taken out.

Wildcat shortstop Steve Sherry climaxed the third inning a s s a u l t with a basehit that scored Bianchini and Vince Bormolini. Bianchini had singled home Tom Olson, who had driven in Rich Lopez with the first run. Olson was elected to the all-tourney team, while coach Gary Hughes had special praise for Lowe. He pitched in all three games, and was credited with a win and a save.

NOT EVEN CLOSE — Ron Hunt of the Montreal Expos slid into second with a stolen base as Philadelphia's Denny Doyle leaped for the throw yesterday in the third inning at Philadelphia. The play wasn't close, and neither was the score. The Phillies won, 11-4.

Swimmer Equals Her Best

I-J Special Report

PULLMAN, Wash. — A strong final-day performance by Denise Ham of the Marin Aquatic Club close out local action in the National AAU Swim Championships here on Saturday.

Miss Ham equalled her previous best 200 yard individual medley time of 2:16.5 to place 23rd in an impressive field that included the meet's quadruple winner, Susie Atwood of Lakewood, Calif.

Jo Hislop, also of the MAC, swam twice Saturday, recording a mediocre 56.6 in the 100 freestyle, and a 2:20.5 in the 200 individual medley.

The MAC's 400 freestyle relay narrowly missed placing, as Anne Engle, Kimi Fox, and Misses Hislop and Ham were timed in 3:47.4 for the distance.

Miss Ham achieved her best 100 free time of 55.7 leading off the relay, while Miss Hislop anchored the effort with a 55.5 split time.

According to MAC coach Don Swartz, the team improved its total point output by one over last summer's showing, but added that the overall team showing did not meet his best expectations.

The MAC's five points were tallied by Miss Ham in her 12th place breaststroke finish Friday night.

THE WEEK'S SCHEDULE

Key Track, Tennis Meets

It may be 1971, but as far as Marin County Athletic League high school track and tennis goes, it sounds like 1970. In both sports, the same confrontations that decided the championship last year are on the schedule this week as the eight MCAL schools swing back into spring league action following the Easter week vacation.

Baseball, too, will have a watershed when Novato and Terra Linda meet Friday afternoon at Albert Park. The co-league leaders should get by their opponents tomorrow to bring identical undefeated records into that clash.

The defending champion San Rafael Bulldogs and the Tamalpais Indians, in a repeat performance from a year ago, place their perfect league records on the line against each other Thursday at Mill Valley in a track and field meet which could decide the MCAL title. Redwood is also 3-0 at this point, but doesn't figure to make a strong move for the championship.

In tennis, however, the Giants of Larkspur are, as usual, the team to beat. This week they have a chance to personally dispose of the two teams that are tied with them for first place at 2-0 — the same teams incidentally that finished second and third behind them last year. Tomorrow they face Marin Catholic, Friday they take on arch-rival Tamalpais. Tam's only two losses last year came at the hands of Redwood, so add revenge to the agenda for Friday's match.

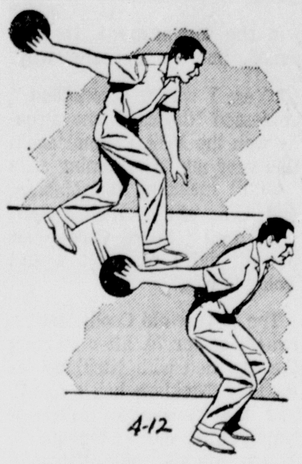
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



Although bowling stars come in all sizes, the stronger ones certainly have an advantage. If you are blessed with good size, you will find it easier to deliver a powerful ball. Don't feel, though, that because you are big you must charge to the line and blast the pins out of the pit. Let your power show itself naturally, giving a good lift to the ball as it slides off your fingers and getting the ball well past the foul line before it touches down.

Colonels Lead ABA Set, 3-2

By United Press International

The Kentucky Colonels need only a victory over the Floridians tonight at Miami to complete the pairings for the American Basketball Association's semifinal playoffs.

The Colonels took a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven series Saturday night with a 118-101 victory while the Virginia Squires advanced to the Eastern Conference finals by defeating the New York Nets 118-114. Virginia's victory gave the Squires the series over the Nets 4-2.

Indiana and Utah easily advanced to the quarterfinal series in four straight games. The Pacers and Stars, who waged a season-long battle for first place in the West before Indiana finally prevailed in the closing days, open their best-of-seven series tonight at Indianapolis.

Romanians Triumph

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) —Ilie Nastase and fellow Romania Ion Tiriac won the Monte Carlo Open men's doubles tennis title Sunday, defeating Tom Okker of Holland and Britain's Roger Taylor, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 8-6.

Tam Relay Team Wins Two-Mile

Tamalpais High School's two mile relay team swept past all competition to first place and a new school record Saturday at the Sacramento State Relays. Paul Ringleman, Vian Colliar, Mike Arago, and Carlos Martinez covered the distance in 8:03.3, several seconds ahead of the second place team.

That event was the only one the Mill Valley school entered in the meet, which included college, junior college and high school divisions. The winning time broke the school record by almost half a minute.

HOCKEY PLAYOFFS

Hawks May Still Be Doubtful

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

If the Chicago Black Hawks have a nagging doubt that all is not right with their world despite a convincing four-game sweep of the Philadelphia Flyers, they need only go back one year to learn the reason behind their nightmare.

Chicago wound up its quarter-final Stanley Cup series with minimum effort by winning a weekend pair of games at Philadelphia 3-2 and 6-2. Now the Hawks have the luxury of at least a week's rest while waiting for their semifinal opponent to emerge from the Toronto-New York series, which was thrown into a 2-2 deadlock when the Rangers beat the Maple Leafs 4-2 Sunday night.

Both other quarter-finals also are tied at two games apiece. Bobby Orr scored a hat trick as the Boston Bruins shook off the effects of a two-game losing streak by beating the Montreal Canadiens 5-2 and the Minnesota North Stars snapped out a long scoreless drought just in time to nip the St. Louis Blues, 2-1.

The best-of-seven sets resume Tuesday night at Boston, New York and St. Louis.

While the Black Hawks await their next competition, they can ponder the meaning of symbolic similarity. Last year they also swept their opening-round opponent —Detroit —only to be wiped out themselves in four games by Boston in the semifinals.

Tony Esposito was the Chicago goalie in all four games against Detroit and he allowed exactly two goals to the Wings in each game. Esposito also played in all four games against the Flyers and their output against him was the exact same two goals in each game.

"I don't think we'll have a letdown this year," Chicago Coach Billy Reay said in the jubilation following the Flyer sweep. "I relish the layoff now. We have three or four guys out there playing and hurting and it will do us some good."

Bobby Hull, who scored two goals in each of the first three victories, turned the hero's role in the finale over to Jim Pappin, who came through with a hat trick. Cliff Koroll scored two goals for Chicago and Pit Martin had the other.

Philadelphia outshot the Hawks 40-29 but Esposito was beaten only twice, by Serge Bernier and Simon Nolet.

Montreal, thirsting for a huge upset over the Bruins, who ran away with the East Division title in the National Hockey League, jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the opening minutes of play on Frank Mahovlich's fourth goal of the series.

But Orr tied the score with his first goal of the evening midway through the second session, followed with what proved to be the winner after 37 seconds of the final period and completed his hat trick by hitting an open net with only three seconds to play. Mike Walton, on a power play, and Fred Stanfield also scored for Boston.

Vic Hadfield, Dave Balon and Ron Stewart scored second-period goals to lift the Rangers to their first road victory in Stanley Cup play since 1958. They had lost 15 Cup road games in a row.

Darryl Sittler scored both goals for Toronto, which used Bernie Parent in the net for the third straight game.

Minnesota, after being shut out for 111 minutes and 46 seconds, stretching over five periods of play, got third-period goals from Bobby Rousseau and Charlie Burns to even its series with St. Louis. Burns' winner came with only 3:08 left in the game as he took a pass from Murray Oliver and beat goalie Glenn Hall from 20 feet.

Garry Unger scored the only St. Louis goal at 4:08 of the first period while the Blues were shorthanded.

3 School Marks In Marin Track

College of Marin's track team cracked three school records but settled for fourth place Saturday in the Marin-Santa Rosa Relays at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Alan Hancock of Santa Maria won the meet with 110 points, while the Tars of Kentfield collected 49. Marin's record efforts came in the sprint medley relay, the mile relay and the three mile.

Seamus O'Reilly ran the latter event in 15:42.8. He finished fifth. Ted Cain, Dick Tierney, Gary Agee and Todd Norris were clocked in 3:33.5 in the sprint relay good for second place, while Agee, Norris, Cain and John Lobdell covered the mile in 3:22.4 for third in that event.

Sohner Softballers Win Doubleheader

Sohner Tree Service of San Anselmo left little doubt about who is boss in Marin softball circles as the Treemen blanked arch-rival Suburban Auto of San Rafael in both games of a Golden Gate League doubleheader Saturday night at Albert Park.

The scores were 5-0 and 1-0 in eight innings.

Sohner combined the shutout hurling of Morey Swarm and Chuck Tyson with the clutch hitting of Ron Blum and an airtight defense highlighted by catcher Jess Munyon's two pickoff throws in the nightcap to hand Suburban its first losses of the year after eight victories.

Blum broke up the second game with one out in the bottom of the eighth when he drilled a shot between the outfielders to score Carlo Alioto from third with the game's only run.

Alioto and Ron McCamish had singled with one out and both advanced when McCamish's hit was bobbled in left field. With Munyon following Blum in the batting order, the Auto team decided to pitch to the Sohner shortstop, and Blum promptly ended it with his game-winning drive.

Swarm, the victor with a three-hit performance in the opener, also gained credit for the win in the second tilt when he relieved Tyson in the top of the eighth after Phil Gambucci walked to open the inning.

On Swarm's first pitch, Munyon picked off a pinch runner with a snap throw to first.

Suburban had loaded the bases in the first inning with no outs on two walks and a single by Ron Reagan, but Munyon picked the lead runner off third with a perfect toss to Milt Hain. The following hitter walked, but Tyson got out of trouble with a force play at the plate and another infield grounder.

Tyson, who was in trouble in five of the seven innings he hurled, and Swarm limited Suburban to five hits in the second tilt while tough-luck pitcher Joe Nystrom gave Sohner only six safeties.

The Treemen bunched four of their seven hits in the third inning of the opener to tally four times.

Blum added a little insurance in the fifth with a long home run.

Double Victories For Two Marin Tennis Players

Sue Beatty of Tiburon and Steve DeMartini of Greenbrae each won two championships Friday in the Round Hills Tennis Tournament at Alamo.

Miss Beatty won the girls' age 16 singles title with a 7-6,6-2 triumph over Sue Fast of Hillsborough and returned in the girls' age 14 singles with a 6-1,6-1 victory over Lisa Beritzhoff of Mill Valley.

Young DeMartini, meanwhile, took the boys' age 16 championship over Marcus Robinson of Mill Valley, 6-2,6-3, and teamed with John Beritzhoff of Mill Valley to take the boys' 16 doubles crown over Henry Jacobsen of Belvedere and Robinson, 6-2,7-5.

Another Marin County champion was Jacobsen who downed Bill Fisher of San Francisco, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4, in the finals of the boys; 14 division.

Stacey Hook of Tiburon lost to Bonnie Carey of San Francisco, 7-6,6-2 in the finals of the girls' 18 age division.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Scenery Change Good For Foster

A change of scenery finally seems to be bringing out the best in Alan Foster.

Foster, billed for nearly five years as the second coming of Sandy Koufax, never quite made it with the Los Angeles Dodgers, compiling a 14-24 record in three seasons.

The Dodgers peddled Foster to Cleveland during the off-season and Foster made his American League debut a memorable one Sunday, allowing only three hits in his 8 1-3 innings and igniting a five-run eighth inning rally that carried the Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

With the score tied at 2-2 in the eighth, Foster doubled off Gary Peters and Larry Brown was hit by a pitch. Vada Pinson's single scored Foster with the go-ahead run and Brown scored on an infield out. Walks to Ken Harrelson and Ted Ford accounted for another run, Eddie Leon singled in another and rookie Gomer Hodge doubled for the fifth run of the inning.

The hit was the fourth in as many major league at-bats for Hodge and his fourth run batted in.

Foster was bothered by wildness in his first AL start, walking nine batters, but Cleveland Manager Alvin Dark is sufficiently impressed.

"This kid knows how to pitch," said Dark, "and I'm not worried about him. He'll do the job and I think he'll do it much better than I had hoped he would."

In other American League action, Baltimore beat Detroit 9-3 after losing the doubleheader opener 5-4, Washington nipped New York after bowing 1-0 in the first game, Milwaukee blanked California 3-0, Kansas City ripped Oakland 10-5 and Minnesota shut out Chicago 6-0.

Dave McNally pitched a seven-hitter for his second victory of the season to lead the Orioles to their second game decision after Bill Freehan's 11th-inning gave Detroit the triumph in the opener.

Don Buford had three hits and scored two runs in the second game to highlight an 11-hit Baltimore attack. Dave Johnson, Boog Powell and Andy Etchebarren drove in two runs each for the World Champion Orioles.

Freehan's homer in the opener came after Baltimore had rallied in the eighth and ninth innings to tie the game at 4-4.

Bernie Allen's bases-loaded, pinch-hit single tied the score and Curt Blefary's error on the hit allowed the winning run to cross the plate as the Senators earned a doubleheader split with the Yankees. The Senators trailed 3-0 in the sixth when Elliot Maddox singled and scored on Frank Howard's double. Walks to Mike Epstein and Richie Scheinblum filled the bases and Allen's single drove in Howard and Epstein. Scheinblum scored from first when Blefary bobbled the ball.

Marty Pattin pitched a three-hitter and Bernie Smith smashed a home run to lift Milwaukee past California. The victory was the third in four games for the Brewers and the second in a row for Pattin, who allowed only three singles.

AND UMPIRING BEHIND THE PLATE

Umpires Tony Venzon (left) and Stan Landes (center) and Chicago third baseman Ron Santo went over the lineups with the Easter Rabbit yesterday before the game at the Houston Astrodome. The furry creature didn't play or umpire, however, and Houston won, 7-4.

N.L. ROUNDUP

Colbert Powers Padres With Two More Homers

Nate Colbert is only one of three reasons why the San Diego Padres are flexing impressive muscles in their third year as an expansion team.

At the moment, however, the 6-foot, 2-inch, 210-pound first baseman is the hottest hitter in the National League and one of baseball's most under-publicized sluggers.

Colbert drove in six runs with two homers and an infield out to lead the Padres to a 9-7 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday and now has five homers and 14 runs batted in after six games. The Padres are 3-3 after their six games and feel they are far ahead of such previous expansion teams as the New York Mets and Houston Astros in development toward pennant contention.

In addition to Colbert, the sluggers the Padres are counting upon to make them contenders are Ollie Brown and Clarence Gaston, drafted by club president E.J. Bavasi along with Nate in the 1968 draft which formed the club. The trio combined for a total of 90 homers in 1970 —three more than were hit by the whole Dodger team.

The Mets nipped the Cincinnati Reds, 1-0, in 11 innings, the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs, 7-4, the Atlanta Braves topped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1, the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Montreal Expos, 11-4, and the San Francisco Giants downed the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-2, after a 4-2 loss, in other National League games.

Colbert homered with two on after Tommy Dean walked and Gaston singled in the first inning and connected again after Gaston walked in the third. Both shots were off Don Sutton and went deep into the left field stands. Tommy Phoebus, acquired from the Baltimore Orioles in a winter trade, went five innings for his first NL victory.

The loss was the fourth in six games for the Dodgers.

Jerry Grote led off the bottom of the 11th inning with a homer off Wayne Granger to give Met reliever Tug McGraw his first win of the year. Tom Seaver allowed five hits and struck out 10 in nine innings before giving way to McGraw, whose mediocre work out of the bullpen was considered one of the reasons for the Mets' failure to win the NL pennant in 1970. The loss was the fourth in a row for the Reds, who haven't won yet this season.

7 lbs., 6 oz. and a victim of syphilis

Since 1900 syphilis alone has killed 4 million Americans. 3 million of those victims were babies who never heard of the word sex. What makes this even more tragic is the fact that V.D. can be prevented.

This year V.D. will be contracted by over 2½ million Americans. It's the nation's number one epidemic—and unfortunately its chief victims are under 25 years of age. One victim gives it to two, two to five, five to fifteen . . . it grows by leaps and bounds. It must be stopped!

Information to combat V.D. is available from physicians, clinics and public health groups. And your local pharmacist is a professional source for medically recognized products to aid in the prevention of V.D.

the green. But that was just enough and I was able to chip up to within three feet and sink the putt for a par."

Coody also parred the 18th and left Nicklaus, playing behind him, needing an eagle two to tie. The tall Texan became the champion when Nicklaus' second came bouncing on the green some 30 feet from the cup.

Young Miller was six-under-par for the day and dreaming of victory when "the bubble burst."

"Everything was going like crazy through 14," said the blond Californian. "And there I was walking down the 15th fairway and thinking, 'Gee, my Dad will sure love it when I win this.' And I was thinking about how that green coat they give the champion would look on me.

"I should have remembered what happened to other guys on those last holes. I need more experience."

At 283, five strokes behind were Gene Littler and Don January, while tied at 284 were Ken Still, Gary Player, and Tom Weiskopf. At 286 were Roberto de Vicenzo, Frank Beard, and Dave Stockton, and the only other man to break par for four rounds was Bert Greene at 287.

Sonoma State Nine Splits Doubleheader

Jim Salm struck out 10 batters and went the distance Saturday night to hurl the Sonoma State Cossacks to a 4-3 win over the University of California at Davis, after the Aggies had romped in the first game of the Far Western Conference doubleheader, 13-1.

The win was the first for the Cossacks of Rohnert Park in League play this year. They have five losses.

TRACK AND FIELD

Bad Day For Bears; Bruins Whip Injuns

By United Press International

Two northern California track teams visited Los Angeles over the weekend and UCLA and USC both demonstrated that they're going to be powers to reckon with when it comes time to decide the Pacific-8 conference champion.

The Trojans walloped the Cal Bears 101-43 Saturday while the Bruins easily swept by the Stanford Indians 108-37 in the double dual meet.

In two other Pac-8 meets, Oregon beat Washington 85-60 at Eugene and Oregon State defeated Washington State 82 1-2-71 1-2 at Corvallis.

It was a bad day all the way around for the Bears, who won the NCAA championship in 1970 but were later stripped of the title because of an ineligible athlete.

First the Bears' Eddie Hart, the defending NCAA 100 dash champion, barely held off the Trojans' Willie Deckard with a 9.4 clocking as he pulled a hamstring muscle in the stretch.

In the same race, the Bears' No. 2 sprinter, Isaac Curtis, irritated an ankle that he had turned earlier in the week and caused it to swell. Both Hart and Curtis dropped out of the 220.

The Bears won only four events. To add insult to victory, the Trojans whipped them in their traditional strongholds—the 440 and mile relays.

The Bruins didn't have any problems with Stanford as they won the 100, 440, both relays and scored 1-2 victories in the triple jump, high jump, 880 and long jump.

The only bright spot for the Indians was Randy White, who upset the Bruins' Wayne Collett with a 51.2 time in the intermediate hurdles.

Freshman James McAlister made his last appearance for UCLA in the long jump before heading for spring football practice and won the event with a 26-0 leap.

Oregon's sophomore Steve Prefontaine ran the best distance double of his career in the Duck's win over Washington. He set a new meet record in the two-mile with an 8:36.1 and won the mile in 4:02.6.

Oregon State coach Bernie Wagner used a surprise entry in the 440 relay team to beat Washington State. Wagner inserted high jumper Neil Ericksen to run the anchor leg and OSU moved ahead in the meet to stay.

OPENING GAME ACTION — The Twins met the Athletics in the first game of the junior league season at Vallecito School. Here an Athletic gets ready to belt his first hit of 1971.

EVERYBODY LOVES A PARADE — More than 450 boys representing 35 teams paraded through Terra Linda Saturday morning on opening day of the 1971 youth baseball season. An estimated 60-75 cars took part in the parade, from the fire house on Del Ganado Drive to Vallecito School.

It's Baseball Time For Terra Linda Youngsters

By DAVID EINSTEIN

A circus atmosphere came over Terra Linda Saturday morning as the sky cleared from the miserable rain of the previous night. It was the opening day of the community's youth baseball season, and there was, as there has been since the program first came into existence 14 years ago, a parade to celebrate the occasion.

Four hundred and fifty or so kids, taking on the names of bisons, bears, eagles, ravens, broncos, wolves, cougars, etc., rode, hero-style, in a car caravan from the fire station on Del Ganado Drive to Vallecito School, and there, after speeches by several San Rafael dignitaries, the 1971 season was inaugurated.

As a production, the parade rated an A plus. With police and fire vehicles providing an escort, the cars — estimates ran as high as 75 — made their way to the field quickly but with much pomp, and enough noise to make a couple of World War IIIs. Almost every car was decorated with banners, proclaiming the greatness of the team it was carrying, and some were dressed, like floats, to resemble the animals the teams were named after.

Adding to the color were balloons, thousands of them, and in a couple of cases, mascots. There was a lifesize man in a bear suit.

Every town in Marin County has some sort of youth baseball program. Most are linked with national institutions such as Little League, which claims 17 leagues and 1,400 players in Marin. A few communities operate their own programs, and Terra Linda is one of them.

The reason for independence, for proceeding apart from Little League, Babe Ruth League and Joe DiMaggio League — which together cater to boys from eight to 18 — is the desire to keep the programs on a local level, and thus to be able to exert influence concerning their modus operandi.

This local control is especially valuable in controlling the level of competition, and in the case of Terra Linda, in limiting it.

"We preferred to go our own non-competitive way," says Bill Kirby, secretary of the Terra Linda Athletic Association. "We wanted everybody to play the game. It's different from Little League in that everybody gets a chance to play. They all play a certain amount of time-nobody's relagated to a farm team."

Such a noble attitude isn't meant to berate Little League. In fact, many of the organization's rules and regulations, including those determining the size of the fields, are used by the Terra Linda program, and a spectator would be hard to put to judge whether or not he was watching real Little League.

Once at Vallecito School, the teams poured out of the cars, and lined up in a prearranged pattern in the infield. From the home plate area, San Rafael Mayor Paul Bettini, Supervisor John McInnis, and Police Chief Joseph Brusatori each contributed a short speech; then they collarborated in the throwing out of the first ball. Bettini pitched, McInnis caught, and Brusatori wailed the ball into left field.

Then the teams were introduced — pee wees (ages 9 - 10), juniors (11 - 12) and the program's new Babe Ruth League entries. Altogether, Terra Linda has 35 teams this year.

Finally, while the players stood around impatiently waiting for the signal to begin their opening day games, awards were presented to winners of the annual fund raising raffle. One player, Scott LaCoste of the junior league, was most impatient of all as he waited for his name to be called as winner of a 10-speed bicycle and a new fielder's glove. He earned them by selling more books of raffle tickets, 37, than any other boy.

The ceremonies having been concluded, the season was officially blessed, and, sometime afterward, the first games got under way. It had been a marvelously efficient and well-organized undertaking (after 14 years, you get good at these things).

LAST STOP, ALL OUT — Snoopy, the dog, sitting astride his doghouse, seemed to be waving at the crowd as players on the Athletics team piled out of the car that carried them in the parade.

BEST SEAT OF ALL — There's a place for everybody in the Terra Linda youth baseball program. Those too young to play on a team, like No. 1 above, can be batboys. Of course being small has its disadvantages. But with a little help from a friend, even No. 1 got a good view.

PLAYERS AND FRIEND — Members of the Bears team tried to get a noisemaker working again while their mascot, a full size man in a bear suit, supervised and gave advice.
